INTRODUCTION TO ĀPASTAMBA

Āpastamba's aphorisms on the sacred law of the Aryan Hindus possess a special interest beyond that attaching to other works of the same class because Āpastamba's work is free from any suspicion of having been tampered with by sectarians or modern editors, and that it has an intimate connection with the manuals teaching the performance of the great and small sacrifices, the Srauta and Grihya-sūtras, by the same author. Thus in spite of its comparatively late origin, it is entitled to the first place in a collection of Dharma-sūtras.

The Apastambīya Dharma-sūtra forms part of an enormous Kalpa-sūtra or body of aphorisms, which deals with the teaching of the Veda and of the ancient Rishis regarding the performance of sacrifices and the duties of the twice-born, and which, being chiefly based on the second of the four Vedas, the Yajur-veda in the Taittirīya recension, is primarily intended for the benefit of the Adhvaryu priests in whose families the study of the Yajur-veda is hereditary.

The entire Kalpa-sūtra of Āpastamba is divided into 30 sections, called Praśnas, literally questions.

The first 24 of these teach the performance of the so-called Srauta or Vaitānika sacrifices, for which several sacred fires are required, beginning with the simplest rites, the new and full moon offerings, and ending with the complicated Sattras or sacrificial sessions, which last a whole year or even longer.

The 25th Praśna contains the Paribhāshās or general rules of interpretation, which are valid for the whole Kalpa-sūtra, the Pravara-khāṇḍa, the chapter enumerating the patriarchs of the various Brahmanical clans, and finally the Hauraka, prayers to be recited by the Hauraka priests.

The 26th section gives the Mantras or Vedic prayers and formulas for the Grihya rites, the ceremonies for which the sacred domestic or Grihya fire is required.

The 27th the rules for the performance of the latter. The aphorisms on the sacred law fill the next two Prasnas; and the Sulaba-sūtra, teaching the geometrical principles, according to which the altars necessary for the Srauta sacrifices must be constructed, concludes the work with the 30th Praśna.

The Hindus are, no doubt, unscrupulous in adding to the works of famous teachers. But such additions, if of considerable extent, are usually not embodied in the works themselves which they are intended to supplement. They are mostly given as seshas or parisīhtas, tacked on at the end, and generally marked as such in the MSS.

In the case of the Āpastamba Dharma-sūtra it is, however, not necessary to rely on its position alone, in order to ascertain its genuineness. There are unmistakable indications that it is the work of the same author who wrote the remainder of the Kalpa-sūtra.

Who was Āpastamba?

Who this author really was, is a problem which cannot be solved for the present, and which probably will always remain unsolved, because we know his family name only. For the the name Āpastamba, just like those of most founders of Vedic schools, e.g. Bhāradvāja, Āsvalāyana, Gautama, is a patronymic name.

The History of the Āpastamba School

Regarding both the school which has been named after Āpastamba and the works ascribed to him, some information has been preserved by tradition, and a little more can be obtained from inscriptions and later works, while some interesting details regarding when and where the Sūtras were composed.

The data, obtainable from these sources do not enable us to determine with certainty the year when the Āpastambīya school was founded, and when its Sūtras were composed. But they make it possible to ascertain the position of the school and of its Sūtras in Vedic literature, their relative priority or posteriority as compared with other Vedic schools and works, to show in which part of India they had their origin, and to guess at their probable antiquity.

As regards the first point, the Karana-vyūha, a supplement of the White Yajur-veda which gives the lists of the Vedic schools, informs us that the Āpastambīya school formed one of the five branches of the Khāndikīya school, which in its turn was a subdivision of the Taittirīyas, one of the ancient sections of the Black Yajur-veda. Owing to the very unsatisfactory condition of the text of the Karana-vyūha it is unfortunately not possible to ascertain what place that work really assigns to the Āpastambīyas among the five branches of the Khāndikīyas. Some MSS. name them first, and others, last. They give either the following list,

1. Kāleyas (Kāletas),
2. Sātyāvanins,
3. Hiranyakesins,
4. Bhāradvājins,
5. Āpastambins,

or,

1. Āpastambins,
2. Baudhāyanins or Bodhāyanins,
3. Satyāśādhins,
4. Hiranya-kesins,
5. Aukheyas

But according to current and ancient tradition the Āpastambiyas are younger than the school of Baudhāyana, and older than that of Satyāśādhā Hiranyakesin. Baudhāyana, it is alleged, composed the first set of Sūtras connected with the Black Yajur-Veda, which bore the special title ‘pravacana,’ and he was succeeded by Bhāradvāja, Āpastamba, and Satyāśādhā Hiranyakesin, who all founded schools which bear their names.

This tradition has preserved two important pieces of information.

- First, the Āpastamba school is a Sūtra-karana, i.e. a school whose founder did not pretend to have received a revelation of Vedic Mantras or of a Brāhmana text, but merely gave a new systematic arrangement of the precepts regarding yajñas and the Dharma.
Secondly, the Sūtras of Āpastamba occupy an intermediate position between the works of Baudhāyana and Hiranyakesin.

In Āpastamba's own works, we find clear proof that he laid no claim to the title Rishi, or inspired seer of Vedic texts. For (Dharma-sūtra I, 2, 5, 4-5 says distinctly that on account of the prevalent transgression of the rules of studentship no Rishis are born, among the Avaras, the men of later ages or of modern times, but that some, by virtue of a residue of the merit which they acquired in former lives, become similar to Rishis by their knowledge of the Veda. A person who speaks in this manner, shows that he considers the holy ages during which the great saints saw with their mind's eye the uncreated and eternal texts of the Veda to be past, and that all he claims is a thorough acquaintance with the scriptures which had been handed down to him.

The same spirit which dictated this passage is also observable in other portions of the Dharma-sūtra for Āpastamba repeatedly contrasts the weakness and sinfulness of the Avaras, the men of his own times, with the holiness of the ancient sages, who, owing to the greatness of their 'lustre,' were able to commit various forbidden acts without diminishing their spiritual merit.

These utterances prove that Āpastamba considered himself a child of the Kali Yuga, during which, no Rishis can be born. If, therefore, in spite of this explicit disclaimer, the Samhitā and the Brāhmaṇa of the Black Yajur-veda are sometimes called Āpastamba or Āpastambīya, i.e. belonging to Āpastamba, the meaning of this expression can only be, that they were and are studied and handed down by the school of Āpastamba, not that its founder was their author, or actually received a revelation.

The fact that Āpastamba confined his activity to the composition of Sūtras is highly important for the determination of the period to which he belonged. It clearly shows that in his time the tertiary or Sūtra period of the Yajur-veda had begun. The conclusion being that the origin of the Āpastambīya school cannot be placed in the early times of the Vedic period, and probably falls in the last six or seven centuries before the beginning of the Christian era.

Āpastamba and Baudhāyana

That Āpastamba is younger than Baudhāyana may be proven by the following considerations. First, Baudhāyana's and Āpastamba's works on Dharma have a considerable number of Sūtras in common.

Āpastamba holds in several cases doctrines which are of a later origin than those held by Baudhāyana. With respect to this point the puritan opinions which Āpastamba puts forward regarding the substitutes for legitimate sons and regarding the appointment of widows (niyoga), and his restriction of the number of marriage-rites, may be adduced as examples. Like many other ancient teachers, Baudhāyana permits childless Ṭrāys to satisfy their craving for offspring by the affiliation of eleven kinds of substitutes for a legitimate son. Illegitimate sons, the illegitimate sons of wives, the legitimate and illegitimate offspring of daughters, and the children of relatives, or even of strangers who may be solemnly adopted, or received as members of the family without any ceremony, or be acquired by purchase, are all allowed to take the place and the rights of legitimate sons. Āpastamba declares his dissent from this doctrine. He allows legitimate sons only to inherit their father's estate and to follow the occupations of his caste, and he explicitly forbids the sale and gift of children.

Thus he protests against the custom of handing over childless widows to brothers-in-law or other near relatives in order to obtain sons who are to offer the funeral oblations to the deceased husband's manes, while Baudhāyana has as yet no scruple on the subject. Finally, he omits from his list of the marriage-rites the Paisāca vivāha, where the bride is obtained by fraud; though it is reluctantly admitted by Baudhayana and other ancient teachers.

On several occasions, it appears, Āpastamba controverts opinions which Baudhāyana holds, or which may be defended with the help of the latter’s Śūtras. The clearest case of this kind occurs in the chapter on Inheritance, where the treatment of the eldest son on the division of the estate by the father is discussed. There Āpastamba gives his own opinion that the father should make an equal division of his property ‘after having gladdened the eldest son by some (choice portion of his) wealth,’ i.e. after making him a present which should have some value, but should not be so valuable as to materially affect the equality of the shares. Further on he notices the opinions of other teachers on this subject, and states that the practice advocated by some, of allowing the eldest alone to inherit, as well as the custom prevailing in some countries, of allotting to the eldest all the father’s gold, or the black cows, or the black iron and grain, is not in accordance with the precepts of the Vedas. In order to prove the latter assertion he quotes a passage of the Taittirīya Samhitā, in which it is declared that ‘Manu divided his wealth among his sons,’ and no difference in the treatment of the eldest son is prescribed. He adds that a second passage occurs in the same Veda, which declares that ‘they distinguish the eldest son by (a larger portion of) the heritage,’ and which thus apparently countenances the partiality for the first-born. But this second passage, he contends, appealing to the opinion of the Mīmāṃsakas, is, like many similar ones, merely a statement of a fact which has not the authority of an injunction.

If we now turn to Baudhāyana, we find that he allows of three different methods for the distribution of the paternal estate. According to him, either an equal share may be given to each son, or the eldest may receive the best part of the wealth, or, also, a preferential share of one tenth of the whole property. He further alleges that the cows, horses, goats, and sheep respectively go to the eldest sons of Brāhmanas, Kshatriyas, Vaishyas and Śūdras. As authority for the equal division he gives the first of the two Vedic passages quoted above; and for the doctrine that the eldest is to receive the best part of the estate, he quotes the second passage which Āpastamba considers to be without the force of an injunction.

The fact that the two authors’ opinions clash is manifest, and the manner in which Āpastamba tries to show that the second Vedic passage possesses no authority, clearly indicates that before his time it had been held to contain an injunction. As no other author of a Dharma-Śūtra but Baudhāyana is known to have quoted it, the conclusion is that Āpastamba’s remarks are directed against him. If Āpastamba does not mention Baudhāyana by name, the reason probably is that in olden times, just as in the present day, the Brahmanical etiquette forbade a direct opposition against doctrines propounded by an older teacher who belongs to the same spiritual family (vidyāvamsa) as oneself.

A similar case occurs in the chapter on Studentship where Āpastamba, again appealing to the Mīmāṃsists, combats the doctrine that pupils may eat forbidden food, such as honey, meat, and pungent condiments, if it is given to them as leavings by their teacher. Baudhāyana gives no explicit rule on this point, but the wording of his Śūtras is not opposed to the doctrine and practice, to which Āpastamba objects. Baudhāyana says that students shall avoid honey, meat, pungent condiments, &c.; he further enjoins that pupils are to obey their teachers except when ordered to commit crimes which cause loss of caste (patanīya); and he finally directs them to eat the fragments of food given to them by their teachers. As the eating of honey and other forbidden substances is not a crime causing loss of caste, it is possible that Baudhāyana himself may have considered it the duty of a pupil to eat any kind of food given by the teacher, even honey and meat. At all events the practice and doctrine which Āpastamba blames, may have been defended by the wording of Baudhāyana’s rules.
Āpastamba and other texts & teachers.

As the Dharma-sūtra names no less than nine teachers in connection with various topics of the sacred law, and frequently appeals to the opinion of some (eke), it follows that a great many such auxiliary treatises must have existed in Āpastamba's time. The ācāryas mentioned are Eka, Kāṇva, Kāṇva, Kūnika, Kutsa, Kautsa, Puṣkarasādī, Vārśyāyani, Śvetaketu, and Hārita. Some of these persons, like Hārita and Kāṇva, are known to have composed Sūtras on the sacred law, and fragments or modified versions of their works are still in existence, while Kāṇva, Kautsa, Puṣkarasādī or Paushkarasādī, as the grammatically correct form of the name is, and Vārśyāyani are quoted in the Nirukta, the Prātisikhya, and the Vārttikas on Pāṇini as authorities on phonetics, etymology, and grammar. Kāṇva, finally, is considered the author of the still existing Kalpa-sūtras of the Kāṇva school connected with the White Yajur-veda. It seems not improbable that most of these teachers were authors of complete sets of Angas. Their position in Vedic literature, however, except as far as Kāṇva, Hārita, and Śvetaketu are concerned, is difficult to define, and the occurrence of their names throws less light on the antiquity of the Āpastambīya school than might be expected. Regarding Hārita it must, however, be noticed that he is one of the oldest authors of Sūtras, that he was an adherent of the Maitrāyaniya Śākhā, and that he is quoted by Baudhāyana, Āpastamba's predecessor. The bearing of the occurrence of Śvetaketu's name will be discussed below.

Of even greater interest than the names of the teachers are the indications which Āpastamba gives, that he knew two of the philosophical schools which still exist in India, viz. the Purva or Karma Mimāṁsā and the Veda. As regards the former, he mentions it by its ancient name, Nyāya, which in later times and at present is usually applied to the doctrine of Gautama Akṣapāda. In two passages he settles contested points on the authority of those who know the Nyāya, i.e. the Purvā Mimāṁsā, and in several other cases he adopts a line of reasoning which fully agrees with that followed in Jaimini's Mimāṁsā-sūtras.

As to the Veda, Āpastamba does not mention the name of the school. But Khandas 22, 23 of the first Patala of the Dharma-sūtra unmistakably contain the chief tenets of the Vedāntists, and recommend the acquisition of the knowledge of the Ātman as the best means for purifying the minds of sinners. Though these two Khandas are chiefly filled with quotations, which, as the commentator states, are taken from an Upanishad, still the manner of their selection, as well as Āpastamba's own words in the introductory and concluding Sūtras, indicates that he knew not merely the unsystematic speculations contained in the Upanishads and Aranyakas, but a well-defined system of Vedāntic philosophy identical with that of Bādarāyana's Brahma-sūtras.

Of non-Vedic works Āpastamba mentions the 'Purāṇa'. The Dharma-sūtra not only several times quotes passages from 'a Purāṇa' as authorities for its rules, but names in one case the Bhavīṣyat-purāṇa as the particular Purāṇa from which the quotation is taken. References to the Purāṇa in general are not infrequent in other Sūtras on the sacred law, and even in older Vedic works. But Āpastamba is the only Sūtrakāra who specifies the title of a particular Purāṇa, and names one which is nearly or quite identical with that of a work existing in the present day, and he is the only one, whose quotations can be shown to be, at least in part, genuine Paurānic utterances.

There is yet another point on which Āpastamba shows a remarkable agreement with a theory which is prevalent in later Sanskrit literature. He says (Dh. II, 11, 29, 11-12), 'The knowledge which Sūdras and women possess, is the completion of all study,' and 'they declare that this knowledge is a supplement of the Atharva-veda.'

The commentator remarks with reference to these two Sūtras, that 'the knowledge which Sūdras and women possess,' is the knowledge of dancing, acting, music, and other branches of the so-called Arthasāstra, the science of useful arts and of trades, and that the object of the Sūtras is to forbid the study of such matters before the acquisition of sacred learning.

Āpastamba's remark that 'the knowledge of Sūdras and women is a supplement of the Atharva-veda,' proves that he knew the division of Hindu learning which is taught in Madhusūdana Sarasvatī's Prasthānabhedā. For Madhusūdana allots to each Veda an Upa-veda or supplementary Veda, and asserts that the Upa-veda of the Atharva-veda is the Arthasāstra. The agreement of Āpastamba with the modern writers on this point, furnishes, an additional argument that he belongs to the later Vedic schoolmen.

The geographical location of Āpastamba

We do possess some statements as to the part of India to which Āpastamba belongs, and these, as it happens, are of great importance for fixing approximately the period in which the school arose. According to the Brahmanical tradition, which is supported by a hint contained in the Dharma-sūtra and by, information derivable from inscriptions and the actual state of things in modern India, the Āpastambīyās belong to Southern India and their founder probably was a native of or resided in the Āndhra country. The existence of this tradition, which to the present day prevails among the learned Brahmans of Western India and Benares, may be substantiated by a passage from the above-mentioned commentary of the Karanavyūha, which, though written in barbarous Sanskrit, and of quite modern origin, possesses great interest, because its description of the geographical distribution of the Vedas and Vedic schools is not mentioned elsewhere.

The verses from a work entitled Mahārnava, which are quoted there, state that India, is divided into two equal halves by the river Narmadā and that the school of Āpastamba prevails in the southern half (ver. 2). It is further alleged (ver. 6) that the Yajur-veda of Tittiri and the Āpastambīya school are established in the Āndhra country and other parts of the south and south-east up to the mouth of the Godāvari. According to the Mahārnava the latter river marks, therefore, the northern frontier of the territory occupied by the Āpastambīyas which comprises the Marātha and Kānaḍa districts, the Tamil country and the western coast.

The indigenous Brāhmanas of Gujarāt, such as the Nāgaras, Khedāvals, Bhārgavas, Kapilas, and Motālās, belong, if they are adherents of the Yajur-veda, to the Mādyandina or Kāṇva schools of the White Yajur-veda. The same is the case with the Brāhmanas of Rajputāṇa, Hindustan, and the Punjab. In Central India, too, the White Yajur-veda prevails; but, besides the two schools mentioned above, there are still some colonies of Maitrāyaniyas or Mānavas. It seems, also, that the restriction of the Āpastambīya school to the south of India, or rather to those subdivisions of the Brahmanical community which for a long time have been settled in the south and are generally considered as natives of the south, is not of recent date. For it is a significant fact that the numerous ancient land-grants which have been found all over India indicate exactly the same state of things.

Among the southern land-grants there are several on which the name of the school appears. Thus in an edict of king Harihara of Vidyānagara, dated Saka-samvat 1317 or 1395 A.D., one of the recipients of the royal bounty is 'the learned Ananta Dikṣita, son of Rāmabhata, chief of the Āpastambīya sākhā, a scion of the Vasishtha gotra.' Further, the eastern Kālukya king Vijayañītiya II, who ruled, according to Dr. Fleet, from A.D. 799-843, presented a village to six students of the Hiranyakesi-sūtra and to eighteen students of the Āpastamba-sūtra. Again, in the above mentioned earlier grant of the Pallava king Nandivarman, there are forty-two students of the Āpastamba-sūtra among the 108 sharers of the village of Udaya-candra-mangalam.
Finally, on an ancient set of plates written in the characters which usually are called cave-characters, and issued by the Pallava king Simha-varman II, we find among the donees five Āpastambhiya Brāhmaṇas, who, together with a Hairanyakesin, a Vājasaneyin, and a Sāma-vedi, received the village of Manjadūr, in Vengorāśṭra. This inscription is, to judge from the characters, thirteen to fourteen hundred years old, and on this account a very important witness for the early existence of the Āpastambiyas in Southern India.

Āpastamba, in describing the Srāddhas or funeral oblations says (Dh. II, 7, 17, 17) that the custom of pouring water into the hands of Brāhmaṇas invited to a Srāddha prevails among the northerners, and he indicates thereby that he himself does not belong to the north of India.

The south of India and the nations inhabiting it, such as Kalingas, Dravidas, Andhras, Cholas, and Pāṇḍyas, do not play any important part in the ancient Brahmanical traditions and in the earliest history of India, the centre of both of which lies in the north-west or at least north of the Vindhya range. The south and the southern nations are not mentioned in any of the Vedic Samhitās. In the Brāhmaṇas and in the Sūtras they do occur, though they are named rarely and not in a complimentary manner. Aitareya-Brāhmaṇa gives the names of certain degraded, barbarous tribes, and among them that of the Andhras, in whose country, as has been shown, the Āpastambiyas probably originated. Again, Baudhāyana, in his Dharma-sūtra I, i, quotes song verses in which it is said that he who visits the Kalingas must purify himself by the performance of certain sacrifices in order to become fit for again associating with Aryans. The same author, also, mentions distinctive forbidden practices (ācāra) prevailing in the south (loc. cit.).

Further, Pāṇini's grammatical Sūtras and Kātyāyana's Vārttikas thereon contain rules regarding several words which presuppose an acquaintance with the south and the kingdoms which flourished there. Thus Pāṇini, IV, 2, 98, teaches the formation of dākṣināṭya in the sense of 'belonging to or living in the south or the Dekhan,' and a Vārttika of Kātyāyana on Pāṇini, IV, 1, 175, states that the words Chola and Pāṇḍya are used as names of the princes ruling over the Chola and Pāṇḍya countries, which, as is known from history, were situated in the extreme south of India.

The other southern nations and a fuller description of the south occur first in the Mahābhārata. Asoka in his edicts, which date from the second half of the third century B.C.E, calls the Cholas, Pāṇḍyas, and the Kerala-putra or Ketala-putra his pratyantas (prakantā) or neighbours. The same monarch informs us also that he conquered the province of Kalinga (Orissa) and annexed it to his kingdom, and his remarks on the condition of the province show that it was thoroughly imbued with the Aryan civilisation.

There can be no doubt that the south of India was conquered by the Aryans, and has been brought within the pale of Brahmanical civilisation much later than India north of the Vindhya range. During which century precisely that conquest took place, cannot be determined for the present. But it would seem that it happened a considerable time before the Vedic period came to an end, and it certainly was an accomplished fact, long before the authenticable history of India begins, about 500 B.C.E, with the Persian conquest of the Pañjab and Sindh. It may be added that a not inconceivable period must have elapsed after the conquest of the south, before the Aryan civilisation had so far taken root in the conquered territory, that, in its turn, it could become a centre of Brahmanical activity, and that it could produce new Vedic schools.
The antiquity of Āpastamba

The name of Āpastamba and of the Āpastambīyas is not mentioned in any Vedic work, not even in a Kalpa-sūtra, but the Dharmasūtra contains a remarkable passage in which its author states that Svetaketu, one of the Vedic teachers who is mentioned in the Satapatha-Brāhmaṇa and in the Chāṇḍogya Upanishad, belongs to the Avaras, to the men of later, i.e. of his own times. It has been stated that according to Śūtra 4, 'No Rishis are born among the Avaras, the men of later ages, on account of the prevailing transgression of the rules of studentship;' and that according to Śūtra 5, 'Some in their new birth become similar to Rishis by their knowledge of the Veda (srutarshi) through a residue of merit acquired in former existences.' In order to give an illustration of the latter case, the author adds in Śūtra 6, 'Like Svētaketu.' The natural, and only admissible interpretation of these words is that Āpastamba considers Svētaketu to be one of the Avaras, who by virtue of a residue of merit became a Srutarshi. This is also the view of the commentator Haradatta, who, in elucidation of Śūtra 6, quotes the following passage from the Chāṇḍogya Upanishad (VI, 1, 1-2):

'Verily, there lived Svētaketu, a descendant of Aruna. His father spake unto him, "O Svētaketu, dwell as a student (with a, teacher); for, verily, dear child, no one in our family must neglect the study of the Veda and become, as it were, a Brāhmaṇa in name only."'

'Verily, he (Svētaketu) was initiated at the age of twelve years, and when twenty-four years old he had learned all the Vedas; he thought highly of himself and was vain of his learning and arrogant.'

There can be no doubt that this is the person and the story referred to in the Dharma-sūtra. For the fact which the Upanishad mentions, that Svētaketu learned all the Vedas in twelve years, while, the Smritis declare forty-eight years to be necessary for the accomplishment of that task, makes Āpastamba's illustration intelligible and appropriate. A good deal more is told in the Chāṇḍogya Upanishad about this Svētaketu, who is said to have been the son of Uddālaka and the grandson of Aruna (Āruneya). The same person is also frequently mentioned in the Satapatha-Brāhmaṇa. In one passage; of the latter work, which has been translated by Professor Max Müller, it is alleged that he was a contemporary of Yāgñavalkya, the promulgator of the White Yajur-veda, and of the learned king Janaka of Videha, who asked him about the meaning of the Agnihotra sacrifice, Now, as has been shown above, Āpastamba knew and quotes the White Yajur-veda and the Satapatha-brāhmaṇa.

The fact, therefore, that Āpastamba places a teacher whom he must have considered as a contemporary of the promulgator of the White Yajur-veda among the Avaras, is highly interesting and of some importance for the history of Vedic literature. For even if the term Avara is not interpreted very strictly and allowed to mean not exactly a contemporary, but a person of comparatively recent times, it will not be possible to place between Svētaketu and Āpastamba a longer interval than, at the utmost, two or three hundred years. Svētaketu and Yāgñavalkya would accordingly, at the best, find their places in the fourth or fifth century B.C.E, and the Satapatha-Brāhmaṇa as well as all other Vedic works, which narrate incidents from their lives, must have been composed or at least edited still later. Though little is known regarding the history of the Vedic texts, still it happens that we possess some information regarding the texts in question. For we know from a statement made by Kātyāyana in a Vārttika on Pāṇini IV, 3, 105, and from Patañjali's commentary on his words that the Brāhmaṇa proclaimed by Yāgñavalkya, i.e. the Satapatha-brāhmaṇa of the White Yajur-veda, was considered to have been promulgated by one of the Ancients, in the times of these two writers, i.e. probably in the fourth and second centuries B.C.E. These considerations will show that it is necessary to allow for Āpastamba a much higher antiquity than the first century B.C.E.
The occurrence of many grammatical irregularities in so small a treatise as the Dharma-sūtra, proves clearly that the author did not follow Pāṇini's grammar, and makes it very unlikely that he knew it at all. The majority of the irregular forms are peculiar to Āpastamba. He must have either been unacquainted with Pāṇini or have considered his teachings of no great importance. In other words, he must either have lived earlier than Pāṇini or before Pāṇini's grammar had acquired general fame throughout India, and become the standard authority for Sanskrit authors. On linguistic grounds it seems Āpastamba cannot be placed later than the third century B.C.E, and if his statement regarding Svetaketu is taken into account, the lower limit for the composition of his Sūtras must be put further back by 150-200 years.

History of the Dharma-sūtras & their commentary

It now is necessary to say, in conclusion, a few words about the history of the text of the Dharma-sūtra, and about its commentary, the Ujjvalā Vritti of Haradatta. The oldest writer with a known date who quotes the Āpastambīya Dharma-sūtra is Sankarācārya, c. 800 A.D. Even somewhat earlier Kumārila, c. 750, refers repeatedly to a law-book by Āpastamba. But it is improbable that he had our Dharma-sūtra before him. For he says, p. 138, that Āpastamba expressly sanctions local usages, opposed to the teaching of the Vedas, for the natives of those districts where they had prevailed since ancient times. Now, that is just an opinion, which our Dharma-sūtra declares to be wrong and refutes repeatedly. As it seems hazardous to impute to a man, like Kumārila, ignorance or spite against Āpastamba, one can assume that the great Mīmāṃsaka refers to some other work, attributed to Āpastamba.

Among the commentators on Smritis the oldest, who quote the Dharma-sūtra, are Medhātithi, the author of the Manubhāshya, and Vijñāneśvara, who composed the Mitākṣaras, the well-known commentary on Yājñavalkya's Dharma-sāstra during the reign of the Cālukya king Vikramāditya VI, of Cālukya towards the end of the 11th century. From that time downwards Āpastamba is quoted by almost every writer on law. But the whole text is vouched for only by the commentator Haradatta, who wrote his Ujjvalā Vritti, at the latest, in the 15th century A.D. or possibly 100 years earlier. Haradatta was, however, not the first commentator of the Dharma-sūtra. He frequently quotes the opinions of several predecessors whom he designates by the general expressions anyah or aparah, i.e. another (writer). The fact that the Ujjvalā was preceded by earlier commentaries which protected the text from corruption, also speaks in favour of the authenticity of the latter, which is further attested by the close agreement of the Hiranyakesi Dharma-sūtra, mentioned above.

As regards the value of the Ujjvalā commentary for the explanation of Āpastamba's text, it certainly belongs to the best commentaries existing. Haradatta possessed in the older Vrittis abundant and good materials on which he could draw; he himself apparently was, well versed in Hindu law and in Sanskrit grammar, and distinguished by sobriety and freedom from that vanity which induces many Indian commentators to load their works with endless and useless quotations. His explanations, therefore, can mostly be followed without hesitation, and, even when they appear unacceptable, they deserve careful consideration.

1. Now, therefore, we will teach the Dharmas which form part of the duty of daily life, as they have been decided by the agreement [of those who know the law].

Now, therefore — after the study of the śrāutā and grhyā sutras.

Dharma — 'acts productive of merit,' usually translated by 'duty or law,' is more accurately defined as an act which produces the state called apuṛva, the cause of heavenly bliss and of final liberation.

Sāmaya — 'agreement, decision of men who know the law,' is threefold = vidhi — injunction, niyama — restriction or guidelines, and pratiṣedhā — prohibition.

dharmajña samayaḥ pramāṇam || 2 ||

2. The authority [for Dharma] is the agreement of those who know the law.

(Manu 2:6, 12; Yajñ. 1:7; Gautama 1:1:]

The Dharma teachings arise from the consensus of those learned scholars who have studied the Scriptures.

vedāśca || 3 ||

3. And [the authorities for the latter are] the Vedas alone.

The knowers of the law are authorities for us and the Vedas alone are their authority.

The Vedas are therefore the root authority in matters of dharma and adharma. [Gautama 1:1:2]

Catvāro varṇā brahmaṇa kṣatriya vaiśya śūdraḥ || 4 ||

4. [There are] four castes — brahmaṇas, kṣatriyas, vaiśyas, and śūdras.

All four are entitled to practice the Dharma set forth by the agreement of the Law-givers.

aśūdrānām aduṣṭa-karmāṇām upāyaṇaṃ vedādhyayanam agnyādheyaṃ phalavanti ca karmāṇi || 6
6. [For all these], excepting śūdras and criminals, [are ordained] the initiation [upanayana], the study of the Veda, and the setting up of the sacred fire; and [their] works are productive of rewards [in this world and the next]. (Manu 2:35.)

If one omits the ‘a’ prefix in asūdrānām the meaning would be — “those śūdras who are of impeccable behaviour may also be initiated etc.”

śuṣṭā śūdrasyetareṣāṁ varṇānām || 7 ||

7. To serve the other [three] castes [is ordained] for the śūdra. (Manu 1:91, 8:410 and 9:334 Yajñ. 1:120.)

8. The higher the caste [which the śūdra serves] the greater is the merit.

upanayanaṁ vidyārthasya śrutitas-saṃskāraḥ || 9 ||

9. The initiation [upanayana] is the confirmation in accordance with the texts of the Veda, of a male who is desirous of [and can make use of] sacred knowledge.

The deaf and dumb who cannot make use of the sacred knowledge are thus excluded. The stipulation of 'male' excludes women for the reason that their domestic duties precludes them from making use of the scriptural knowledge of the Vedas. Although women are required to use certain texts during agnihotra etc. it is recommended that they be taught at the time of performance only.

sarvebhyo vai vedebhyas-sāvityanūcyata iti hi brāhmaṇam || 10 ||

10. A Brāhmaṇa text declares that the Gāyatrī is learnt for the sake of all the [three] Vedas.

This statement is to remove the doubt whether the ceremony of initiation is to be repeated for each of the Vedas. Only if the Atharvana Veda is to be studied is a separate initiation required.

Tamaso vā eṣa tamaḥ praviṣati yam avidvān upanayate yaścā avidvān iti hi brāhmaṇam || 11 ||

11. A Brāhmaṇa text declares that one who’s initiated by a guru unlearned in the Veda indeed enters darkness, and he who initiates comes from darkness.

The one who conducts the upanayana ceremony should himself be learned in the Veda. Nowadays it is customary for the father to do the teaching of the gāyatrī even though unlearned in the Veda.

12. One who desires initiation shall seek to obtain a teacher in whose family sacred learning is hereditary, who himself possesses the knowledge of the 6 aṅgas of the Veda [along with the meaning], and who is diligent [in following the law].

a teacher in whose family sacred learning is hereditary — it must be remembered that at the time of the sūtras, books were not widely available and learning was confined within families and not institutes of learning.

Samāhita means avoiding the proscribed acts and diligently following the prescribed acts.

13. And under him the sacred science must be studied until the end, provided [the teacher] does not fall down from the ordinances of the law.

If the teacher does happen to fall from the practice of Dharma then the student has the right to tactfully upbraid him, if he continues in malpractice the student should leave and find another teacher.

_Tasmād dharmān ācinoti sa ācāryaḥ || 14 ||_

16. For he gives a second birth to the student by [imparting to him] sacred learning. (Manu 2:146-148.)

19. Let a Brāhmaṇa be initiated in spring, a Kṣatriya in summer, a Vaiśya in autumn, a Brāhmaṇa in the eighth year of age, a Kṣatriya in the eleventh year and a Vaiśya in the twelfth year. (Manu 2:36.)

27. There is no dereliction [of duty, if the initiation takes place], in the case of a Brāhmaṇa before the completion of the 16th year, in the case of a Kshatriya before the completion of the 22nd year, in the case of a Vaiśya before the completion of the 24th year. [Let him be initiated at such an age] that he may be able to perform the duties, which we shall declare below.

The meaning is, that the initiation shall be performed as soon as the child is able to begin the study of the Veda. If it is sufficiently mentally developed at eight years, the ceremony must then be performed; and if it be then neglected, or, if it be neglected at any time when the capacity for learning exists, the expiation prescribed in the following Sūtras must be performed. The age of 16 in the case of Brāhmaṇas is the latest age until which the ceremony may be deferred, in case of incapacity for study only. After the lapse of the 16th year, the expiation becomes also necessary. (Manu 2:38; Yājñ. I:37.

28. If the proper time for the initiation has passed, one shall observe the duties of a student for a period of two months, as observed by those who are studying the three Vedas.
The meaning is, he shall keep all the restrictions imposed upon a student, such as chastity, etc., but that he shall not perform fire-worship or service to a teacher nor actually study. (Manu 2:39; 11:192, Yājñ. 1. 38;)

Haradatta comments that if he is healthy he shall bathe three times a day — morning, midday, and evening from the time of initiation.

31. After that he may be instructed [in the Veda].

32. He, whose father and grandfather have not been initiated, [and his two ancestors] are called 'slayers of the Brahman.'

Brahman here means 'Veda,' and those who neglect its study may be called metaphorically 'slayers of the Veda.' To be initiated implies to also study the Veda. If a person's father and grandfather have not been initiated and have not studied the Veda then they are demoted to the level of Śūdras. This would apply to the vast majority of "Brahmins" — it is very rare to find one in whose family Vedic learning is still current.

16. Twelve years [should be] the shortest time [for his residence with his teacher].

The commentator declares that in (Manu 3;1, the expression ‘until he has learnt it,’ must be understood in this sense, [that the student may leave his teacher, if he has learnt the Veda after twelve years' study, never before. But compare also Aśv. Gri. Sūtra. 1, 22, 3.

\textit{na brahmacāriṇo vidyā arthasya para upavāso- ‘asti} \| 17 \|

17. A student who studies the sacred knowledge shall not dwell with anybody else [other than his teacher].
The commentator states that this rule refers only to a temporary, not to a professed student [naiṣṭhika]. He also gives an entirely different explanation to the Sūtra, which, according to some, means, ‘A student who learns the Veda shall not fast in order to obtain heaven’. This rendering also is admissible, as the word para may mean either a ‘stranger’ or ‘heaven’, and upavāsa, ‘dwelling’ or ‘fasting.’

Regarding the meaning of “kṣāra”— ‘pungent condiments,’ see Haradatta on 2:6, 15, 15. Other commentators explain the term differently. (Manu 2;177; Yajñ. 1, 33; and Āśv. Gri: Su. 1. 22, 2.

28. Nor wash the body [with hot water for pleasure],

29. But, if the body is soiled by unclean things, one shall clean it [with earth or water], in a place where one is not seen by a Guru.

Here, in the section on the teacher, the word guru designates the father and the rest also. Haradatta.

30. One should not frolic about in the water whilst bathing; let him float [motionless] like a stick.

The gist of this śūtra is that bathing, which is normally done in a river or public place should be done with restraint and not cause irritation to others using the same ghat for bathing and washing clothes etc.

Another version of the first portion of this Śūtra, proposed by Haradatta, is, 'Let him not, whilst bathing, clean himself [with soap powder or the like].’ Another commentator takes Śūtra 28 as a prohibition of the daily bath or washing generally ordained for Brāhmaṇas, and refers Śūtra 29 to the naimittika snāna or ‘bathing on certain occasions,’ and takes Śūtra 30 as a restriction of the latter.

31. One shall wear all the hair tied in one knot. (Manu 2;219.)

34. A bowstring [should be the girdle] of a Kshatriya,

35. Or a girdle of Muñja grass to which some pieces of iron have been tied.

36. A wool thread [shall be the girdle] of a Vaiśya,
37. Or a rope used for yoking the oxen to the plough, or a string made of Tamala bark.

38. The staff carried by a Brāhmaṇa should be made of Palāśa wood, that of a Kshatriya of a branch of the Banyan tree, which grows downwards, that of a Vaiśya of Bādara or Udumbara wood. Some declare, without any reference to caste, that the staff of a student should be made of the wood of a tree [that is fit to be used at the sacrifice]. (Manu 2:45; Yajñ. 1:29; Aśv. Gri:Sūtra 1;19;13;20,1)

39. [One shall wear] a cloth [to cover the loins].

40. [It shall be made] of hemp for a Brāhmaṇa, of flax [for a Kshatriya], of the skin of a [clean] animal [for a Vaiśya]. (Manu 2:41)

Clean means here and everywhere else, if applied to animals or things, those which are fit to be used at the sacrifice.

41. Some declare that the [upper] garment [of a Brāhmaṇa] should be dyed with red Lodh. (Aśv. Gri: Sūtra 1;19;11)

Apāpātras are called those born from a high-caste mother and a low-caste father, such as washermen. For their cooking vessels etc. are unfit for the use of the four castes. Since Apastamba says, “In the evening and in the morning, food obtained in the evening must not be used for the morning meal, nor food obtained in the morning for the evening meal.” — Manu 2:182, 183, 185; Aśv. To eat the residue of the meal (ucchiṣṭa) of any person except that left by the teacher and other Gurus, is not permitted to a student; see also below, 1:1:4:1 seq.; Manu 2:56; Yajñ. 1:33.

42. If [the student] is on a journey, he shall offer a part of the alms into the fire and eat [the remainder].

This rule holds good if no śrotiyas (Vedic scholars) are near to give permission for him to eat. If śrotiyas are to be found, Śūtra 34 applies. Agni, the god of fire, is considered to be of the Brahminical caste, and hence he takes the place of the teacher or of the śrotiyas. (See also Manu 2:247, 248)

7. By this [last Sūtra it is] explained [that] the other restrictions [imposed upon a student, such as abstinence from perfumes, ointments, etc., are likewise not to be broken].

See above, 1:1:2:24 seq.:— According to Haradatta, teachers were in the habit of giving ointments and the like forbidden substances to their students, and Aastamba gives this rule in order to show his dissent from the practice.⁴

\[śrutir hi baliṣasy ānumānākād ācārāt \| 8 \|\]

8. For [explicit] Vedic texts have greater force than custom from which [the existence of a permissive passage of the revelation] may be inferred.

'\textit{Ānumānika} means "able to be inferred from." The existence of a Vedic text or tradition [Sruti] is inferred from an established custom. But, a visible Vedic text has greater weight than an age-old custom from which the existence of a text may be inferred. By this sūtra Āpastamba shows that the rule forbidding a student to eat pungent condiments, salt etc. is based on the existing text of a Brāhmaṇa.' — Haradatta.

\[drṣyate ca-āpi pravṛtti kāraṇam \| 9 \|\]

The text forbidding the use of pungent condiments, salt, meat etc. refers to such substances if they are not sacrificial left-overs — if they were sacrificial left-overs then they could be taken as prasād.

⁴ The Mīmāṃsā says: \textit{prāpti-pūrvaka pratiśedhha bhavati} — the existence of a prohibition indicates its practice.
12. If they act contrary to the law, one must not eat [their leavings].
   If by eating their leavings one should commit a sin because they contain salt etc, he shall not do so — Haradatta.

13. In the evening and the morning one shall fetch water in a vessel [for the use of the teacher]. (Manu 2:182)
   The purpose of this is to free the teacher from daily chores so that he can apply himself to teaching the Dharma.

14. Daily one shall fetch fuel from the forest and place it on the floor [in the teacher's house]
   The reason for placing it on the floor is fear of causing some injury to the children or animals of the teacher, if it fell down from a shelf or the like.

15. One should not go to fetch firewood after sunset.

16. After having kindled the sacred fire, and having wiped the ground around the altar, one shall place the sacred fuel on the fire every morning and evening, according to the prescription [of the Gṛhya-sūtra].

17. Some say that the fire is only to be worshipped in the evening.
   Evening means just before sunset.

18. one shall wipe the place around the fire after it has been made to burn
   [by the addition of fuel], with the hand, and not with the broom [of kuśa

19. But, before [adding the fuel, one is free to use the broom] at his pleasure.

20. One shall not perform non-religious acts with the residue of the water employed for the fire-worship, nor sip it.

During the fire-worship water is used for sprinkling the altar in various ways.

24. Having served [the teacher during the day in this manner, one shall say when going to bed]:—‘I have protected the protector of the Dharma’ [my teacher].

25. If the teacher transgresses the law through carelessness or knowingly, one shall point it out to him in private.

This is a very interesting guideline — all teachers are also humans who are subjected to the same errors and faults of others. The student should not expect the teacher to be perfect. Vide Taittiriya Upaṇiṣad — convocational address.

27. Or one may return home.

The Sūtra refers to a naiṣṭhika brahmacārin or professed student, who never leaves his teacher's family, and never enters any other order; and it declares his merit to be equal to that of one who becomes a householder. (Manu 2:243, 244; Yajñi. 1:49.50)
The purpose of living with the teacher is to obtain an education, if this contract is not being fulfilled then the student may leave the ācārya and return home.

29. The student who thus entirely fixes the mind there [in the teacher's family], has thereby performed all acts which yield rewards [such as the Jyotiṣṭoma], and also those which must be performed by a householder.

The student who remains focused and mindful while in the house of the teacher is hereby praised as being completely accomplished.

niyameṣu tapas śabdaḥ  || 1  ||

1. The word ‘austerity’ [must be understood to apply] to [the observance of] the rules [of studentship].

The term tapas has many meanings – all of which indicate a ‘generation of internal heat’. It can refer to austere yogic practices, self-discipline and meditation as well as the fulfillment or rules and obligations.

tad atikrame vidyā karma niḥsravati brahma saha-apatyād etasmāt  || 2  ||

2. If the rules are transgressed, study drives out the knowledge of the Veda acquired already, from the [offender] and from his children.

The meaning of the phrase, “Study drives out the Veda, which has already been learnt from him who studies transgressing the rules prescribed for the student,” is, “The Veda recited at the Brahma-yajña [daily study], and other religious rites, produces no effect, ie. gains no merit for the reciter.” Manu 3:97. Haradatta gives also the following three explanations of this Sūtra adopted by other commentators:—

a. If these [rules] are transgressed, he loses his capacity for learning, because the Veda forsakes him, etc.

b. If these rules are transgressed, the capacity for learning and the Veda leave him, etc.

c. From him who studies whilst transgressing these rules, the Veda goes out, etc.

3. He will fall into a ditch, and his life will be shortened.
By not becoming educated one falls into a metaphoric ditch and becomes ruined through stupidity.

\[\text{tasmād ṛṣayo- āvareṣu na jāyante niyama atikramāt \| 4 \|}\]

4. On account of that [transgression of the rules of studentship] no ṛṣis are born amongst the people of later ages.

Amongst the avaras means "amongst the people of modern times, those who live in the Kaliyuga." “No ṛṣis are born” means there are none who see [receive the revelation of] Mantras i.e. Vedic texts.”— Haradatta.

\[\text{śrūta ṛṣyas tu bhavanti kecit karma phala śeṣeṇa punaḥ saṃbhave \| 5 \|}\]

5. But some in their new birth, on account of a residue of the merit acquired by their Karma [in former lives], become [similar to] ṛṣis by their knowledge [of the Veda],

How is it then that men in our days, though they transgress the rules prescribed for students, learn the four Vedas with little trouble? [The answer is], By virtue of a residue of the reward [due] for the proper observance of those rules [of studentship] in a former Yuga. Therefore Apastamba says, Sūtra 6, — ‘But some,’ etc. New existence means ’new birth [life].’ — Haradatta.

So according to Apastamba the title “rishi” that may be given is honorific only and does not indicate one who has transcendental cognition.

\[\text{yathā śvetaketuḥ \| 6 \|}\]

6. Like śvetaketu.

An example of this [follows, Sūtra 6]:—Like śvetaketu. For śvetaketu learned the four Vedas in a short time; as we read in the — Čāndogya Upanishad (Prapāṭhaka 6:1) —

Haradatta

\[\text{yat kiṃ ca samāhito brahma py ācāryād upayuṅkte brahmavad eva tasmin phalaṃ bhavati \| 7}\]

7. And whatever else, besides the Veda, [a student] who obeys the rules learns from his teacher, that brings the same reward as the Veda.

8. Also, if desirous to accomplish something [be it good or evil], he thinks it in his mind, or pronounces it in words, or looks upon it with his eye, even so it will be; thus teach [those who know the law].

9. [The duties of a student consist in] acts to please the spiritual teacher, the observance [of rules] conducive to his own welfare, and industry in studying.

A proper reason to touch a woman would be when trying to help her, support her, help her up, steady her from falling etc. Or in the case of a health service provider, for diagnostic or therapeautic purposes.

11. A Vedic text declares, ‘He shall be covered in dust, have dirty teeth, and speak the truth.’

This sūtra affirms that a student should not pay much attention to his physical appearance but should focus on the cultivation of higher qualities — like speaking the truth — it is said that all the virtues rest upon the principal of truth.

12. Those teachers, who instructed his teacher in that branch of learning which he [the student] studies with him, [are to be considered as] spiritual teachers [by the student].

The term vamśyah, ‘ancestor,’ for the teacher’s teacher is explained by the circumstance, that Hindus consider a ‘school,’ consisting of a succession of teachers and students, as a spiritual family, and call it a vidyāvaṃśa, vidyā-parampara. (Manu 2:205.)

13. But if [a teacher], in front of his [student], touches the feet of any other persons, then he [the student also] must touch their feet, [as long as he is] in that [state of student-ship].

‘Another [commentator] says, “He, the student, must touch their feet [at every meeting] from that time [when he first saw his teacher do it].” Because the word “but” is used in the Sūtra, he must do so even after he has returned home [on completion of his studies].’ — Haradatta.

14. If [a student] has more than one teacher, the alms [collected by him] are at the disposal of him to whom he is [currently] bound.
‘More than one teacher,’ ie. several, who have taught him the several Vedas. Each Brahmin generally knowing one Veda only. This passage shows, that the young Brahmins in olden time, just as now, went from one teacher to the other, learning from each what he knew. The rules, which seemingly enjoin a student to stay with one and the same teacher, refer only to the principle, that the student must stay with his teacher, until he has learnt the subject which he began with him.

15. When [a student] has returned home [from his teacher], he shall give [whatever he may be given as alms] to his mother.

Here the sūtra doesn’t refer to food but rather money received as alms or a donation.

‘Religious ceremonies’, ie. the wedding and the like. For them he may use it optionally. He, ie. on failure of the teacher; the father, on failure of the father; the mother, on failure of all [the student] himself. — Haradatta.

19. After having studied as many [branches of] sacred learning as he can, he shall procure in a righteous manner the fee for [the teaching of] the Veda [to be given to his teacher], according to his power. (Manu 2:245 & 246; Yajñī. 1:51)

The honorarium due to the teacher is paid only once the graduate has started earning.

20. But, if the teacher has fallen into distress, he (the student) may take [the fee] from an Ugra or from a śūdra.

‘The word Ugra denotes either the offspring of a Vaiṣya and of a śūdra woman, or a twice-born man, who perpetrates dreadful deeds.’ — Haradatta.

The Ugra can also refer to a person who is a butcher or hunter by trade, or works in a undharmic profession. Normally one would not accept anything from such people but in order to assist his teacher he may accept money from him.

See above, 1:1:1:13, and note. The purpose of the connection with the teacher is education, if the teacher is incompetent then he should be abandoned.

Here also Haradatta states that the permission to leave the teacher is to be restricted to those who have not solemnly bound themselves to their teacher by undergoing the ceremony of initiation.

6. And the teacher shall not mention the possessions of the [student] with the intention to obtain them.

   ‘If the teacher comes to the house of his [former] student [who has become a householder], he shall, for instance, not say, “Oh, what a beautiful dish!” in such a manner; that his desire to obtain it becomes apparent.’ — Haradatta.

7. But some declare, that, if a student who has bathed [after completing his studies] is called by his teacher or has gone to see him, he shall not take off that [garland or other ornaments] which he wears according to the law at the time [of that ceremony].

   This opinion is contrary to Apastamba’s view given in Sūtras 2 and 3 above.

8. He shall not sit on a seat higher [than that of his teacher].

9. Nor on a seat that has more legs [than that of his teacher].

10. Nor on a seat that stands more firmly fixed [on the ground than that of his teacher].

   ‘When he gives to his teacher a wooden seat [with legs], he shall not sit on a cane-seat [without legs], for the latter touches the ground on all sides.’ — Haradatta.

11. Nor shall one sit or lie on a couch or seat which is used [by the teacher].

12. If he is ordered [by his teacher], he shall on a journey ascend a carriage after him.

   This rule is an exception to 1. 2. 7. 5. Manu 2:204.

13. [At his teacher’s command] he shall also enter an assembly, ascend a roller [which his teacher drags along], sit on a mat of fragrant grass or a couch of straw [together with his teacher].

   ‘The roller is an implement used by farmers, with which the ploughed land is made even. If one person ascends it and another drags it along, the ground becomes even. If that is dragged by the teacher, the student shall ascend it at his command. He shall not disobey from fear of the unseemliness of the action.’ — Haradatta.

Rules for Vedic Study

śrāvanīyaṁ paṝṇamāsyāṁ adhyāyam upākṛtya māsaṁ pradoṣe na-adhiyīta || 1 ||

1. After having performed the Upākarma for studying the Veda on the full moon of the month Śrāvana [July-August], he shall for one month not study in the evening.

The Upakarma is the ceremony which is performed every year at the beginning of the course of study. It is in fact the solemn opening of the Brahmanic term. Because Āpastamba uses the word evening [ie. first part of the night] it is not a fault to study later in the night. — Haradatta. Manu 4:95; Yajñ 1:42, 143;

taiṣyaṁ paṝṇamāsyāṁ rohiniyāṁ vā viramet || 2 ||

2. On the full moon of the month of Pauṣa [December-January], or under the constellation Rohini, one shall leave off studying the Veda.

The term lasts therefore for five months; [ie. latter half of Śrāvana, Bhādrapada, Aśvina, Kārttika, Mārgaśirṣa, and the first half of Pauṣa.] The Rohini day of Pauṣa is meant.

ardhaṇaḥcamāṁś catuḥ māsāṁ ity eke || 3 ||

3. Some declare, [that he shall study] for four months and a half.

According to this latter opinion the Upakarma should be performed on the full moon of Bhādrapada, as has been taught in another work (Manu 4:95); the [time of the] Utsarjana, [the solemn closing of the term] should be advanced; and after the Utsarjana has been performed, one may study the Veda during the bright nights of each month until the full moon of Śrāvana, in order to fix in one's mind the part learned already and in the dark fortnight of each month one may study the Vedāṅgas, ie. grammar and the rest (Manu 4:98). On the full moon of Śrāvana the Upakarma should be performed once more, and that part of the Veda should be studied which has not yet been learned. — Haradatta.

4. He shall avoid studying the Veda on a high-road.

5. Or he may study it [on a high-road], after having smeared [a space] with cow-dung.

6. He shall never study in a cremation-ground nor anywhere near it within the throw of a Samya.

The Samya is either the pin in the bullock's yoke or the round stick, about a foot and a half in length, which is used for the preparation of the Vedi, (Manu 4:116; Yajñ. 1:148.)

grāmeṇa-adhyavasite kṣetreṇa vā na-anadhyāyaḥ || 7 ||

7. If a village has been built over [a cremation-round] or its surface has been cultivated as a field, the recitation of the Veda [in such a place] is not prohibited.

If one has not been informed that it used to be a cremation-ground.

11. But if [a student and] a śūdra woman merely look at each other, the recitation of the Veda must be interrupted,

13. If he, who is about to study the Veda, wishes to talk to a menstruating woman, he shall first speak to a Brāhmaṇa and then to her, then again speak to a Brāhmaṇa, and afterwards study. Thereby the children [of that woman] will be blessed.

     The last part of the Sūtra may also be interpreted: ‘Thus she will be blessed with children.’ — Haradatta.

antaḥ śavam || 14 ||

14. [He shall not study in a village] in which a corpse lies; (Manu 4:108; Yajñ. 1:148.)

antaś cāṇḍālam || 15 ||

15. Nor where cāṇḍālas lives.

18. And if outcasts have entered the village, he shall not study on that day.

     Haradatta explains Bāhya, ‘outcasts,’ by ‘robbers, such as Ugras and Niśādas.’

api satsu || 19 ||

19. Nor if worthy men [have come]. (Yajñ. 1:150)

     ‘Worthy men’ are notable personages that should be received and treated with honour.

saṃdhāvanu stanite rātrim || 20 ||

20. If it thunders in the evening, [he shall not study] during the night. (Manu 4:106; Yajñ. 1:145.)

---

5 The only caste that is said by the most ancient Dharma sūtras to be untouchable by birth is that of cāṇḍālas and the word cāṇḍāla has a technical meaning in these works as stated above (p.81) under cāṇḍāla. Gaut. (IV.15 and 23) says that the cāṇḍāla is the offspring of a śūdra from a brāhmaṇa woman and that he is the most reprehensible among the pratilomas.
This rule refers to the rainy season. [For thunder] at other [seasons] he orders below a longer [cessation]. — Haradatta.

28. At the new moon, [he shall not study] for two days and two nights. (Manu 4:113; Yajñ. 1:146.)

"For two days," ie. on the day of the new moon and the preceding one, the fourteenth of the half month." — Haradatta.

1. [Nor shall he study] on the days of the full moons of those months in which the cāturmāsyā sacrifice may be performed [nor on the days preceding them].

The three full-moon days are Phālgunī [February-March], Aṣāḍhi [June-July], Kārttika [October-November].

Cāturmāsyā is the period of the rainy season lasting for 4 months.

2. At the time of the Vedotsarga, on the death of Gurus, at the Aṣṭakā-śrāddha, and at the time of the Upākarma, [he shall not study] for three days;

The construction is very irregular, the first noun standing in the nominative and the rest in the locative A similar irregularity occurs below, 1:3:11:31. The Vedotsarga is the ceremony which is performed at the end of the Brahmanic term, in January. ‘In the case of the death of a Guru, the vacation begins with the day on which the death occurs. On the other occasions mentioned he shall not study on the day preceding [the ceremony], on the day [of the ceremony], nor on the day following it.’ — Haradatta. (Manu 4:119; Yajñ. 1:144.) ‘The Gurus’ intended here, are fathers-in-law, uncles, etc.

3. Likewise if near relations have died.

anubhāvināṃ ca parivāpanam || 6 ||

6. Persons who are younger [than the relation deceased], must shave [their hair and beard].

The word anubhāvinaḥ, is interpreted by Haradatta as ‘persons who are younger than the deceased.’

na samāvṛttā vaperann anyatra vihārād ity eke || 7 ||

7. Some declare, that post-graduate students who have returned home shall never shave, except if engaged in the initiation to a śrauta sacrifice.
Regarding the Diksha ‘initiation,’ see Aitareya Brāhmaṇa 1:1

atha-api brāhmaṇam, rikto vā eṣo- ‘napihito yan muṇḍas tasya-etad apidhāṇam yac-śikhā-iti 11 8 8

8. Now a Brāhmaṇa also declares, ‘Verily, an empty, uncovered [pot] is he, whose hair is shaved off entirely; the śikha [topknot] is his covering’

Hence it follows that the top-knot should not be shaved off, except in the case mentioned in the following Sūtra.

satreṣu tu vacanād vapanāṃ śikhāyāḥ 99 9

9. But at sacrificial sessions the topknot (śikha) must be shaved off, because it is so enjoined in the Veda.

Sattras, ‘sacrificial sessions,’ are sacrifices which last longer than twelve days.

10. Some declare, that, upon the death of the teacher, [the reading should be interrupted] for three days and three nights.

But in his opinion it should be twelve days, as declared above, Sūtra 4. — Haradatta. It appears, therefore, that this Sūtra is to be connected with Sūtra 4.

11. If [he hears of] the death of a learned Brāhmaṇa [śrotriya] before a, full year [since the death] has elapsed, [he shall interrupt his study] for one night [and day].

The ekaśṛkā, ‘solitary jackal,’ is now called Balu or Pheough, and is considered to be the constant companion of a tiger or panther. Its unharmonious cry is, in the present day also, considered to be an evil omen. (Yajñ. 1. 148; Manu 4:108, 115 & 123)

28. [And one shall discontinue studying] for a day and an evening, after having eaten food prepared in honour of a dead person [for whom the Sapiṇḍi-karaṇa has not yet been performed], (Manu 4:112; Yajñ. 1.146)

ā ca vipākāt || 29 ||

29. Or until the food [eaten on that occasion] is digested.

‘If that food has not been digested by the end of that time [ie. in the evening], he shall not study until it has been digested.’ — Haradatta.

aśrāddhena tu paryavadadhyāt || 30 ||

30. But he shall [always] eat in addition [to the meal given in honour of a dead person], food which has not been given at a sacrifice to the Manes.

Because in this Sūtra the expression “food not given at a śrāddha” occurs, some think that the preceding Sūtra refer to “food eaten at a śrāddha.” — Haradatta.

kāṇḍa upākaraṇe ca-amāṭkasya || 1 ||
1. [The recitation of the Veda shall be interrupted for a day and evening if he has eaten], on beginning a fresh Kāṇḍa [of his Veda], food given by a motherless person,

   The Black Yajur Veda, to which Apastamba belongs, is divided throughout into books called Kāṇḍas.

   kāṇḍasamāpane ca-apitṛkasya || 2 ||

2. And also if he has eaten, on the day of the completion of a Kāṇḍa, food given by a fatherless person.

   manuṣya prakṛtīnāṃ ca devānāṃ yajñe bhuktā-ity eke || 3 ||

3. Some declare, that [the recitation shall be interrupted for the same period of time], if one has eaten at a sacrifice offered in honour of gods who were formerly human.

   Haradatta names as such gods, Nandīśvara and Kubera. Other commentators, however, explain manuṣya-Prakṛti by manuṣya-mukha, ‘possessing human faces.’
   A similar rule occurs Gautama 16. 34, where a Manusya-yajña is mentioned as a cause for discontinuing the recitation of the Veda. In his commentary on Gautama, also, Haradatta is in doubt. He first refers the term to the sacraments like the Śimantonnayana, and then adds, that some explain it to mean ‘a sacrifice to gods who formerly were men’, but since such gods are few and sacrifices to then even rarer it makes more sense to interpret it as referring to ceremonies which are of a purely human interest such as saraments.

   paruṣitais taṇḍulair āma māṃsenā ca na-anadhyāyāḥ || 4 ||

4. Nor is the recitation interrupted, if he has eaten rice received the day before, or raw meat [though these things may have been offered in honour of the dead],

   This Sūtra is an exception to 1:3:10:28

   *tathā-oṣadhi vanaspati mūla phalaiḥ || 5 ||

6. When he performs the ceremony for beginning a Kāṇḍa, or when he studies the index of the Anuvākas of a [Kāṇḍa], he shall not study that [Kāṇḍa] on that day [nor in that night].

   Haradatta’s commentary on this Sūtra is very meagre and he leaves the word anuvākyam unexplained. I am not certain that my explanation is correct. But it is countenanced by the statements of the Gṛhya sūtras regarding the order of studying.

   upākaraṇa samāpanayoś ca pārāyaṇasya tāṃ vidyām || 7 ||
7. And if he performs the ceremonies prescribed on beginning or ending the recitation of one entire Veda, he shall not study that Veda [during that day].

Yajñ. 1. 145. This Śūtra is a jñāpaka or 'such a one which indicates the existence of a rule not expressly mentioned.' Above [1:3:9:1] the yearly performance of the Upakarma and Utsarga ceremonies for the beginning and end of the Brahmanic term has been prescribed. In this Śūtra the performance of the Upakarma and Utsarga at the beginning and completion of the Parāyana or the vow to go through a whole Veda is incidentally mentioned. Thence it may be inferred that these ceremonies must be likewise performed on the latter occasions, though no absolute rule to this effect has been given. Such jñāpakas are of frequent occurrence in all Śūtras, and constitute one of the chief difficulties of their interpretation.

20. During the spring festival and the festival [of Indra], in the month of Āṣāḍha [June-July], the study of an Anuvāka is forbidden.

According to Haradatta, Apastamba uses the word Anuvāka in order to indicate that smaller portions of the Veda may be studied. Others think, that by Anuvāka, the Samhita and the Brāhmaṇa are meant, and that the study of the Āngas is permitted. The Vasantotsava, or spring-festival, which, according to the Dramas, was, in olden times, kept all over India, falls, according to Haradatta, on the 13th of the first half of Caitra, about the beginning of April.

23. Before taking his morning-meal, he shall go to the water-side, and having purified himself, he shall recite aloud [a portion of the Veda] in a pure place, leaving out according to [the order of the] texts [what he has read the day before].

See Taittiriya Aranyaka 2:2:1 and 2; Aśv. Gri. Sūtra. 3:2:12. In our days this rule is usually not observed. Brāhmaṇas mostly recite at the daily Brahma-yajña, a ‘Veda-offering,’ the first verse, which symbolically comprises the whole Veda. A few learned Brahmans, still recite the whole of their śākha every year according to this rule of Apastamba.

24. If a break in study is enjoined [for the day, he shall recite the daily portion] mentally.

25. If lightning flashes continuously, or, thunder rolls continually, if a man has neglected to purify himself, if he has partaken of a meal in honour of a dead person, or if frost lies on the ground, [in these cases] they forbid the mental recitation [of the daily portion of the Veda]. \[\text{yāvad bhūmir vyudakā-ity eko} \]

28. Some [declare, that the recitation shall stop] until the ground is dry.

\[\text{ekena dvābhyaṃ vā-eteśām ā kālam} \]

29. If one or two [of the phenomena mentioned in Sūtra 27 appear, the recitation shall be interrupted] from that hour until the same hour next day.

30. In the case of an eclipse of the sun or of the moon, of an earthquake, of a whirlwind, of the fall of a meteor, or of a fire [in the village], at whatever time these events happen, the recitation of all the sacred sciences [Vedas and Aṅgas] must be interrupted from that hour until the same hour next day. (Yajñ. 1:145; Manu 4, 105, 118.)

Other commentators interpret the Sūtra in a different sense. They take it to mean:—‘And during the night [from the twelfth to the thirteenth of each half of the month, he shall not study at all, be it in or out of term].’

\textit{sārvakālikam āmnātam} \| 37 \|

\textit{yathā uktam anyad atāḥ pariṣatsu} \| 38 \|

38. Further particulars [regarding the interruption of the Veda-study may be learnt] from the [teaching and works of other] Vedic schools.

Haradatta thinks that by \textit{Pariṣad} Manu’s and other Dharma śāstras are meant. This explanation is, however not exact. Pariṣad, ‘assemblage,’ means, in the language of the śāstras, either a Paṅkti, an assemblage of learned Brahmans called together to decide some knotty point of law, or a Brahminical school, in which one studies a particular redaction of the Veda. The latter meaning is that applicable to this Śūtra. By \textit{Pariṣada} are here intended the Vedic schools, and their writings and teaching. Gautama also says, 16:49, \textit{Pratividyām yan smaranti smaranti}, [he shall observe the stoppages of the Veda-study] which they teach in [the writings belonging to] each of the Vedas.’

1. A Brāhmaṇa declares, ‘The daily recitation [of the Veda] is Tapas’

It procures as much reward as penance. — Haradatta. Manu 2:166; The phrase occurs frequently in the Brāhmaṇas, e.g. Taitt. Ar. 2:14:3
tatra śrūyate | sa yadi tiṣṭham āśīnaḥ śayāno vā svādhyāyam adhīte tapa eva tat tapyate tapo hi svādhyāya iti || 2 ||

2. In the same [sacred text] it is also declared, ‘Whether he recites the daily portion of the Veda standing, or sitting, or lying down, he performs austerity thereby; for the daily recitation is austerity.’

Regarding the proper position at the ‘Veda-offering,’ or daily recitation, see above, 1:3:11:23 and Taitt. Ar. 2:11:3. Passages similar to the first part of the sentence quoted in this sūtra occur Taitt. Ar. 2:12:3, and 15:3. It ought to be observed, that the Taitt. Ar. in both places has the word ‘vrajan,’ which is also read in the P. and P. U. MSS. The second part is taken apparently from the same work, 2:14, 2.

3. Now the Vājasaneyi Brāhmaṇa declares also, ‘The daily recitation is a sacrifice at which the Veda is offered. When it thunders, when lightning flashes or thunderbolts fall, and when the wind blows violently, these sounds take the place of the exclamations Vaṣaṭ [Vauṣaṭ and Svāhā]. Therefore he shall recite the Veda whilst it thunders, whilst lightning flashes and thunderbolts fall, and whilst the wind blows violently, lest the Vaṣaṭ [should be heard] in vain.’

See Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa 11:5, 6, 8, where a passage very similar to that quoted by Apastamba occurs. Vaṣaṭ and the other exclamations, which are pronounced by the Hotri priest, serve as signals for the Adhvaryu to throw the oblations into the fire.

4. The conclusion of the passage from that [Vājasaneyi Brāhmaṇa is found] in another śākha [of the Veda].

'Some suppose that the words Bhuḥ Bhuvah and Suvaḥ etc. [are to be used only] if one studies the Brāhmaṇa portion of the 'Veda, not everywhere.' — Haradatta.

6. If that is done, [if the passage of the Vājasaneyi Brāhmaṇa is combined with that quoted in Sūtras, the former stands] not in contradiction with the decision of the āryas.

Haradatta explains Kṣatriyas by visiṣṭah, ‘excellent ones,’ i. e. persons who know the law, and he gives Manu as an instance.

10. [But if you ask, why the decision of the āryas presupposes the existence of a Vedic passage, then I answer]:—All precepts were [originally] taught in the Brāhmaṇas, [but] these texts have been lost. Their [former existence] may, however, be inferred from usage.

How then is their existence known? ‘They are inferred from usage.’ “Usage” means the teaching of the law-books and the practice. From that it is inferred that Manu and other [authors of law-books] knew such texts of the Brāhmaṇas. For how could otherwise [Rishis like Manu] teach in their works or practise [such customs] for which no authority is now found? And certainly they were intimately connected with the revealed texts [ie. saw them]. — Haradatta.

Taitt. Ar. 2:10, 2 and 3, and Śatapatha Br loc. cit. 2. Haradatta observes, that some consider the Deva-yajña, mentioned in the Sūtra, to be different from the Vaiśvadeva, but that he holds it to be the same. Further he mentions, that some prescribe this Vaiśvadeva to be performed even if one has nothing to eat.

The pañca-mahā yajñās are the daily duties to be performed by the householder for the rest of his life. They are the requisitioning of the spiritual debts (ṛṇas) occurred through taking birth on this planet:

1. Pitṛ-ṛṇa — pitṛ yajña = debt to the parents and ancestors, requited through honouring parents and performing their cremation and the memorial rites for them and the ancestors after death.

2. Deva-ṛṇa — deva-yajña = debt to the gods requited by performing the homa and other periodic ceremonies in their honour.

3. Rṣi-ṛṇa — brahma-yajña = debt to the sages requited through study and teaching.

4. Manuṣya-ṛṇa — manuṣya-yajña = debt to society requited through feeding of strangers and caring for their needs.

5. Bhūta-ṛṇa — bhūta-yajña = debt to the environment and other creatures by ensuring their food supply.

Haradatta gives as an example the order to fetch water, and adds that a voluntary act on a former student's part ought not to be forbidden. In other words once a student has graduated the teacher has no authority to issue orders to him — he is completely independent but may if he wishes he may perform voluntary acts to please the teacher.

"om kāraḥ svarga dvāraṃ tasmād brahma- adhyeṣyamāṇa etad ādi pratipadyeta"  || 6  ||

6. The syllable ‘om’ is the door of heaven. Therefore he who is about to study the Veda, shall begin [his lesson] by [pronouncing] it. (Compare also Taitt. Ar. 1:2:4 and Manu 2:74.)

"vikathāṁ ca-anyāṁ kṛtvā-evan laukikyā vācā vyāvartate brahma"  || 7  ||

9. And in common life, at the occasion of ceremonies performed for the sake of welfare, the sentences shall be headed by this word, as, for instance, ‘[om] an auspicious day,’ ‘[Om] welfare,’ [Om] prosperity.’

The example given in the Śūtra is that of the Puṇyāha-vācana, which precedes every Grhya ceremony, and at which the sacrificer requests a number of invited Brāhmaṇas to wish him success. The complete sentences are, The sacrificer:—"Om karaṇaḥ puṇyāham bhavanto bruvanviti, ‘Om, wish that the day may be auspicious for the performance of the ceremony.’ The Brāhmaṇas:—"Om puṇyāham karaṇa iti, Om, may the day be auspicious for the ceremony.’ In the same manner the Brāhmaṇas afterwards wish ‘welfare,’ svasti, ‘prosperity,’ vriddhi ‘advancement’ to the sacrificer.

"avicikitsā yāvad brahma nigantavyam iti hārītaḥ"  || 11  ||

11. Hārīta declares, that the [whole] Veda must be studied under a vow of obedience until there is no doubt [regarding it in the mind of the student].
The meaning of Hārita is, that the vow of obedience is required for the Triḥsravana and Triḥ-sahavācana, which Apastamba exempted in the preceding Sūtra.
It follows from this rule that the Āngas or works explanatory of the Veda need not be studied under a vow of obedience.

The feet of all Gurus must be touched [every day] by a student who has graduated.

The word Gurus, ‘venerable persons,’ includes besides the teacher and persons mentioned in the preceding Sūtra, an elder brother, a maternal uncle, and all others who are one’s betters or elders. See above, 1. 2. 6, 29-35

And also on meeting them, after returning from a journey.

That is to say, whether he himself or the venerable persons undertook the journey.

— Haradatta.

The feet of [elder] brothers and sisters must be touched, according to the order of their seniority. (Manu 2:133.)

And respect [must] always [be shown to one's elders and betters], according to the injunction [given above and according to the order of their seniority].

See above, 1. 4, 13, 2.

He shall salute an officiating priest, a father-in-law, a father's brother, and a mother's brother, [though they may be] younger than he himself, and [when saluting] rise to meet them. (Manu 2:130.)

The term used for “salutation” is abhīvādanam — which is a formal salution in which one introduces oneself, mentioning one's clan, Vedic school and the branch of Vedic studies that one has completed.

A friendship lasting for ten years with fellow citizens [is a reason for giving a salutation, and so is] a friendship, contracted at school, which has lasted for five years. But a learned Brāhmaṇa [known] for less than three years, must be saluted. (Manu 11:134.)

This verse, which is found with slight variations in most Smṛtis, contains, according to Haradatta, an instruction given by a teacher to his student.

kusalam avara vayasaṃ vayasyaṃ vā  prcchet  || 26  ||

26. A younger person or one of equal age he shall ask, about his well-being verse the above and the following, Sūtras. But his quotation has only a faint resemblance to our text.

He shall address a woman in order to reassure her, and do it in these terms:—
‘Mother, or sister, what can I do for you? Don’t be afraid!’ etc. — Haradatta.
At the commencement of every sacred rite or after certain activities one is required to sip water 3 times from the palm of one’s right hand while reciting certain mantras determined by one’s lineage. Srivaishnavas and Smarta recite:— om acyutāya namaḥ, oṃ anantāya namaḥ, oṃ govindāya namaḥ. This is followed by aṅga sparṣā — touching various parts of the body while reciting the names of Vishnu.

1. When he shows his respect to Gurus or aged persons or guests, when he offers a burnt-oblation [or other sacrifice], when he does japa at dinner, when sipping water and during the [daily] recitation of the Veda, his garment [or his sacrificial thread] shall pass over his left shoulder and under his right arm. (Taitt. Ar. 2:1:2 seq.; Manu 4, 58.)

2. By sipping [pure] water, that has been collected on the ground, he becomes pure. Pure water is that which a cow will drink. Yajñ. 1. 192; Manu 5:128.

3. For he, whom a pure person causes to sip water, [becomes also pure]. The ceremony of ‘sipping water’ may be performed in two ways; either the ‘person sipping’ may take the water out of a river, pond, etc., or he may get the water poured into his hand by another person. But, according to Apastamba, he must not take a pot or gourd in his left hand and pour the water into his right, as some Smṛtis allow. The reason for this rule is, that Apastamba considers it essential that both hands should be used in conveying the water to the mouth; see also above, 1. 1. 4, 21. This agrees with the custom now followed, which is to bend the right hand into the form of a cow’s ear, and to touch the right wrist with the left hand while drinking.

4. He shall not sip rain. Some think, that this Sūtra is intended to forbid also the drinking of rain-water. Other commentators declare that, according to this Sūtra, it is allowed to use for ‘sipping’ drops of water which fall from a vessel suspended by ropes because the Sūtra emphatically excludes “rain-drops” only. — Haradatta.
5. [He shall not sip water] from a [natural] cleft in the ground.

*taptābhiṣ ca-akāraṇāt || 6 ||

6. He shall not sip water heated [at the fire] except for a particular reason [as sickness]. (Manu 2:61.)

Because the term ‘heated by fire’ is used, there is no objection to water heated by the rays of the sun. In the same manner the use of “hot” water only is usually forbidden in the Smṛtis. — Haradatta.

*rikta pāṇir vayasa udyamya-apa upasṛṣet || 7 ||

7. He who raises his empty hands [in order to scare] birds, [becomes impure and] shall wash [his hands].

Because the phrase ‘with empty hands’ is used, he commits no fault if he raises his hand, holding a stick or a clod. Some declare, that the term ‘touching water’ [rendered by ‘washing’] means “sipping water.”- Haradatta.

*sakti viṣaye na muhūrtam apy aprayataḥ syāt || 8 ||

8. If he can [find water to sip] he shall not remain impure [even] for a muhurta.

10. Purification [by sipping water] shall not take place whilst he is [standing] in the water.

*uttīrya tv ācāmet || 11 ||

11. Also, when he has crossed a river, he shall purify himself by sipping water.

Haradatta considers that Apastamba holds ‘crossing a river’ to cause impurity. The natural and probably the right interpretation, however, is that rejected by Haradatta, ‘But he shall sip water after having come out [of the river or tank].’

*na- aprokṣitam indhanam aṃvāv ādadyāt || 12 ||

12. He shall not place fuel on the fire, without having sprinkled it [with water].

“On the fire used for Vedic or Smarta sacrifices or for household purposes.” . . . Some declare, that [the fuel need not be sprinkled with water] if used for the kitchen fire.’ — Haradatta.
13. [If he is seated in company with] other unclean persons on a seat consisting of a confused heap of straw, and does not touch them, he may consider himself pure.

\[tathā tṛṇa kāṣṭheṣu nikhāteṣu \| 14 \|

17. Or he becomes pure, after having washed that part [of his body] and having touched it with fire and again washed it, as well as his feet, and having sipped water.

This second proceeding is adopted in case the dog has touched the hands or the lower parts of the body, as may be learnt by the comparison of a verse of Manu.

\[agnin na-aprayata āsidet \| 18 \|

\[na ca-enam upadhāmet \| 20 \|

20. Nor shall one blow on fire [to extinguish it]. (Manu 4, 53.)

Haradatta mentions other explanations of this Sūtra. Some say, that the śrauta fire may be kindled by blowing, because that is ordained particularly in the Vājasaneyaka, but that the domestic fire is not to be treated so. Others again consider the rule absolute, and say, that a hollow reed or bellows must be used for kindling the fire, lest drops of saliva should fall upon it.

Haradatta takes acam here to mean ‘to drink water,’ and thinks that it is forbidden to do this standing or in a bent position. Others refer the prohibition to ‘sipping water for the sake of purification,’ and translate, He shall not sip water standing or in a bent position [except in case of necessity],’ ie. if the bank of the river is so high that he cannot reach the water sitting down and in this case he shall enter it up to his thighs or up to his navel.

2. Sitting he shall sip water [for purification] thrice, the water penetrating to his heart. (Manu 2:60 and 62; 5:139; and Yajñ. 1. 20 and 27)

Haradatta observes, that the further particulars regarding purification by sipping water must be supplied from other Smṛtis. The rule quoted by him is as follows:—’The performer should be sitting in a pure place, not on a seat, except when sipping water after dinner, and should sip thrice from his hand, water which is free from bubbles and foam, and which he has attentively regarded, in such a quantity as would cover a Mâśa bean. The water sipped by a Brahman should reach his heart, that sipped by a Kshatriya the throat, and that sipped by a Vaiśya the palate. A śūdra sips once as much as to wet his tongue.’

11. He does not become impure by the hair [of his moustach] getting into his mouth, as long as he does not touch them with his hand. (Manu 5:141.)

Haradatta observes that this Sūtra shows, that every other foreign substance brought with the food into the mouth, makes the food ‘leavings’ and the eater impure.
12. If [in talking], drops [of saliva] are perceived to fall from his month, then he shall sip water.

Manu 5:141 declares sipping to be unnecessary in this case.

13. Some declare, that if [the saliva falls] on the ground, he need not sip water.

14. (Manu 5:145.)

15. [Or he may touch] moist cow-dung, wet herbs, or moist earth.

The knife used for killing the animal should not be used also in it’s preparation.

17. One shall not bite off — with the teeth [pieces from] cakes [roots or fruits].

The polite way of eating would be to break or cut off bite size pieces.

18. One shall not eat in the house of a [relation within six degrees] where a person has died, before the ten days [of impurity] have elapsed. (Manu 4.217)

The term “ten days” is used in order to indicate the time of impurity generally. In some cases, as that of a Kshatriya, this lasts longer. In other cases, where the impurity lasts thirty-six hours only, [the abstention from dining in such houses is shorter.]’ — Haradatta.

Haradatta quotes a passage from Baudhāyana, which enumerates as ‘unclean things’ here intended, ‘hair, worms or beetles, nail-parings, excrements of rats.’ The rule must be understood as the preceding, i.e. in case these things have been cooked with the food.

taila sarpiṣī tu- upayojayed udake- ‘avadhāya || 16 ||

16. Oil and clarified butter [bought in the market] he may use, after having sprinkled them with water.

    Having sprinkled them with water and purified them by boiling; or, according to others, mixing them with so much water as will not spoil them — Haradatta.

kṛta annaṃ paryuṣitam akhādyā apeya anādyam || 17 ||

17. Prepared food which has stood for a night, must neither be eaten nor drunk, (Manu 4:211; Yajñ. 1.167)

    The Sanskrit has two terms for ‘eating;’ the first ‘khād’ applies to hard substances, the second ‘ad’ to soft substances

    This rule is obviously applicable in a hot climate when fridges are unavailable.

śuktaṃ ca || 18 ||

18. Nor [should prepared food] that has turned sour [be used in any way]. (Manu 4, 211; 5:9; Yajñ. 1. 167.)

phāṇita pṛthuka taṇḍula karambharuja saktu śāka māṃsa piṣṭa kṣīra vikāra oṣadhi vanaspati mūla phala varjam || 19 ||

19. [The preceding two rules do] not [hold good in regard to] the juice of sugar-cane, roasted rice grains, porridge prepared with whey, roasted barley, gruel, vegetables, meat, flour, milk and preparations from it, roots and fruits of herbs and trees. (Manu 5:10, 24 and 25.)

śuktaṃ ca-apara yogam || 20 ||
20. [Substances which have turned] sour without being mixed with anything else [are to be avoided].

   According to Haradatta, Apastamba returns once more to the question about sour food, in order to teach that dishes prepared with curds and other sour substances may be eaten.

\textit{sarvaṃ madyam apeiyaṃ} \ || 21 \ ||

21. All intoxicating drinks are forbidden.

\textit{tathā-ekākaṃ payaḥ} \ || 22 \ ||

22. Likewise sheep’s milk, (Manu 5:8; Yajñ. 1. 170.)

\textit{uṣṭrī kṣīra mṛgī kṣīra sandhinī kṣīra yamasū kṣīrāṇī-iti} \ || 23 \ ||

23. Likewise the milk of camels, of does, of animals that give milk while big with young, of those that bear twins, and of [one-hoofed animals], (Manu 5:8, 9; Yajñ 1:170.)

   ‘Sandhinī’, translated by “females that give milk while big with young,” means, according to others, “female animals that give milk once a day.” — Haradatta.

\textit{dhenoś ca-anirdasāyāḥ} \ || 24 \ ||

24. Likewise the milk of a cow [buffalo-cow or she-goat] during the [first] ten days [after their giving birth to young ones], (Manu 5:8.)

\textit{tathā kīlāla oṣadhīnāṃ ca} \ || 25 \ ||

25. Likewise [food mixed] with herbs which serve for preparing intoxicating liquors,

\textit{karaṇja palaṇḍu parārīkāḥ} \ || 26 \ ||

26. [Likewise] red garlic, onions, and leeks, (Manu 5:5; Yajñ I.176)

\textit{yac ca-anyat paricakṣate} \ || 27 \ ||

27. Likewise anything else which [those who are learned in the law] forbid.

   Haradatta observes that Apastamba, finding the list of forbidden vegetables too long, refers his students to the advice of the (worthy people) Siṣṭas. The force of this Sūtra is exactly the same as that of 1. 3, 11, 38.

\textit{tyāktva bhojyaṃ iti hi brāhmaṇam} \ || 28 \ ||

28. Mushrooms ought not to be eaten; that has been declared in a Brāhmaṇa Text; (Yajñ. 1:171)

29. [Nor the meat] of one-hoofed animals, of camels, of the Gayal [wild cow], of village pigs, of Sarabhas, and of cattle.
One-hoofed animals are horses, donkeys and mules. The camel, Gayal, and Sarabha are mentioned as ‘forbidden animals,’ Satapatha Br. 1. 2. 1. 8; Aitareya Br. 2:1:8; see also Manu 5:11:18 Yajñ 1:172. 176

dhenu anaḍuhor bhakṣyam || 30 ||

kukkuṭo vikirāṇām || 32 ||
32. Amongst birds that scratch with their feet for food, the [tame] cock [must not be eaten]. (Yajñ. 1.176.)

plavaḥ pratudām || 33 ||
33. Amongst birds that feed thrusting forward their beak, the [heron, called] Plava [or Sakaṭabila, must not be eaten]. (Manu 5:12; Yajñ. 1:172.)

kravya adah || 34 ||
34. Carnivorous [birds are forbidden], (Manu 5:12 Yajñ. 1:172)

haṃsa bhāsa cakravāka suparṇāś ca || 35 ||
35. Likewise the swan, the Bhāsa, the Brāhmaṇī duck, and the falcon. [Yajñ. 1:172.)

kruñca krauñca vārdhrāṇasa lakṣmana varjam || 36 ||
36. Common cranes and Sāras-cranes [are not to be eaten] with the exception of the leather-nosed Lakṣmaṇa. (Manu 5:12; Yajñ. 1:72.)

Other commentators take the whole Sūtra as one compound, and explain it as an exception to Sūtra 34. In that case the translation runs thus:—[‘Carnivorous birds are forbidden] except the Kruñca, Krauñca, Vārdhrāṇasa, and Lakṣmaṇa. — Haradatta. This translation is objectionable, because both the Kruñcas, now called Kulam or kūnc, and the Krauñca, the red-crested crane, now called Saras [Cyrus], feed on grain. Kruñcakrauñcau is a Vedic dual.

pañca nakhānaṃ godhā kacchāpa śvāvīt śalyaka khaṅga śaśa pūtikhaṣa varjam || 37||
37. Five-toed animals [ought not to be eaten] with the exception of the iguana, the tortoise, the porcupine, the hedgehog, the rhinoceros, the hare, and the Pūtikhaṣa.

Manu 5:18; Yajñ. 1. 17 7. Pūtikhaṣa is, according to Haradatta, an animal resembling a hare, and found in the Himālayas.

abhakṣyaś ceṭo matsyānām || 38 ||

39. Nor the snake-headed fish, nor the alligator, nor those which live on flesh only, nor those which are misshaped [like] mermen.

Haradatta closes this chapter on flesh-eating by quoting Manu 5:56, which declares flesh-eating, drinking spirituous liquor, and promiscuous intercourse to be allowable, but the abstinence there from are of greater merit. He states that the whole chapter must be understood in this sense.

8. He shall not be too eager after [such a way of living]. He shall leave it when he has obtained a [lawful] livelihood.

Haradatta quotes, in support of the last Sūtras, a passage of the Cāndogya Upanishad, 1.10. 1, and one from the Rig Veda, 8.13, according to which it would be lawful to eat even impure food, as a dog’s entrails, under such circumstances. Other commentators explain this and the preceding three Sūtras differently. According to them the translation would run thus:—‘If he himself does not find any livelihood [in times of distress, he may dwell even with low-caste people who give him something to eat, and] he may eat [food given by them] paying for it with [some small gift in] gold or with animals.’ This second explanation is perhaps preferable.

13. According to some [food offered by people] of any caste, who follow the laws prescribed for them, except that of śūdras, may be eaten.

14. [In times of distress] even the food of a śūdra, who lives under one’s protection for the sake of Dharma, [may be eaten]. (Yajñ. 1.166.)

15. He may eat it, after having touched it [once! with gold or with fire. He shall not be too eager after [such a way of living]. He shall leave it when he obtains a [lawful] livelihood. (Manu 4, 223)

16. food from a multitude of givers must not be eaten, (Manu 4:209)

17. Nor food offered by a general invitation [to all comers]. (Manu 4;209; Yajñ. I;168.)

18. food offered by an artisan must not be eaten,  (Manu 4;210, 215; Yajñ. 1. 162-164.)

19. Nor [that of men] who live by the use of arms [with the exception of Kshatriyas], (Yajñ. 1. 164.)

20. Nor [that of those] who live by letting lodgings or land.

21. A [professional] physician [is a person whose food must not be eaten]. (Manu 4, 212; Yajñ. 1. 162.)

22. [Also] a usurer,  (Manu 4.210; Yajñ. 1.161.)
23. [Also] a Brāhmaṇa who has performed the Dikṣaniyeṣṭi [or initiatory ceremony of the Soma sacrifice] before he has bought the king [Soma].

‘That is to say, one who has begun, but not finished a Soma-sacrifice.’ — Haradatta. Manu 4, 210, and Gopatha Brāhmaṇa 3, 19.

29. [Likewise a Brāhmaṇa] who offers substances that are not fit for a sacrifice,

For example, he who offers human blood in a magic rite.’ — Haradatta.

cārī || 30 ||

30. [Likewise] a spy,

Haradatta explains cārī, translated by ‘spy,’ to mean ‘a secret adherent of the śakta sect’ [gūḍhacari śaktaḥ]. The existence of this sect in early times has not hitherto been proved.

avidhinā ca pravrajitah || 31 ||

31. [Also] a person who has become an ascetic without [being authorised thereto by] the rules [of the law], Haradatta gives the śakyas or Bauddhas as an instance. But it is doubtful, whether Apastamba meant to refer to them, though it seems probable that heretics are intended.

\[yaś ca-agnīṇaḥ apāsyati \| 32 \|

33. Likewise a learned Brāhmaṇa who avoids everybody, or eats the food of anybody, or neglects the [daily] recitation of the Veda, [and] he whose [only living] wife is of the śūdra caste.

Who avoids everybody, ie. who neither invites nor dines with anybody Haradatta.

(Manu 4:207; Yajñī 1:161, 162)

Another commentator explains anika, translated above ‘he who learns the Veda from his son,’ by ‘a money-lender,’ and combines pratyupaviśtaḥ with this word, ie. a money-lender who sits with his debtor hindering him from fulfilling his duties.’ This manner of forcing a debtor to pay, which is also called ācarita [see Manu 8:49], is, though illegal, resorted to sometimes even now.

\[punya iti kauṣṭhaḥ \| 4 \|

4. Kautsa declares, that it is he who is virtuous.

‘virtuous’ means not only ‘following his lawful occupations,’ but particularly ‘practising austerities, reciting prayers, and offering burnt-oblations.’ — Haradatta.

\[yaḥ kaś cid dadyād iti vārṣyāyaṇiḥ \| 5 \|
5. Vārṣyāyani declares, that it is every giver [of food].

6. For if [it is said that] guilt remains with the sinner [who committed a crime, then food given by him] may be eaten [because the blame cannot leave the sinner]. But if [it be said that] blame can leave [the sinner at any time, then food given by the sinner still may be eaten because] he becomes pure by the gift [which he makes].

\[ śuddhā bhikṣā bhoktavyā-eka kuṇikau kāṇva kutsau tathā puṣkarasādīḥ \]

7. Offered food (alms) which is pure may be eaten, according to Eka, Kuṇika, Kanva, Kutsa, and Puṣkarasādi.

8. Vārṣyāyani’s opinion is, that [food] given unasked [may be accepted] from anybody.

\[ puṇyasaya- īpsato bhoktavyam \]

9. [Food offered] willingly by a holy man may be eaten.

\[ puṇyasya-apy anīpsato na bhoktavyam \]

10. Food given unwillingly by a holy man ought not to be eaten.

Another commentator explains this Sūtra thus:—’He need not eat the food offered by a righteous man, if he himself does not wish to do so.’ — Haradatta.

\[ yataḥ kutaś ca- abhyudyatam bhoktavyam \]

11. Food offered unasked by any person whatsoever may be eaten,

In other words — if food is offered spontaneously by a person, whatever it may be one, may eat it.

\[ na-ananiyogapūrvam iti hārītah \]

12. But not if it be given after an express previous announcement; thus says Hārita

\[ atha purāṇe ślokāv udāharanti \]

\[ udyatām āḥṛtām bhikṣāṃ purastād aprveditām | bhojyām mene praṇāpatir api duṣkrta kārīṇah | na tasya pitaro ‘aśnanti dāsa varṣāṇi pañca ca | na ca havayāṃ vahaty agnir yas tām abhy adhimanyata iti \]
13. Now they quote also in a Purana the following two verses:—

The Lord of creatures has declared, that food offered unasked and brought by the giver himself, may be eaten, though [the giver be] a sinner, provided the gift has not been announced beforehand. The Manes of the ancestors of that man who spurns such food, do not eat [his oblations] for fifteen years, nor does the fire carry his offerings [to the gods].’ (Manu 4:248 and 249)

‘The food given by a physician, a hunter, a surgeon, a fowler, an unfaithful wife, or a non-reproductive person (sāṇḍa) must not be eaten.’ (Manu 4:211, 212.)

‘The murderer of a Brāhmaṇa learned in the Veda heaps his guilt on his guest, an innocent man on his calumniator, a thief set at liberty on the king, and the petitioner on him who makes false promises.’

Regarding the liberation of the thief see Apastamba 1:9, 25, 4. A similar verse occurs Manu 8:317, which has caused the confusion observable in many MSS.

1. One shall not fulfil the sacred duties merely in order to acquire material gains [such as fame, gain, and honour].

fruit, shade and fragrance [are the accessory advantages].

7. But that is Dharma, the practice of which wise men of the three twice-born castes praise; what they blame, is Adharma.

The Sūtra is intended to show how the law should be ascertained in difficult cases. Haradatta quotes here the passage of Yajñ. 1. 9, on Pariṣads, and states that the plural āryāḥ shows that three or four must be employed to arrive at a decision. See also Manu 12:108 seq.

11. In times of distress he may trade in lawful merchandise, avoiding the following [kinds], that are forbidden:— (Manu 4:6, 10:82, Yajñ. 3:35)
This Sūtra, which specifies only one part of a Vaiśya’s occupations as permissible for Brāhmaṇas in distress, implies, according to Haradatta, that his other occupations also, as well as those of a Kshatriya, are permissible.

12. [Particularly] slavery, condiments and liquids, dyes, perfumes, food, skins, heifers, substances used for gluing [such as lac], water, young cornstalks, substances from which alcohol may be extracted, red and black pepper, corn, meat products, weapons, and the hope of rewards for meritorious deeds. (Manu 10:86-89; Yajñ. 3:36-39)

‘the hope of rewards for meritorious deeds’ — this refers to the trading in ‘indulgences’ — i.e. receiving money for chanting mantras, taking ceremonial baths and doing pious deeds for others — in these cases the merit is said to be transferred to the sponsor.

13. Among [the various kinds of] grain one shall especially not sell sesame or rice [except he have grown them himself].

The exception stated above, is given by Haradatta on the authority of Manu 10:90; Yajñ. 3:39.

14. The exchange of the one of these [above mentioned goods] for the other is likewise unlawful.

15. But food [may be exchanged] for food, and slaves for slaves, and condiments for condiments, and perfumes for perfumes, and learning for learning.

A brāhmaṇa may thus earn a commission obtained through facilitating an exchange of the stock mentioned.

From the permission to exchange learning for learning, it may be known that it is not lawful to sell it — i.e. teach for a wage.’ — Haradatta. (Manu 10:94)

16. Let him trade with lawful merchandise which he has not bought.

muñja balbajair mūla phalaiḥ || 1 ||

1. With Muñja-grass, Balbaja-grass [and articles made of them], roots, and fruits, ṭṛṇa kāṣṭhair a vikṛtaḥ || 2 ||

2. And with [other kinds of] grass and wood which have not been worked up [into objects of use].

Since it is known that Muñja and Balbaja are kinds of grass, it may be inferred from their being especially mentioned [in Śūtra I] that objects made of them [may be also sold] — Haradatta.

na-atyantam anvavasyet || 3 ||

3. One shall not be too eager [after such a livelihood].

vr̥ttim prāpya viramet || 4 ||

4. If one obtains [another lawful] livelihood, one shall leave off [trading].

(Yajñ 3:35)

na pattaiḥ saṃvyavahāro vidyate || 5 ||

5. Social interaction with fallen people is not ordained. (Manu 11:180.)

tathā-apapātraiḥ || 6 ||

6. Nor with Apapātras.

Regarding the definition of the word Apapātra, see above, 1:5:16:29

atha patantyāni || 7 ||

7. Now [follows the enumeration of] the actions which cause loss of caste [Patanīya].

steyam ābhiśastyāṃ puruṣa vadho brahma ujjhāṃ garbha śātanam mātuḥ pitur iti yoni sambandhe saha-apatyē strī gamanāṃ surā pāṇam asaṃyoga saṃyogah || 8 ||

8. [These are] (a) stealing [gold], (b) crimes whereby one becomes an Abhiśasta, (c) homicide, (d) neglect of the Vedas, (e) causing abortion, (f) incestuous connection with maternal or paternal uncles or aunts, (g) and with the offspring of such persons (cousins), (h) alcoholism, and (i) socializing with persons the interaction with whom is forbidden.

The crimes by which a person becomes Abhiśasta are enumerated below, 1:9:24:6 seq. where an explanation of the term will be given.
gurvi sakhiṃ guru sakhiṃ ca  gatvā-anyāṃś ca para talpān || 9 ||

9. That man falls who has sex with a female friend of a female Guru, or with a female friend of a male Guru, or with any married woman.

   Regarding the ‘male Gurus’ see above. By ‘female Gurus’ their wives are meant.

na-aguru talpe  patati-ity eke || 10 ||

10. Some [teachers declare], that he does not fall by having sex with any other married female except his teacher’s wife.

   ie. He need not perform so heavy a penance if the sex is consensual.

adharmāṇāṃ tu satatam ācāraḥ || 11 ||

11. Constant commission of [other] sins [besides those enumerated above] also causes a man to lose his caste.

atha-aśuci karāṇi || 12 ||

12. Now follows [the enumeration of] the acts which make people impure [Aśucikara].

śūdra gamanam ārya strīṇām || 13 ||

13. [These are] āryan women having sex with śūdras, pratiśiddhānāṃ māṃsa bhaḍaṇām || 14 ||

14. Eating the meat of forbidden [creatures], śuno manuṣyasya ca kukkuṭa sūkarāṇāṃ grāmyāṇāṃ kravyādasām || 15 ||

15. for example:— a dog, a human, village cocks or pigs or carnivorous animals, manuṣyāṇāṃ mūtra prūṣa prāśanam || 16 ||

16. Eating the excrements of humans,

   śūdra ucchiṣṭam apapātra āgamanaṅca āryāṇām || 17 ||

17. Eating what is left by a śūdra, āryans having sex with Apapātra women.

etāny api  pataniyāni-ity eke || 18 ||

18. Some declare, that these acts [causing impurity] also cause a man to lose his caste.

ato-  ‘anyāni doṣavanty aśuci karāṇi  bhavanti || 19 ||

19. Other acts besides those [enumerated] are causes of impurity.
doṣaṁ buddhvā na pūrvaḥ parebhyaḥ patitasya samākhyaṇe syād

20. He who learns [that a man has] committed a transgression, shall not be the first to make it known to others; but he shall avoid the [sinner], when performing religious ceremonies.

That is to say, he is not to invite the culprit to feasts given during religious ceremonies.’ — Haradatta.

Knowledge of the Self

adhyātmikān yogān anutiṣṭhen nyāya saṃhitān anaiścārikān || 1 ||

1. One shall strive by all means to acquire [the knowledge of] the Ātman, which results in the [destruction of the passions, and] which prevent the wandering [of the mind from its ideal, and fix it on the contemplation of the Atman].

The knowledge of the Vedānta and the means which prepare one for the knowledge of the Atman, the ‘Self, the universal Self,’ are taught in this Paṭāla before the penances, because they are most efficacious for the removal of all negativity. The means are absence of anger etc., which are enumerated 1.8.23.6.

ātma lābhān na paraṁ vidyate || 2 ||

2. There is no higher [objective] than the attainment of [the knowledge of the] Atman.

Haradatta gives in his commentary a lengthy discussion on the Atman, which corresponds nearly to śaṅkara’s Introduction to and Commentary on the first Sūtra of Bādarāyaṇa.

tatra-ātma lābhīyāṁ-ślokān udāhariṣyāmaḥ || 3 ||

3. We shall quote the [Vedic] verses which refer to the attainment of [the knowledge of] the Atman.

According to Haradatta, the following verses are taken from an Upanishad.

pūṁ prāṇinaṁ sarva eva guhā śayasya | ahanyamānasya vikalmaṣasya |
acalāṁ cala niketaṁ ye- ‘anutiṣṭhanti te- ‘amṛtāḥ || 4 ||

4. All living creatures are the abode of Him who lies enveloped in matter, Who is immortal and Who is taintless. Those become immortal who worship Him who is immovable and lives in a movable dwelling.

The taintless one etc. is the Paramātman. The taints are merit and demerit which, residing in the Manas, the internal organ of perception, are only falsely attributed to the Atman. To become immortal means ‘to obtain final liberation.’

yad idam id iha-id iha loke viṣayam ucyate \mid vidhūya kavir etad

5. Renouncing all material objects [of the senses] a wise person shall strive after the [knowledge of the] Atman.

ātman eva-aham alabdhvā-etad dhitaṃ sevasva na-ahitam \mid atha-anyeṣu pratīcchāmī sādhuṣṭhānam anapekṣayā \mid mahāntaṃ tejasas- kāyaṃ sarvatra nihitam prabhum \mid 5 \mid

6. “O student, I, who had not recognised in my own self the great self-luminous, universal, [absolutely] free Atman, which must be realised directly without the mediation of anything else, desired [to find] it in others [the senses]. [But now as I have obtained the true knowledge, I do so no more.] Therefore, follow also this good road that leads to welfare [liberation], and not the one that leads into suffering [new births]”.

The verse is addressed by a teacher to his student according to Haradatta, but his interpretation is open to many doubts.

sarva bhūteṣu yo nityo vipaścid amṛto dhruvaḥ \mid anaṅgo- ‘aśabdo-‘aśarīro- ‘asparśaś ca mahān-śucih \mid sa sarvaṃ paramā kāṣṭhā sa vaiśuvaṃ \mid 6 \mid

7. It is That which is the eternal essence in all creatures, whose essence is wisdom, immortal, unchangeable, devoid of parts, of expression, of the [subtle] body, [even] of touch, exceedingly pure; That is the totality of Being, That is the highest goal; [he dwells in the middle of the body like] the Viśuvat day [which is in the middle of a Sattrā-sacrifice]; That indeed, is [accessible to all] like a town intersected by many streets.

The Śūtra contains a further description of the Paramātman.

taṃ yo- ‘anutiśthet sarvatra prādhvam ca-asya sadā- ācaret \mid durdarśaṃ nipuṇaṃ yukto yaḥ paśyet sa modeta viṣṭape \mid 7 \mid

8. He who meditates on That, and everywhere and always lives according to Dharma and who, full of devotion, sees That which is difficult to be seen and subtle, will rejoice in [his] ‘heaven’.

Haradatta explains the word viṣṭap, ‘heaven,’ by ‘pain freed greatness,’ apparently misled by a bad etymology. The heaven of the Atman is, of course, mokṣa — liberation, that state where the individual Self becomes merged in the Brahman or Paramātman, which is pure essence, consciousness and joy.

1. That Brāhmaṇa, who is wise and sees the Atman in all creatures, who pondering [thereon] does not become confused, and who recognises the Atman in every thing, shines, indeed in heaven.

Shines in heaven — i.e. becomes a beacon of light to others.

2. That which is consciousness itself and subtler than the thread of the lotus-fibre, pervades the universe, and which, unchangeable and larger than the earth, contains the entire universe; That which is different from the worldly knowledge, obtained by the senses and identical with its objects, possesses the highest [form consisting of absolute knowledge]. From That, which divides Itself, spring all [created] forms. That is the primary cause, That is eternal, That is unchangeable.

This Sūtra again contains a description of the Paramātman.

Character Faults and their avoidance

3. But the eradication of the faults (doṣa) is brought about in this life by the means [called Yoga]. A wise person who has eradicated the [faults] which destroy the creatures, obtains liberation.

4. Now we will enumerate the faults which tend to destroy the creatures.

5. [These are] anger, exultation, anger, covetousness, delusion, maliciousness, hypocrisy, lying, gluttony, calumnies, envy, selfish desire, secret hatred, neglect to keep the senses in subjection, neglect to concentrate the mind. The eradication of these [faults] takes place through the means of [liberation called] Yoga.

akrodho- ‘aharṣo- ‘aroṣo- ‘alobho- ‘amoho- ‘adambho- ‘adrohaḥ satya vacanam anatyāśo- ‘apaiśunam anasūyā samvibhāgas tyāga ārjavāṃ mārdavaṃ śamo damaḥ sarva bhūtair avirodho yoga āryam ānṛśaṃsaṃ tuṣṭir iti sarva āśramāṃṣam samaya padāni tān anutiṣṭhan vidhinā sārvagāmī bhavati || 6 ||

6. Freedom from anger, from exultation, from anger, from stinginess, from delusion, from hypocrisy [and] hostility; truthfulness, moderation in eating, silencing slander, freedom from envy, self-denying generosity, avoiding the acceptance of gifts, straightforwardness, affability, tranquility, self-discipline, peace with all created beings, concentration [of the mind on the contemplation of the Atman], chivalry, absence of maliciousness and contentment; — these [good qualities] have been settled by the agreement [of the wise] for all [the four] orders; one who, according to the precepts of the sacred law, practises these, participates the universal Being.

Fines, Compensation & Penances

kṣatriyaṃ hatvā gavāṃ sahasrāṃ vairayātana arthaṃ dadyāt || 1 ||

1. He who has killed a Kshatriya shall give a thousand cows [as a fine] for the expiation of his sin. (Manu 11:128; Yajñ. 3:266)

Others explain the phrase vairayātanārtham ‘for the expiation of his sin,’ thus:—
He, who is slain by anybody, becomes, in dying, an enemy of his slayer [and thinks], “O that I might slay him in another life,” for the removal of this enmity!’ — Haradatta. Another commentator translates vairayātanārtham,’ in order to remove the enmity.’ This fine is similar to the law permitting compensation for murder which was in force in ancient Greece and among the Teutonic nations. With the explanation adopted by Haradatta, it is impossible to find a reasonable interpretation for prāyascittārtham, Sūtra 4. Haradatta, seduced by the parallel passage of Manu, takes it to be identical with vairayātanārtham.

An alternative translation of our Sūtra thus:—‘He who has killed a Kṣatriya shall give a thousand cows [to the relations of the murdered man] in order to remove the enmity.’

According to Baudhāyana 1.10.19.1 the cows are to be given to the king. Others say they should be given to the brāhmaṇas.

śataṃ vaiṣye || 2 ||

2. [He shall give] a hundred cows for a Vaiśya, (Manu 11:130; Yajñ.

daśa śūdre || 3 ||

3. Ten for a śūdra, (Manu 11:131; Yajñ. 3:267)

ṛṣabhaś ca-atra-adhikaḥ sarvatra prāyaścitta arthaḥ || 4 ||

4. And in every one [of these cases] one bull [must be given] in excess [of the number of cows] for the sake of expiation.

strīṣu ca-eteṣām evam || 5 ||

5. And if women of the [three castes mentioned have been slain] the same [compensation must be paid].

Here Āpastamba proposes a hierarchy of social value for the payment of compensation. The women of all social categories are equal in value to the men. Kṣatriyas are the rulers, administrators and defenders of the society and are thus considered to be the most valuable. The Sudras, being the majority and the unskilled labour force are considered the most expendable. Even in modern society such a hierarchy of value is recognized — the sons of the poorer and less educated classes being sent to war as ‘cannon fodder’. The sons of the rich are more likely to get off a crime for which a poorer person would be jailed for.

6. He who has slain a person belonging to the two [first-mentioned castes] who has studied the Veda, or had been initiated for the performance of a Soma-sacrifice, becomes an Abhiśasta.

Manu 11:87. Abhiśasta means literally ‘accused, accursed,’ and corresponds in Apastamba’s terminology to the mahāpātakīn of Manu and Yajñavālkya, instead of which latter word Manu uses it occasionally eg. 2:185. Killing a person who was a repository of Vedic knowledge was the equivalent of destroying a library.

brāhmaṇa mātram ca || 7 ||

7. And [he is called an Abhiśasta] who has slain a man belonging merely to the Brāhmaṇa caste [though he has not studied the Veda or been initiated for a Soma-sacrifice].

garbhānaḥ ca tasya- avijñātam || 8 ||

8. Likewise he who has caused an abortion of a [Brāhmaṇa, even though its gender be] undistinguishable.

ātreyīṁ ca striyam || 9 ||

9. Or a menstruating woman [of the Brāhmaṇa caste].

Others interpret ātreyī not as menstruating but as “belonging to the clan of Atri.”
— Haradatta. But this makes no sense as there is nothing in particular which distinguishes women of one clan from another.

tasya nirveṣaḥ || 10 ||

10. [Now follows] the penance for him [who is an Abhiśasta].

araṇye kuṭiṁ kṛtvā vāg yataḥ śavaśīra dhvajo- ‘ardhaśāṇī pakṣam adhonābhy uparijānu- āccchādyā || 11 ||

11. He [himself] shall erect a hut in the forest, observe a vow of silence, carry [a staff on which] the skull [of the person slain] is placed like a flag, and cover the space from his navel to his knees with a quarter of a piece of hempen cloth.

Others say that he may carry any skull. This Śūtra is to be construed with Śūtra 14, sūtras 12 and 13 being inserted parenthetically. — Haradatta. Manu 11:72-78; Yajñ. 3:243.

tasya panthā antarā vartmanī || 12 ||

12. The path for him when he goes to a village, is the space between the tracks [of the wheels of the carts].

dṛṣṭvā ca-anyam utkrāmet || 13 ||

13. And if he sees another [ārya], he shall step out of the road [to the distance of two yards].

khaṇḍena lohitakena śarāveṇa grāme pratiṣṭheta || 14 ||

14. He shall go to the village, carrying a broken bowl, of metal of an inferior quality.

ko- ‘ abhiśastāya bhikṣām iti sapta agārāṇi caret || 15 ||

15. He may go to seven houses only, [crying] Who will give alms to an Abhiśasta?

sā vyṛttiḥ || 16 ||

16. That is [the way in which he must gain] his livelihood.

alabdhā-upavāsaḥ || 17 ||

17. If he does not obtain anything [at the seven houses], he must fast.

gāś ca rakṣet || 18 ||

18. And [whilst performing this penance] he must tend cows.

tāsāṃ niṣkramaṇa praveśane dvitiyo grāme- ‘arthāḥ || 19 ||

19. When the cows leave and enter the village, that is the second occasion [on which he may enter] the village.

dvādaśa varṣāṇī caritvā siddhāḥ sadbhīḥ samprayogaḥ || 20 ||

20. After having performed [this penance] for twelve years, [he must perform] the ceremony known [by custom and usage], through which he is re-admitted into the society of the good.

‘ie. after having performed the penance, he shall take grass and offer it to a cow. If the cow approaches and confidingly eats, then one should know that he has performed the penance properly, not otherwise.’ — Haradatta. Manu 11:195 and 196.

The usual ceremony for readmittance to caste is the “udaka śānti” ceremony.

āji pathe vā kuṭim kṛtvā brāhmaṇa gavya upajigṣamāṇo vaset triḥ pratiṛddho- ‘apajitya vā muktaḥ || 21 ||

21. Or [after having performed the twelve years’ penance], he may build a hut on the path of robbers, and live there, trying to recover from them the [stolen] cows of Brāhmaṇas. He is free [from his sin], when thrice he has been defeated by them, or when he has vanquished them. (Manu 11:81.)

Thus Haradatta, better, ‘when thrice he has fought with them.

āśvamedhiḥaṁ vā-avabhrtham avetya mucyate || 22 ||

22. Or he is freed [from his sin], if [after the twelve years’ penance] he bathes [with the priests] at the end of a horse-sacrifice. (Manu 11:83)

dharma artha saṁnipāte- ‘artha grāhiṇa etad eva || 23 ||

23. This very same [penance is ordained] for him who, when his duty (dharma) and economic interest (artha) come into conflict, chooses the gain.

Or the Sūtra may have reference to unrighteous gain acquired by false testimony and the like.’ — Haradatta.

gurum hatvā śrotriyaṁ vā karma samāptam etena-eva vidhinā-uttamād ucchvāsāc caret || 24

24. If he has slain a Guru or a Brāhmaṇa, who has studied the Veda and finished the ceremonies of a Soma-sacrifice, he shall live according to this very same rule until his last breath.

Guru means ‘the father and the rest.” — Haradatta.

na-asya-asmiṁl loke prayāpattir vidyate kalmaśaṁ tu nirhaṇyate || 25 ||

25. He cannot be purified in this life. But his sin is removed [after death].

His sin is removed after death — the meaning is that his sons or other [relations] may perform the funeral ceremonies and the other propitiation ceremonies. But others think that the first part of the Sūtra forbids this, and that the meaning of pratyāpattiḥ [can be purified] is “connection by being received as a son or other relation.” — Haradatta.

1. He who has had sex with a Guru’s wife shall cut off his penis together with the testicles, hold them in his joined hands and walk towards the south without stopping, until he falls down dead.

Haradatta’s explanation of a ‘Guru’s wife’ by ‘mother’ rests on a comparison of similar passages from other Smṛtis, where a different ‘penance’ is prescribed for incestuous intercourse with other near relations. (Manu 11:105 Yajñ. 3:259.)

2. Or he may die embracing a heated metal image of a woman. (Manu 11:104; Yajñ. 3:259.)

3. A [regular] drinker of alcohol shall drink exceedingly hot liquor so that he dies. (Manu 11:91:92; Yajñ. 3:253.)

4. A stealer [of gold] shall go to the king with flying hair, carrying a club on his shoulder, and tell him his deed. He [the king] shall give him a blow with that [club]. If the thief dies, his sin is expiated.

ie. who has stolen the gold of a Brāhmaṇa. Manu 8:314, 316; 11:99-101; Yajñ. 3:257

5. If he is forgiven [by the king], the guilt falls upon him who forgives him, (Manu 8:317.)

6. Or he may throw himself into a fire, or perform repeatedly severe austerities, (Manu 11:102.)

7. Or he may kill himself by diminishing daily his portion of food,
8. Or he may perform Kṛchra penances [uninterruptedly] for one year.

   According to Haradatta this Sūtra refers to all kinds of sins, and it must be understood that the Kṛchra penances must be heavy for great crimes, and lighter for smaller faults; see also below, 1. 9, 27, 7 and 8.

9. Now they quote also [the following verse]:

Haradatta states that the verse is taken from a Purana.

steyaṃ kṛtvā surāṃ pītvā guru dāraṃ ca gatvā brahmahatyāṃ akṛtvā caturthā kālā mita bhojanāḥ syur apō- ‘abhaye veyuḥ savana anukalpaṃ ā sthāna āsanābhyaṃ viharanta ete tribhir varṣair apa pāpaṃ nundate steyaṃ 10

10. Those who have committed a theft [of gold], become alcoholics, or had sex with a Guru’s wife, but not those who have murdered a Brāhmaṇa, shall eat every fourth meal-time a little food, bathe at the times of the three libations [morning, noon, and evening], passing the day standing and the night sitting. After the lapse of three years they are absolved of their guilt;

prathamaṃ varṇaṃ pariḥpya prathamaṃ varṇaṃ hatvā saṃgrāmaṃ gatvā- avatiṣṭheta ā tatra-enaṃ hanyuḥ 11

11. [A man of any caste, excepting the first, who has slain a man of the first caste, shall go on a battle-field and place himself [between the two hostile armies]. There being killed in battle [he thereby becomes pure]. (Manu 11:74; Yajñ. 3:248.)

api vā lomāni tvacaṃ māṃsmi iti hāvayitvā-agniṃ praviṣet 12

12. Or such a criminal may tear from his body and make the priest offer as a burnt-offering his hair, skin, flesh, and the rest, and then throw himself into the fire.

The Mantras given in the commentary, and a parallel passage of Vasiṣṭha 20:25-26, show that this terrible penance is not altogether a mere theory of Apastamba. Yajñ. 3:247.

vāyasa pracalāka barhiṇa cakravāka haṃsa bhāsa maṇḍūka nakula đerika aśvahimsāyāṃ śudravat prāyaścitam 13

13. If a crow, a chameleon, a peacock, a Brāhmaṇi duck, a swan, the vulture called Bhāsa, a frog, an ichneumon, a musk-rat, or a dog has been killed, then the same penance as for a śūdra must be performed.

The penance must be performed if all these animals together have been slain none of these creatures individually has the same socially equivalent value of a sudra.

dhenv anāḍuhoś ca-akāraṇāt || 1 ||

1. [The same penance must be performed], if a milch-cow or a full-grown ox [has been slain] without a reason.

‘A reason’ for hurting a cow is, according to Haradatta, anger, or for meat.

dhurya vāha pravṛtttau ca-itareśāṃ prāṇinām || 2 ||

2. And for other animals [which have no bones], if an ox-load of them has been killed.

Manu 11:141; Yajñ. 3:269. That ‘animals without bones,’ ie. insects or molluscs, are intended in the Śūtra is an inference, drawn by Haradatta from the parallel passages of Gautama, Manu, and Yajñavalkya.

anākrośyam ākruśya-anṛtaṃ vā- uktvā trirātram aksīra aksāra alavaṇa bhajanāṃ || 3 ||

3. He who abuses a person who, [on account of his venerability] ought not to be abused, or speaks an untruth [regarding any small matter] must abstain for three days from milk, pungent condiments, and salt.

A person who ought not to be abused, ie. a father, a teacher, and the like.’ — Haradatta.

śūdrasya sapta rātram abhojanam || 4 ||

4. [If the same offences have been committed] by a śūdra, he must fast for seven days.

strīṇāṃ ca-evam || 5 ||

5. And the same [penances must also be performed] by women, [but not those which follow].

The same penances, ie. those prescribed 1:9:24 -1:9:26, 4. According to Haradatta this Śūtra is intended to teach that women shall not perform the penances which follow. Others, however, are of opinion that it is given in order to indicate that the preceding Śūtras apply to women by an atideśa, and that, according to a Smārta principle, applicable to such cases, it may be inferred, that women are to perform one-half only of the penances prescribed for men.

yeṣvābhiśastyāṃ teśāṃ ekaṅgaṃ chittvā-aprāṇa hiṃsāyām || 6 ||

6. He who cuts off a limb of a person for whose murder he would become an Abhiśasta [must perform the penance prescribed for killing a śūdra], if the life [of the person injured] has not been endangered.

anāravyapaiśuna pratiṣiddhācāresv abhakṣya abhojya apeyaṟṟaśane śūdrāyāṁ ca retāḥ sīkvā-ayonau ca doṣavac ca karma abhisāṃdhī pūrvam kṛtvā-anabhisaṃdhī pūrvam vā-ab liṅgābhir apa upasprṣed vāruṇābhir vā-anyair vā pavitrair yathā karma abhyāsaḥ || 7 ||

7. He who has been guilty of conduct unworthy of an āryan, of defaming others, of actions contrary to the rule of conduct, of eating or drinking things forbidden, of sex with a woman of the śūdra caste, of unnatural sex, of performing magic rites with intent [to harm his enemies] or [of hurting others] unintentionally, shall bathe and sprinkle himself with water, reciting the [seven] verses addressed to the Waters, or the verses addressed to Varuṇa, or [other verses chosen from the Anuvāka, called] Pavitra, in proportion to the frequency with which the offence has been committed.

The Anuvāka is Taitt. Samh. 2:5:12.

‘Unnatural’ sex is defined by the text as ejaculating into anything other than a vagina.

8. A [student] who has broken the vow of chastity, shall offer to Nīrīti an ass, according to the manner of the Pāka-yajña-rites.

9. A śūdra shall eat [the remainder] of that [offering].

10. [Now follows] the penance for him who transgresses the rules of studentship.

11. He shall for a year serve his teacher silently, speaking only during the daily study [of the Veda, in dealing with necessary business to] his teacher or his teacher’s wife, and whilst collecting alms.

12. The following [penances] which we are going to teach, may be performed for the same offence, and also for other offences, which do not cause loss of caste.

Regarding the Pataniya-crimes which cause loss of caste, see above, 1. 7, 2 1, 7 seq.

13. He may either offer oblations to Kāma and Manyu [with the following two mantras], ‘Kāma [passion] has done it; Manyu [anger] has done it.’ Or he may mutter [these Mantras].

According to the greatness of the crime the number of the burnt-oblations must be increased and the prayers be repeated.

14. Or, after having eaten sesame or fasted on the days of the full and new moon he may, on the following day bathe, and regulating the breath (prāṇāyāma), repeat [the Gāyatrī mantra] one thousand times, or he may do so without prāṇāyāma.

1. After having eaten sesame or having fasted on the full moon day of the month Śrāvana [July/August], he may on the following day bathe in the water of a great river and offer [a burnt-oblation of] one thousand sticks of sacred fuel, whilst reciting the Gāyatri, or he may repeat [the Gāyatri mantra] as many times.

The oblations of sacred fuel [samidh] are not to be accompanied by the exclamation svāhā.’ — Haradatta.

iṣṭi yajña kratūn vā pavitṛa arthān āharet || 2 ||

2. Or he may perform Iṣṭis and Soma-sacrifices for the sake of purifying himself [from his offences].

Iṣṭis are the simplest forms of the śrauta-sacrifices, i.e. of those for which three fires are necessary.

abhojyaṃ bhuktvā naiṣpurīṣyam || 3 ||

3. After having eaten forbidden food, one must fast, until the bowels are completely empty.

For some particular kinds of forbidden food the same penance is prescribed, Manu

4. That is [generally] attained after seven days.

5. Or he may during winter and during the dewy season [November-March] bathe in cold water both morning and evening.

6. Or he may perform a Kṛcchra penance, which lasts twelve days.

7. The rule for the Kṛcchra penance of twelve days [is the following]:—For three days he must not eat in the evening, and then for three days not in the morning; for three days he must live on food which has been given unasked, and three days he must not eat anything.

The same penance is described, under the name Prajāpatya Kṛcchra, the Kṛcchra invented by Prajāpati. Manu 11:212 & Yajñ 3:220

etam eva- abhyaset saṃvatsaraṃ sa kṛcchra saṃvatsaraḥ || 8 ||

8. If he repeats this for a year, that is called a Kṛcchra penance, which lasts for a year.

9. Now follows another penance. He who has committed even a great many offences which do not cause him to fall, becomes free from guilt, if, fasting, he recites the entire śākha of his Veda three times consecutively. (Manu 11:259.)

10. He who has sex with a non-āryan woman, who lends money at interest, who drinks [other] spirituous liquors [than Sura], he who praises everybody in a manner unworthy of a Brāhmaṇa, shall sit on grass, allowing his back to be scorched [by the sun].

According to Khāṇḍa 26:7. One who has sex with a sudra woman must bathe and sprinkle himself with water, reciting the [seven] verses addressed to the Waters, or the verses addressed to Varuṇa, or [other verses chosen from the Anuvāka, called] Pavitra.
yad eka rātreṇa karoti pāpam kṛṣṇam varṇam brāhmaṇaḥ sevamānaḥ || 11 ||

11. A Brāhmaṇa atones for the offence which he has committed by serving one day and night [a man of] the black race, if he bathes for three years, eating at every fourth meal-time.

The expression kṛṣṇa varṇa, ‘the black race,’ is truly Vedic. In the Rig Veda it usually denotes the aboriginal races, and sometimes the demons.

If a brāhmaṇa commits any of the afore mentioned offences in verse 10 he may be atone for them by serving a sudra for 24 hours, or by taking ceremonial baths at specific astrological timings or by fasting by eating at every 4th meal for 3 years.

Thus a number of options are given which are either up to the individual to choose, or if he presents himself to a pariṣad for resolution, the pariṣad will ordain according to the severity of the offence.

It is not a crime to steal food to feed oneself or one’s family or to feed a draught-ox which is being used for work. The same rule Manu emphatically ascribes to himself, Manu 8:339. But see also 8:331.

7. Nor shall he accept the [means for procuring] enjoyments from such a person.

Haradatta remarks, that this Sūtra implicitly forbids to accept the heritage of an outcast. But it seems that the intention of Āpastamba is that only that which is conducive to enjoyment and recreation and not to one’s livelihood is to be rejected.

11. All unrighteous enjoyments should be given up; he shall say, ‘I and sin [do not dwell together].’ Clothing himself with a garment reaching from the navel down to the knee, bathing daily, morning, noon, and evening, eating food which contains neither milk nor pungent condiments, nor salt, he shall not enter a house for twelve years.

Unrighteous enjoyments are those which are condemned by the śāstra but are different for each social group. For example — hunting for pleasure, drinking binges, sexual excesses and gambling although legal are to be eschewed by caste Hindus. (Manu 7:50) Nothing is forbidden to sudras who may eat, drink and enjoy as long as it is not illegal.

A similar but easier penance is prescribed, Manu 11:194.

[This penance, which had been prescribed above, 1, 9, 25,1 is enjoined [once more], in order to show that it is not optional [as might be expected according to Sūtra 14].’ — Haradatta.

17. For he who takes his own or another’s life becomes an Abhiśasta.

A person who attempts suicide but fails becomes an outcaste. Here Āpastamba extends the previous definition of an abhiśasta to include all those guilty of premeditated murder, for what is common to both these crimes is “intent”. The previous definition was applied to those who killed brāhmaṇas — either learned or unlearned or one initiated for a Soma-yāga. Nowadays the extended definition would apply i.e. all murderers would be considered as abhiśastas.

19. He who has unjustly abandoned his wife shall put on an ass’s skin, with the hair turned outside, and beg in seven houses, saying, ‘Give alms to him who abandoned his wife.’ That shall be his livelihood for six months.

And then he should take her back as before.

\[\text{sthrāyās tu bhartr vyatikramekṛcchra dvādaśa rātrābhyāsas tāvantāṃ kālam} \]

20. But if a wife abandons her husband, she shall perform the twelve-night Kṛcchra penance for as long a time [i.e. 6 months].

\[\text{atha bhrūṇahā śva ajināṃ khara ajināṃ vā bahir loma paridhāya puruṣa śiraḥ pratipāṇa artham ādāya} \]

21. He who has killed a Bhrūṇa [a man learned in the Vedas and Vedāṅgas and skilled in the performance of the rites] shall put on the skin of a dog or of an ass, with the hair turned outside, and use a human skull for his drinking-vessel.

\[\text{khāṭya aṅgam daṇḍa arthe karma nāmadheyāṃ prabrūvānaś caṅkramyeta ko bhrūṇa ghne bhikṣāṁ iti ī grāme prāṇa vṛttīṁ pratilabhya śūnya agāraṃ yrkṣa mūlaṃ vā- abhyupāśrayen na hi ma āryaiḥ samprayogo vidyate ī etena-eva vidhināuttamād ucchvāsāc caret ī na-asya-asmiṃl loke pratyāpattir vidyate ī kalmaṇaḥ tu nirhānyate} \]

1. And he shall take the foot of a bed instead of a staff and, proclaiming the nature of his deed, he shall go about [saying], ‘Who [gives] alms to the murderer of a Bhrūṇa?’ Obtaining thus his livelihood in the village, he shall dwell in an empty house or under a tree, [knowing that] he is not allowed to socialise with āryans. According to this rule he shall act until death. He cannot be purified in this world. But [after death] his offence is taken away.

2. Even if it is unintentional homicide, nevertheless one reaps the result of his crime.

\[\text{saha saṃkalpena bhūyaḥ} \]

3. [His guilt is] greater, [if he murders] intentionally.

\[\text{evam anyeṣv api doṣavatsu karmasu} \]

4. The same [principle applies] also to other sinful actions.

\[\text{tathā puṇya kriyāsū} \]
5. And also to good works.

Haradatta gives, as an example, the case where a warrior saves the property of a traveller from thieves. If the traveller turns out to be a Brāhmaṇa, and the warrior did not know his caste before rescuing his property, his merit will be less than if he had rescued knowingly the property of a Brāhmaṇa.

7. In a Purāṇa [it has been declared], that one who kills an assailant does not sin, for [in that case] wrath meets wrath.

There any act of violence in self-defence or the defence of another — women, children and the weak is not considered as a sin. The fact that Apastamba mentions it as coming from a Purāṇa i.e. a commonly held teaching — seems to suggest that he himself has some undefined reservations.

8. But Abhiśastas shall live together in dwellings [outside the village]; considering this their lawful [mode of life], they shall sacrifice for each other, teach each other, and marry amongst each other.

_marry amongst each other_ — this assumes that they are living with women who are related or dependant upon them i.e. wives and daughters who joined them in their social exile, or that they have taken women of non-aryan community as wives or consorts.

putrān saṃṇiśpādyā brūyur vipra vrajatata-asmad evaṃ hy asmatsv āryāḥ sampratyapatsyata-itī || 9 ||

9. If they have begot sons, let them say to them:— “Go out from amongst us, for thus the āryas, [throwing the guilt] upon us, will receive you amongst their number”.

It is impossible to agree with Haradatta’s explanation of the words to be addressed by Abhiśastas to their children. No Vedic license can excuse the use of the second person plural instead of the third. The following is a preferable translation — ‘Go out from among us; for thus [leaving the guilt] to us, you will be received [as] āryas.’ It is, however, not improbable that our text is disfigured by several very old corruptions, compare Baudhāyana 2:1:2:18

atha-api na sa āndriyaḥ patati || 10 ||

10. For the organs do not become impure together with the person.

11. [The truth of] that may be learned from this [parallel case]; one deficient in limbs begets a son who possesses the full number of limbs.

   In like manner a person who has lost his rights, [can] beget a son, who possesses the rights [of his caste]. For the wife is also a cause [of the birth of the son], and she is guiltless.' — Haradatta.

mithyā-etad iti hārītaḥ || 12 ||

12. Hārīta declares that this is wrong.

dadhi dhānī sa dharmā strī bhavati || 13 ||

13. A wife is similar to the vessel which contains the curds [for the sacrifice].

The statements now following are those with which Apastamba agrees. Those contained in Sūtras 8-11 are merely the pūrva-paśa yo hi dadhi dhānyām aprayatam paya ātacya manthati na tena dharma kṛtyaṃ kriyate | evam aśuci śuklaṃ yan nivartate na tena saha samprayogo vidyate || 14 ||

14. For if one makes impure milk curdle [by mixing it with whey and water] in a milk-vessel and stirs it, no sacrificial rite can be performed with [the curds produced from] that. Just so no socialising can be allowed with the impure seed which comes [from an Abhiśasta].

abhīcārā anuvyāhārāv aśuci karāv apatanīyau || 15 ||

15. Sorcery and curses [employed against a Brāhmaṇa] cause one to become impure, but not loss of caste.

patanīyāv iti hārītaḥ || 16 ||

16. Hārīta declares that they cause loss of caste.

patanīya vṛttis tv aśuci karānām dvādaśa māsān dvādaśa ardhamāsān dvādaśa dvādaśa ahān dvādaśa sapta ahān dvādaśa try ahān dvādaśa aham sapta aham try aham eka aham |

17. But crimes causing impurity must be expiated, [when no particular penance is prescribed,] by performing the penance enjoined for crimes causing loss of caste during twelve months, or twelve half months, or twelve twelve-nights, or twelve days & nights, or twelve times three days, or twelve days, or seven days, or three days, or one day.

ity aśuci kara nirveśo yathā karma abhyāsaḥ || 18 ||
18. Thus acts causing impurity must be expiated according to the manner in which the [offending] act has been committed [whether intentionally or unintentionally].

1. Some declare, that a student shall bathe after [having acquired] the knowledge of the Veda, [however long or short the time of his studentship may have been].

The bath is taken at the end of the studentship, and forms part of the Samāvartana-ceremony. From this rite a student who has completed his course of study derives the name Snātaka, ‘one who has bathed.’

9. [But an Agnihotri, who is occupied at home by oblations in the morning and evening, must not go out; for] in the case of a conflict [of duties], that enjoined by the Veda is the more important.

   If the snātaka is also an agni-hotrin observing the morning and evening homas then he should not go out of the village. This verse assumes that the unmarried can also be agni-hotrins.

10. He shall avoid all dyed dresses,

   The rule to wear white garments is given Yajñ 1:131; Manu 4:35.

11. And all naturally black cloth.

12. He shall wear clothing that is neither shining.

13. Nor contemptible, if he is able [to afford it]. (Manu 4.34)

14. And in the day-time he shall avoid wrapping up his head [with a turban], except when voiding faeces.

15. But when voiding faeces, he shall envelop his head and place some [grass or the like] on the ground. (Manu 4.49)

16. He shall not void faeces in the shade [of a tree, where travellers rest].

17. But he may discharge urine on his own shadow.
18. He shall not void faeces with his shoes on, nor on a ploughed field, nor on a path, nor in water. (Manu 4.45, 46; Yajñ. 1:137)

\[ agnimapo brāhmaṇaḥ gā devatā dvāraṃ pratīvātam ca śakti viṣaye na-abhiprasārayīta \]

22. If possible, one shall not stretch out the feet towards a fire, water, a Brāhmaṇa, a cow, [images of] the gods, a door, or against the wind.

The prohibition to stretch the feet towards a fire occurs also Manu 4, 53; Yajñ. 1:137.

In the section on transcendental knowledge [1, 8:23; 5], “speaking evil” has been forbidden, in connection with the means of liberation. And below [Śūtra 25] the [author] will declare that the sins which destroy creatures are to be avoided. But this precept [is given in order to indicate that] in the case of cows and the rest an

24. [The foolish decision] of a person who decided wrongly destroys his ancestors and his future happiness, it harms his children, cattle, and house. ‘Oh Dharmaprahrāda, [this deed belongs] not to Kumālana!’ thus decided Death, weeping, the question [addressed to him by the Rishi].

Haradatta tells the story to which the second half of the verse alludes, in the following manner:—‘A certain Rishi had two students, called Dharmaprahrāda and Kumālana. Once they brought from the forest two great bundles of firewood and threw them negligently into their teacher’s house, without looking. One of the bundles struck the teacher’s little son so that he died. Then the teacher asked his two students, “Which of you two has killed him “Both answered, ‘Not I, not I.” Hereupon the teacher, being unable to [come to a decision in order to] send away the sinner and to keep the innocent one, called Death, and asked him, “Which of the two has killed the boy?” Then Death, finding himself involved in a difficult law question, began to weep, and giving his decision, said, “Oh Dharmaprahrāda, not to Kumālana [the dative has the sense of the genitive], this sin is none of kumālana’s!
Instead of declaring, “Dharmaprahrāda, thou hast done this,” he said, ‘The other did not do it.’ Still from the circumstances of the case it appeared that the meaning of the answer was, “The other has done it.” “This was the decision which he gave crying.”—The reading of the text rendered in the translation is, dharmaprahrāda na kumālana.

25. One should avoid travelling in a carriage yoked with donkeys; and one should avoid ascending or descending from vehicles in difficult places.

26. And [One should avoid] crossing a river by swimming. (Manu 4.77.)

27. And [avoid also] boats of doubtful [solidity].

28. One should avoid cutting grass, crushing clods of earth, and spitting, without a particular reason, (Manu 4.70 and 71.)

29. And whatever else they [the wise] forbid.

1. After marriage the rites prescribed for a householder and his wife [must be performed].

According to Haradatta, this rule is intended to refute the opinion of those who hold that the sacred household-fire may be kept, and the prescribed offerings therein may be performed, either from the time of the marriage, or after the division of the family estate. He also states that the use of the dual grha-medhinoḥ indicates that husband and wife must perform the rites conjointly. Manu 3:67.

2. One shall eat at the two [appointed] times, [morning and evening].

Haradatta thinks that this Sūtra is intended to prevent householders from having more than two meals a day, and to keep them from gluttony. Others are of opinion that its object is to keep householders from excessive fasting, and to make them perform the Prāṇāgni-hotra at either meal. At the Prāṇāgni-hotra the sacrificer eats five mouthfuls invoking successively, whilst he eats, the five vital airs. At the first mouthful he says, ‘To Prana Svāhā;’ at the second, ‘To Apāṇa Svāhā,’ etc.

3. And one shall not eat to repletion.

4. And both [the householder and his wife] shall fast on [the days of] the new and full moon.

5. To eat once [on those days] in the morning that also is called fasting. (Aśv. Grh: Su. 1:10:2.)

6. And they may eat [at that single meal] until they are quite satisfied.

7. And on [the anniversary of] that [wedding] day they may eat that food of which they are fond.

Haradatta holds that the words ‘on that day’ do not refer to the days of the new and full moon, the Pārvan-days, mentioned in Sūtra 4. His reasons are, first, that the permission to eat food, of which the householder may be particularly fond, has already been given in Sūtra 6, by the term trptih, ‘satisfaction’; and, secondly, that the singular ‘on this day’ does not agree with the plural ‘on the Pārvan-days.’ Hence he comes to the conclusion that the words ‘on that day’ must refer to the wedding-day, mentioned in Sūtra 1. as well as to its anniversary. Haradatta is, probably, right in his explanation, though the reasons adduced here are very weak. A stronger reason for detaching this Sūtra from Sūtra 4 will be brought forward below, under Sūtra 11. Mahādeva, the commentator of the Hiraṇyakeśi-dharma, adopts the view rejected by Haradatta.

8. And [on the night of that day] they shall sleep on the ground [on a raised heap of earth]. (Aśv. Grh: Sūtra. 1:3:10.)

9. And they shall avoid having sex.

10. And on the day after [that day] a Sthālipāka must be offered. A Sthālipāka is an offering at which rice cooked in a pot, sthāli, is offered in the fire A full description of this kind of sacrifice occurs, Aśv. Gr.:1:10:seq.

11. And they may eat that food of which they are fond.
11. The manner in which that offering must be performed has been declared by [the description of the Sthālipāka] to be performed on the days of the new and full moon [the Pārvana].

The Pārvana Sthālipāka has been described by Apastamba in the Grhya sūtra, 3:7. Again, Haradatta returns to the question whether the words on that day [Sūtra 7] refer to the Pārvan-days, or the marriage-day and its anniversaries. He now adds, in favour of the latter view, that the word pārvanena, ‘by the rite to be performed on Pārvan-days,’ by which the Sthālipāka on Pārvan-days is intended, clearly proves the impossibility to refer the preceding rules to the Pārvan-days. He adds that some, nevertheless, adopt the explanation rejected by himself.

12. And they declare [that this rite which is known] amongst the people [must be performed] every [year].

They, i.e. the Siṣṭas, those learned in the law. ‘Another commentator says, the rite which will be taught [in the following Sūtra], and which is known from the usage of the learned, is constant, i.e. must be performed in every case. That it is what the “learned” declare. — Haradatta. The latter explanation of the Sūtra is adopted by Mahādeva.

15. The water-vessels in the house shall never be empty; that is the duty to be observed by the householder and his wife.

Haradatta states that the objection of the repetition of the words ‘the householder and his wife’is to show that they themselves must fill the water-vessels, and not employ others for this purpose. He adds that, according to another commentator, the object of the repetition is to show that Sūtras 13 and 14 apply not only to householders, but also to students, and that hence students, when they offer the daily oblations of sacred fuel [above, 1:1:4:14 seq.], should also perform the rites taught in the preceding Sūtras.

They say that the word “afterwards” is used in order to indicate that perfumes, garlands, and other [Upacāras] must be offered between [the last two acts].’—Haradatta.

aupāsane pacane vā śadbhīr ādyaiḥ pratimantraṃ hastena juhuyāt || 16 ||

16 [At the Vaiśvadeva sacrifice] he shall offer the oblations with his hand, [offering them] into the kitchen-fire or into the sacred [Grhya]-fire, and reciting [each time one of] the first six Mantras [prescribed in the Nārāyaṇi Upanishad].

It is a disputed point with the commentators whether every Brāhmaṇa may offer the Vaiśvadeva in the common kitchen-fire, or those persons only who do not keep a sacred domestic fire.

The six Mantras, which are given in Taitt. Ar. 10:67:1 are:—1. Agnaye Svāhā, ‘to Agni Svāhā’; 3. Somāya Svāhā, ‘to Soma Svāhā’; 3. Viśvebhyo devebhyaḥ Svāhā, ‘to all the gods Svāhā’; 4. Dhruvāya bhāmāya Svāhā, ‘to Dhruva Bhima Svāhā’; 5. Dhruvakṣitaye Svāhā, ‘to Dhruvakṣiti Svāhā’; 6. Acyutakṣitaye Svāhā, ‘to Acyutakṣiti Svāhā.’ Haradatta adds that some add a seventh formula, addressed to Agni sviṣṭakṛt, ‘to the fire which perfects the performance of the sacrifice,’ while others leave out the second Mantra and give that addressed to Agni sviṣṭakṛt the sixth place. This latter is the order given in the Calcutta edition of the Taittiriya Aranyaka.

ubhayataḥ pariṣecanaṃ yathā purastāt || 17 ||

17. He shall sprinkle water all around both times [before and after the oblations], as [has been declared] above.

‘Above, ie. Grhya-sūtra, 1:2:3:8.’ — Haradatta. The Mantras recited are:—1. at the first sprinkling, Adite ‘numanyasva, ‘Aditi permit’; Anumate ‘numanyasva, ‘Anumati permit’; Sarasvaty anumanyasva, ‘Sarasvati permit’; Deva Savitah prasuva, ‘Divine Sāvithri permit’; 2. at the second sprinkling, the same as above, anvamamsthāḥ and prāsāvīḥ, ‘thou hast permitted,’ being substituted for anumanyasva and prasuva. 18. This Sūtra is a restriction of Sūtra 15. 20.

The first six offerings constitute the Devayajña or Vaiśvadeva which is offered in the fire. Now follow the bali-offerings, which are merely placed on the ground, ‘behind the fire’ means to the east of the fire; for the sacrificer must face the east.
18. In like manner water is sprinkled around once only after the performance of those Bali-offerings that are performed in one place.

19. [If a seasoning] has been prepared, [the Bali-offering should consist of rice] mixed with that seasoning.

20. With the seventh and eighth Mantras [Balis must be offered to Dharma and Adharma] behind the fire, and must be placed the one to the north of the other.

21. With the ninth (Mantra a Bali offered to the waters must be placed] near the water-vessel [in which the water for domestic purposes is kept].

22. With the tenth and eleventh (Mantras, Balis, offered to the herbs and trees and to Rakṣo-deva-gana, must be placed] in the centre of the house, and the one to the east of the other.

23. With the following four (Mantras, Balis must be placed] in the north-eastern part of the house [and the one to the east of the other].

1. Near the bed [a Bali must be offered] with [a Mantra] addressed to Kāma Deva.

2. On the door-sill [a Bali must be placed] with [a Mantra] addressed to Antarikṣa [the air].

uttareṇa-apidhānyām ||3||

3. With [the Mantra] that follows [in the Upanishad, he offers a Bali] near the door.

    Others explain apidhāna, “the panels of the door,” to mean the bolt of the door. — Haradatta. The offering is made to Nāma, the name, or essence of things.’

uttarair brahma sadane ||4||

4. With the following [ten Mantras, addressed to Earth, Air, Heaven, Sun, Moon, the Constellations, Indra, Bṛhaspati, Prajapati, and Brahman, he offers ten Balis, each following one to the east of the preceding one], in [the part of the house called] the seat of Brahman.

    Haradatta gives two explanations of the word Brahma-sadana, ‘the seat of Brahman.’ According to some, it is an architectural term, designating the centre of the house; according to others, it denotes the place where, at the time of the burnt-oblations, the Brahman or superintending priest is seated, i.e. a spot to the south of the sacred fire.

dakṣiṇataḥ pitṛ liṅgena prācīna āvīty avācīna pāṇīḥ kuryāt ||5||

5. He shall offer to the south [of the Balis offered before, a Bali] with a Mantra addressed to the Manes; his sacrificial cord shall be suspended over the right shoulder, and the [palm of his right hand shall be turned upwards and] inclined to the right.

    Balis and water for the Manes are placed or poured into the palm of the hand and thrown out between the thumb and forefinger. That part of the palm is, therefore, sometimes called ‘the tīrtha sacred to the Manes.’ See Manu 2:39.

raudra uttaro yathā devatābhyaḥ ||6||

6. To the north [of the Bali given to the Manes, a Bali shall be offered] to Rudra, in the same manner as to the [other] gods.

    ‘That is to say, the sacrificial cord shall not be suspended over the right shoulder, nor shall the Bali be thrown out between the thumb and forefinger.’ — Haradatta.

tayor nānā pariśecanaṃ dharma bhedāt ||7||

7. The sprinkling with water [which precedes and follows the oblation] of these two [Balis, takes place] separately, on account of the difference of the rule [for each case].

    In sprinkling around an offering to the gods, the sacrificer turns his right hand towards the oblation and pours out the water, beginning in the south and ending, in the east. In sprinkling around an offering to the Manes, exactly the opposite order is to be followed.

8. At night only he shall offer [the Bali to the elementals] throwing it into the air and reciting the last [Mantra].

At night, i.e. before the evening meal. The Mantra is, ‘To those beings which, being servants of Vituda, roam about day and night, desiring a Bali-offering, I offer this Bali, desirous of prosperity]. May the Lord of prosperity grant me prosperity, Svāhā.’ Haradatta adds, that according to another commentator, no other Bali but this is to be offered in the evening, and that some modify the Mantra for each occasion, offering the Bali in the morning to ‘the Bhūtas that roam about during the day,’ and in the evening ‘to the night-walkers. Compare for the whole section Manu 3:90-92; Yajñ. 1:102-104.

19. If a śūdra comes as a guest to a Brāhmaṇa, he shall give him some work to do. He may feed him, after [that has been done]. (Manu loc. cit.)

   A small token work is prescribed such as fetch water, chop some wood, sweep a path, set the table, etc.

\[\text{dāśā vā rāja kulād āhṛtya-atithivat-sūdram pūjayeyuḥ} \| 20 \|

20. Or the servants [of the Brāhmaṇa householder] shall fetch [rice] from the royal stores, and honour the śūdra as a guest.

21. [A householder] must always wear his garment over [his left shoulder and under his right arm].

22. Or he may use a cord only, slung over his left shoulder and passed under his right arm, instead of the garment.

These 2 sūtras indicate that the wearing of the sacred thread (yajñopavītam) was optional in the time of Apastamba and originally was used as a substitute for the actual garment (anga-vastra).

23. One shall sweep together [the crumbs] on the place where one has eaten, and take them away. One shall sprinkle water on that place with the palm downwards, and remove the remnants [of food from the cooking-vessels with a spoon], wash them with water, and take their contents to a clean place to the north [of the house, offering them] to Rudra. In this manner the house will become prosperous.

braneṇa acaryaṁ smaryate tu || 24 ||

24. It is declared in the Smṛtis that a Brāhmaṇa alone should be chosen as teacher [or spiritual guide].

The reference in the context is to Vedic study.

Manu 2:241, 242. From here down to 2:3:6:2 Apastamba again treats of the duties of students and teachers, a subject which appears to have in his eyes a greater importance than any other. The rules given now apply chiefly to householders. It would seem that they have been inserted in this particular place, because the reception of a former teacher is to be described 2:3:5:4-11 and that of a ‘learned guest’ 2:3:6:3 seq.

1. On the day on which, beginning the study of the whole sacred science, the Upaniṣads [and the rest, he performs the Upākarma in the morning], he shall not study [at night].

This rule refers to the Upākarma, to be performed yearly by householders. Nowadays, too, the custom is observed, and the whole Brahminical community change their yajnopavitas or sacrificial cords on this occasion in the month of Śrāvana. The adherents of the various sākhas of the Vedas, however, perform the ceremony on different days. According to Haradatta, the Upaniṣads are named, in order to show that they are of the highest importance. See also Satapatha-Brāhmaṇa 10:3:5:12.

2. And he shall not leave his teacher immediately after completing the study.

Others consider that this Sūtra refers to the annual Upakarma of the householder. In that case the translation would be, ‘And after having performed the Upakarma,’ etc. Probably Apastamba means to give a general rule, applicable both to householders and to students who have returned home.

\[ \text{yadi tvareta guroh samīkṣāyām svādhyāyam adhītya kāmaṇ gacchet} | \text{evam ubhayoh śivaṃ bhavati} || 3 || \]

3. If he is in a hurry to go, he shall perform the daily recitation of the Veda in the presence of his teacher, and then go at his pleasure. In this manner good fortune will attend both of them.

\[ \text{samāvṛttām ced ācāryo- ‘abhyaγacchet tam abhimukho- ‘ abhyaγamyā tasya- upasamṇgrhya na bīhatsamāna udakam upasprṣet puraśṛtya- }

4. If the [former] teacher visits him after he has returned home, he shall go out to meet him, and touch his [feet], without washing afterwards showing disgust. He shall let him enter the house first, and then fetch [the materials necessary for a hospitable reception], and honour him according to the rule.

Though he may suspect that the teacher had been defiled by the touch of a Cāṇḍāla or the like, still he shall not show disgust nor wash himself.’ — Haradatta.

Regarding the rule of receiving guests, see below, 2:4, 8, 6 seq.

\[ \text{āsane śayane bhakṣye bhojye vāsasi vā saṃnihīte nihīnatara vrṭṭīḥ syāt} || 5 || \]

5. If [his former teacher is] present, he himself shall use a seat, a bed, food, and garments inferior to, and lower [than those offered to the teacher].

\[ \text{tiṣṭhan savyena pāṇīṇa- anugṛhya-ācāryam ācamayet} || 6 || \]

6. Standing [slightly bent], one shall place the left hand [under the water-vessel, and bending with his other hand its mouth downwards], he shall offer to his teacher water for sipping.

According to Haradatta, the repetition of the word ācāryam, ‘the teacher,’ in this Sūtra, indicates that the rule holds good not only when the teacher comes as a guest to his former student, but on every occasion when he receives water for sipping.

\[ \text{anyāṃ vā samudetam} || 7 || \]

7. And [he shall offer water for sipping in this manner] to other guests also who possess all [good qualities] together.

He is called samudeta, “possessed of all [good qualities] together,” who is endowed with [good] birth, disposition, behaviour, [great] learning, and a [venerable] age.’— Haradatta.
8. He shall follow [his teacher] in rising, sitting, walking about, and smiling.

In other words he shall do these acts only after his teacher has done them.

9. In the presence [of the teacher] one shall not defecate, fart, speak aloud, laugh, spit, clean the teeth, blow the nose, frown, clap hands, nor snap fingers.

10. Nor shall one tenderly embrace or address caressing words to his spouse or children.

11. One shall not contradict what the teacher says.

Contradict out of insolence or cheek, but if there are inconsistencies in the teaching one may make these known and seek clarification.

12. Nor those that are one’s superiors.

13. [One shall not] blame or deprecate any sentient being.

Haradatta states that ‘deprecating’ is forbidden here once more in order that it should be particularly avoided.

For example, one shall not say, “The Rig Veda is sweet to the ear, the other Vedas grate on the ear,” or “the Taittiriya Veda is a śākha consisting of leavings,” or “the Brāhmaṇa proclaimed by Yajñavalkya is of modern origin.” — Haradatta. The second sentence refers to the story that Yajñavalkya vomited the Black Yajur Veda, and his fellow-students, becoming partridges, picked it up. Regarding the third sentence, see Vārttika on Pānini 4, 3, 105,

15. If one does not achieve perfection in a [branch of] the Veda [which he studied formerly], he shall again go to the [same] teacher and master it, observing the [same] rules as [during his first studentship].

16. The restrictions [to be kept] by the teacher from the beginning of the course of [annual] teaching [upākarma] to its end [utsarjana – vide 1:3:9:2] are: to avoid cutting the hair on the body, partaking of meat or of food-offerings to the Manes, and sex.

These things can be done again once the course has ended under the full-moon of Pausha — about 5 months.

1. If any doubts arise regarding the caste and conduct of a person who has come in order to fulfil his duty [of learning the Veda], he (the teacher) shall kindle a fire [with the ceremonies prescribed for kindling the sacrificial fire] and ask [the prospective student] about his caste and conduct.

The person desirous to study addresses his teacher elect with the following mantra:—Bhaṭaγvan maṭreṇa caṅśuṣā paśya śivena manasānugṛhaṇa prasīda mām adhyāpayya, ‘venerable Sir, look on me with a friendly eye, receive me with a favourable mind, be kind and teach me.’ The teacher elect then asks:—Kim gotro ‘śi saumya, kim-ācāraḥ, ‘friend, of what family are you? what is your mode of conduct?
2. If he declares himself to be [of] good [family and conduct, the teacher select] shall say, ‘Agni who sees, Vāyu who hears, Aditya who brings to light, vouch for his goodness; may it be well with this person! He is free from blame.’ Then he shall begin to teach him.

3. A guest comes to the house resembling a burning fire.

   The object of this Sūtra is to show the absolute necessity of feeding a guest. For, if offended, he might burn the house with the flames of his anger.

4. A śrotiṣya is considered to be one who, observing the law [of studentship], has learned one complete recension of the Veda.

   The object of this Sūtra is to complete the definition of the term ‘guest’ to be given in the following Sūtra. The literal sense of Apastamba’s words is, ‘He who, observing the law, has studied one recension of each [of the four] Vedas, becomes a śrotiṣya.’ Haradatta says this definition would be contrary to the current acceptance of the term. That argument proves, however, nothing for Apastamba’s times.

5. A guest (atithi) is one who, approaches a householder solely for the fulfilment of his religious duties (Dharma), and with no other purpose. (Manu 3:102, 103; Yajñ. 1:111.)

6. The reward for honouring [such a guest] is immunity from misfortunes, and heavenly bliss. (Yajñ. 1.109. Manu 3:101.)

7. One shall go out to meet such [a guest], honour him according to his age [by the formulas of salutation prescribed], and cause a seat to be given to him.

8. Some declare that, if possible, the seat should have many legs.

   Haradatta states that this is also Apastamba’s opinion.
9. The [householder himself] shall wash the feet of that [guest]; according to some, two śūdras shall do it.

10. One of them shall be employed in pouring water [over the guest, the other in washing his feet].

11. Some declare that the water for the [guest] shall be brought in an earthen vessel.

According to Haradatta, Apastamba is of opinion that it should be brought in a jar made of metal.

12. But water should not be fetched for [a guest] who has not yet completed his studies.

It is unnecessary to offer water for washing the feet to a student.

13. In case a [student comes, the host] shall chant the Veda [together with him] for a longer time [than with other guests].

14. He shall converse kindly [with his guest], and please him with milk or other [drinks], with eatables, or at least with water.

15. He shall offer to his guest a room, a bed, a mattress, a pillow with a cover, and ointment, and what else [may be necessary].

‘Ointment, ie. oil or clarified butter for anointing the feet.’ — Haradatta. Manu 3:107.

16. [If dinner has already been finished before the arrival of the guest], he shall call his cook and give him rice or wheat for [preparing a fresh meal for] the guest. (Manu 3:108.)

17. [If dinner is ready when the guest arrives], he himself shall serve out the food and look at it, saying [to himself], ‘Is this [portion] greater, or...

18. He shall say, ‘Take out a larger [portion for the guest].’

dviṣan dviṣato vā na-annam aśnīyād doṣeṇa vā māṃsāṃsamāṇasya māṃśīstasya vā

19. A guest who is at enmity [with his host] shall not eat his food, nor [shall he eat the food of a host] who hates him or accuses him of a crime, or of one who is suspected of a crime. (Manu 4, 213; Yajñ. 1. 162.)

20. For it is declared in the Veda that he [who eats the food of such a person] eats his guilt.

sa eṣa prājāpatyaḥ kuṭṭumbino yajño nitya pratataḥ

1. This reception of guests is an everlasting [śrauta] sacrifice offered by the householder to Prajāpati.

‘Prajāpatya may mean either “created by Prajāpati” or sacred to “Prajāpati.” — Haradatta.

yo- ‘atithīnāṁ agnih sa āhavanīya yaḥ kuṭumbe sa gārhapatyo yasmin pacyate so-’ānvāhāryapacanaḥ

2. The fire in the stomach of the guest [represents] the Ahavanīya, [the sacred fire] in the house of the host represents the Gārhapatya, the fire at which the food for the guest is cooked [represents] the fire used for cooking the sacrificial viands [the Dakṣināgni].

In the first Sūtra the reception of guests had been compared to an everlasting Vedic sacrifice. This analogy is traced further in detail in this Sūtra. One of the chief characteristics of a Vedic sacrifice is the vītāṇa or the use of three sacred fires; Hence Apastamba shows that three fires also are used in offering hospitality to guests.

   The morning, midday, and evening offerings offered at the great Vedic sacrifices are called Savanas. The object of this Sūtra is to prescribe the hospitable reception of guests at all times of the day, and to further describe the similarity of a guest-offering to a Vedic sacrifice.

7. When he rises after his guest has risen [to depart], that act represents the Udavāsanīya-īṣṭi [of a Vedic sacrifice].

13. If a guest comes to an Agnihotrin, he himself shall go to meet him and say to him:—“O faithful fulfiller of vows, where did you stay [last night]?” [Then he offers water, saying]:—”O faithful fulfiller of vows, here is water”. [Next he offers milk or the like, saying]:—”O faithful fulfiller of vows, may [these fluids] refresh [you]”.

An Agnihotrin is a Brāhmaṇa who offers certain daily burnt offerings called Agnihotra. The translation of the last clause renders tarpayantu, the reading of the Atharva Veda.

purā-agnihotrasya homād upāṃśu āpat \ vrātya yathā te manas tathā-astu-iti \ vrātya yathā te vaśas tathā-astu-iti \ vrātya yathā te priyaṁ tathā-astu-iti \ vrātya yathā te nikāmas tathā-astu-iti || 14 ||

14. [If the guest stays at the time of the Agnihotra, he shall make him sit down to the north of the fire and] murmur in a low voice, before offering the oblations:—”O faithful fulfiller of vows, may it be as your heart desires;” “O faithful fulfiller of vows, may it be as your will is;” “O faithful fulfiller of the vows, may it be as your wish is;” “O faithful fulfiller of the vows, may it be as your desire is.”

According to some, all these sentences must be pronounced; according to Haradatta, one only, which may be selected optionally.

yasya-uddhṛteṣv ahuteṣv agniṣv atithiṣv abhyāgacchet svayam enam abhyudetya brūyāt vrātya atisṛṣṭa hoṣyāmi \ ity atisṛṣṭena hotavyam \ anatisṛṣṭaṣ ca jhuṣyād doṣaṁ brāhmaṇam āha || 15 ||

15. If a guest comes, after the fires have been placed [on the altar], but before the oblations have been offered, [the host] himself shall approach him and say to him:— O faithful fulfiller of vows, give me permission; I wish to sacrifice.’ Then he shall sacrifice, after having received permission. A Brāhmaṇa text declares that he commits a sin if he sacrifices without permission.

Haradatta states that the Brāhmaṇa mentioned in the text is the Atharvana Brāhmaṇa see Atharva Veda 15:11 - 12.

16. One who entertains guests for one night obtains earthly happiness, a second night gains the middle air, a third heavenly bliss, a fourth the world of unsurpassable bliss; many nights procure endless worlds. That has been declared in the Veda.

17. If an unlearned person who pretends to be ‘guest’ approaches, one shall offer a seat, water, and food, [thinking] “I give it to a learned Brāhmaṇa.’ Thus [the merit] of his [gift] becomes [as] great [as if a learned Brāhmaṇa had received it].

This illustrates the power of one’s mental attitude and resolve.

1. On the second and following days of the guest’s stay, the host shall not rise or descend.

2. One shall eat after the guests. (Manu 3:117; Yajñ. 1.105.)

3. One shall not consume all the flavoured liquids in the house, so as to leave nothing for guests.

Flavoured liquids, ie. milk, whey, lassi, juices etc.
4. One shall not have sweets prepared for his own sake. (Manu 3:106.)

Madhuparka

Madhuparka is a procedure for formally welcoming certain types of distinguished visitors.

5. [A guest] who can repeat the [whole] Veda [together with the supplementary books] is worthy to receive a cow and the Madhuparka, (Manu 3:119 and 120; Yajñ 1:110.)

A guest is also called gogha, ‘cow-killer,’ because formerly a cow used to be killed on the arrival of a distinguished guest. The rite is described by Āśvalāyana Gṛhya-sūtra 1:24, 31-33.

6. [And also] the teacher, an officiating priest, a Snātaka, and a just king [though not learned in the Veda].

Nowadays the only time Madhuparka is offered is at the time of marriage to the son-in-law (who is supposed to be a Snātaka i.e. Vedic graduate). In lieu of the cow a coconut is offered which he rolls away with a request not to kill the cow for him but to let it roam about and eat grass and drink water.

7. A cow and the Madhuparka [shall be offered] to the teacher, to an officiating priest, to a father-in-law, and to a king, if they come after a year has elapsed [since their former visit].

8. The Madhuparka shall consist of curds mixed with honey, or of milk mixed with honey. (Āśvalāyana Gṛhya sūtra 1:24, 5 and 6.)

9. In the absence [of these substances] water [mixed with honey may be used].

10. The Veda has six Aṅgas [auxiliary works].

This Sūtra explains the term, vedādhyāya ‘[a guest] who can repeat the [whole]

Veda,’ which occurs above, Sūtra 5. - Haradatta.

\[ chandah kalpo vyakaranam jyotisham niruktam shiksha chando vicitr iti \]

11. [The six auxiliary works are] the Kalpa [teaching the ritual] of the Veda, the treatises on grammar, astronomy, etymology, phonetics, and metrics.

\[ sabda artha arambhanam tu karmanam samamnaya samaptau veda sabdaḥ \]

12. [If any one should contend that] the term Veda [on account of its etymology, implying that which teaches duty or whereby one obtains spiritual merit] applies to the complete collection of [works which contain] rules for rites to be performed on the authority of precepts, [that, consequently, the Kalpa sūtras form part of the Veda, and that thereby] the number [fixed above] for those [Aṅgas] is proved to be wrong,

This Sūtra and the following one are directed against those who consider the Kalpa sūtras to be a part of the Veda, the revealed texts.

\[ angapanam tu pradhanair avyapadesa iti nyayavit samayah \]

13. [Then we answer], All those who are learned in Mimāṃsa agree that [the terms Veda, Brāhmaṇa etc., which are applied to] the principal works, do not include the Aṅgas [the Kalpa sūtras and the rest].

2. [If the guest] possesses a vehicle, [he shall accompany him] as far as that.

\[ yāvat-na- anujānīyād itarah \]

3. Any other [guests he must accompany], until permission to return is given.
4. If a guest forgets [to give leave to depart], the [host] may return upon reaching the boundary of the village.

5. To all [those who come for food] at [the end of] the Vaiśvadeva he shall give a portion, even to dogs and chaṇḍālas.

6. Some declare that he shall not give anything to unworthy people [such as Caṇḍālas].

7. A person who has been initiated shall not eat the leavings of women or of an uninitiated person.

8. All gifts are to be preceded by [pouring out] water.

9. [But gifts offered to priests] at sacrifices [are to be given] in the manner prescribed by the Veda.

14. For a wife who assists at the kindling of the fires, becomes connected with those religious rites of which that [fire-kindling] forms a part.

A wife who assists at the kindling of the fires for any sacrificial rite, becomes connected with that rite like any priest, and in that rite no other woman can take her place. Hence in the case of an Agnihotra, which lasts during the performer’s lifetime, or at least as long as he is a householder, the performer cannot take another principal wife after he once has begun his sacrifice. If the wife of an Agnihotrin dies, he must marry again, and also kindle his fires afresh. Manu 5:167, 168; Yajñ. 1:89.

15. He shall not give his daughter to a man belonging to the same Gotra,

The term Gotra means a clan and may be of two kinds, Vaidika for Brāhmaṇas and Laukika, ‘worldly,’ for others. In the first case it denotes persons descended from the same Rishi; in the second, persons distinguished by the same family name, or known to be descended from the same ancestor. In our days Brāhmaṇas also have Laukika Gotras, which form subdivisions of the very large Vedic Gotras. Manu 3:5; Yajñ.1:33;

The term yoni-sambandha, ‘related [within six degrees],’ corresponds to the more common Sapiṇḍa of Manu, Yajñavalkya, and others; see the definitions given below, 2:6:15:2 In Apastamba’s terminology Sapiṇḍa has probably a more restricted sense. It seems very doubtful whether Haradatta’s explanation of ca’ translated by ‘or,’ is correct, and whether his interpolation of the fathers ought to be admitted. Probably Śūtra 15 refers to the father’s side, and Śūtra 16 to the mother’s side.

18. At the wedding called Arṣa, the bridegroom shall present to the father of the bride a bull and a cow. (Manu 3:29; Yajñ. 1:59).
19. At the wedding called Daiva, [the father] shall give her to an officiating priest, who is performing a śrauta-sacrifice. (Manu 3:28; Yajñ. 1:59)

20. If a maiden and a lover unite themselves through love, that is called the Gāndharva-rite. (Manu 3:32; Yajñ. 1:61)

1. If the suitor pays as much money [for his bride] as he can afford, and marries her [afterwards], that [marriage is called] the Asura-rite. (Manu 3:31; Yajñ. 1:61.)

   It must be understood that, at this rite, a regular sale of the bride must take place. If a suitor merely gives presents to the bride, that is not an Asura-marriage.

2. If the [bridegroom and his friends] abduct [the bride] after having overcome [by force] her father [or relations], that is called the Rākṣasa-rite. (Manu 3:33; Yajñ. 1:61.)

   Haradatta points out that the other law-books enumerate two additional marriage rites, the Prajāpatya or Kāya and the Paisāca. But Vasiṣṭha 1:29-35, like Apastamba, gives six rites only.

3. The first three amongst these [marriage-rites are considered] praiseworthy; each preceding one better than the one following. (Manu 3:24, 25; Yajñ. 1:58-60.)

4. The quality of the offspring is according to the quality of the marriage-rite.

   ie. from praiseworthy marriages virtuous children are born, and from blamable marriages bad ones. Manu 3:42.

In the case of a person who slept at sunset, of one who slept at sunrise, of one who has discoloured nails or teeth, of one who married a younger sister before the elder one was married, of one who married an elder sister whose younger sister had been married already, [of a younger brother who has kindled the sacred Grhya-fire before his elder brother,] of one whose younger brother has kindled the sacred fire first, [of a younger brother who offers a Soma-sacrifice before his elder brother,] of an elder brother whose younger brother offered a Soma sacrifice first, of an elder brother who marries or receives his portion of the inheritance after his younger brother, and of a younger brother who takes a wife or receives his portion of the inheritance before his elder brother, — penances ordained for misdemeanours causing impurity, a heavier one for each succeeding case, must be performed.

These sinners are enumerated in nearly the same order in Taittiriya-Brāhmaṇa 3:2,

6. Now they quote also [the following Gātha from the Veda]:—'[Having considered myself] formerly a father, I shall not now allow [any longer] my wives [to be approached by other men], since they have declared that a son belongs to the begetter in the world of Yama. The giver of the seed carries off the son after death in Yama’s world; therefore they guard their wives, fearing the seed of strangers. Carefully watch over [the procreation of] your children, lest stranger seed be sown on your soil. In the next world the son belongs to the begetter, an [imprudent] husband makes the [begetting of] children vain [for himself].'

According to Haradatta this Gātha gives the sentiments of a husband who neglected to guard his wives, and who had heard from those learned in the law that the sons of his unfaithful wives would in the next world belong to their natural fathers, and that he would not derive any spiritual benefit from their offerings. He adds that this verse does not refer to or prevent the appointment of a eunuch’s wife or of a childless widow to a relation. He also quotes a passage from the śrauta-sūtra
1. 9. 7, in which the dvipitā, the son of two fathers is mentioned. But Haradatta’s opinion cannot be reconciled with the statements made below 2:10:27:—2-7 where the Niyoga is plainly forbidden. Baudhāyana, who 2, 3, 34 quotes the same Gātha, reads in the first line the vocative ‘janaka’ instead of the nominative ‘janakaḥ,’ and in the fifth line ‘pare bijāni’ instead of ‘parabijāni.’ The commentator Govindasvamin adds that the verses are addressed by the Rishi Aupajaṅghani to king Janaka of Videha. The translation of the first line must therefore run thus:— ‘O Janaka, now I am jealous of my wives, [though I was] not so formerly,’ etc.
Baudhāyana’s readings are probably the older ones, and Govindasvamin’s explanation the right one.

10. The gift [or adoption of a child] and the right to sell [or buy] a child are not recognised.

Haradatta opines that, as most other Smṛtis enumerate the ‘adopted son’, and ‘the son bought’ in their lists of substitutes for natural sons, Apastamba’s rule can refer only to the gift or sale of an eldest son, or to the gift or sale of a child prompted by a woman. Though it is possible that he may be right in his interpretation, it remains a remarkable fact that Apastamba does not mention the ‘twelve kinds of substitute sons,’ which are known to other Smṛtis.

11. It has been heard that at the time of marriage, a groom may give a present to the father of the bride, as an act of Dharma or personal pleasure. Therefore he should give a hundred [cows] and a vehicle; which the father-in-law should return to him. In reference to those [marriage-rites], the word ‘sale ‘ [which occurs in some Smṛtis is only used as] a metaphorical expression; for the union [of the husband and wife] is effected through the practice of Dharma only.

This Sūtra seems to be directed against Vasiṣṭha 1:36.

1. [The householder] should, during his lifetime, divide his wealth equally amongst his sons, excepting the klība (non-reproductive or gay), the insane, and the outcast.

The last Sūtra of Khaṇḍa 13 and the first of Khaṇḍa 14 are quoted by Colebrooke, Digest, Book 5: Text xlii, and Miṭākṣara, Chap. 1. Sect. iii, Par. 6. Colebrooke translates, jīvan, ‘during his lifetime,’ by ‘who makes a partition during his lifetime.’ This is not quite correct, Apastamba intends to exhort householders to make a division during their lifetime, as later they ought to become ascetics or hermits.

Haradatta introduces into his commentary on this Sūtra the whole chapter on the division of a father’s estate amongst his sons, supplementing Apastamba’s short rule by the texts of other lawyers. No doubt Apastamba means to lay down, in these and the following Sūtras only the leading principles of the law of inheritance, and he intends that the remaining particulars should be supplied from the law of custom or other Smṛtis.

_putra abhāve yaḥ pratyāsannāḥ sapindah _ II 2 II

2. On the absence of sons the nearest Sapiṇḍa [takes the inheritance].

Haradatta gives in his commentary a full summary of the rules on the succession of remoter relations. One point only deserves special mention. He declares that it is the opinion of Apastamba, that widows cannot inherit. In this he is probably right, as Apastamba does not mention them, and the use of the masculine ‘sapindah’ precludes the possibility of including them under that collective term. It seems to me certain, that Apastamba, like Baudhāyana, considered women, especially widows, unfit to inherit.

7. In some countries gold, [or] black cattle, [or] black produce of the earth is the share of the eldest.

‘Black produce of the earth,” ie. black grain, or according to others black iron.’ — Haradatta. Compare for this and the following Sūtras Colebrooke, Miṭākṣara, Chap. 1. Sect. iii, Par. 6.

_rathaḥ pituḥ parībhāṇḍaṃ ca grhe _ II 8 II

8. The vehicle and the furniture in the house are the father’s [share].
Miṭākṣara, Chap. 1. Sect. iii, Par. 6. Both the P.U. and Mr. U.MSS. of the Ujjvalā read rathaḥ pitar其所 grhe yat-paribhāṃgam upakaraṇam pīṭhādi tadapi, ‘the chariot [is] the father’s share; the furniture which [is] in the house, that also.’

To this reading Mahādeva’s Ujjvala on the Hiraṇyakesī Śūtra points likewise, which gives pitur antaḥ. The N.U.MS. of the Ujjvala, according to which I made the translation given in the Appendix to West and Buhler’s Digest [1st edition], leaves out the word amśaḥ and therefore makes it necessary to combine this Śūtra with the preceding one, and to translate, ‘The father’s chariot and the furniture in the house [are] also [the share of the eldest].’ This latter translation agrees nearly with that given by Colebrooke, Digest, Book 5: Text xlviii, where this and the preceding Śūtra have been joined; but the chariot is not mentioned. A further variation in the interpretation of this Śūtra occurs in Colebrooke’s Digest, Book 5: Text lxxxix, and Miṭākṣara, loc. cit., where the words ‘the furniture in the house’ are joined with Śūtra 9, and the furniture is declared to be the wife’s share. Considering that Śūtra 9 is again quoted in Colebrooke’s Digest, Book 5: Text cccclxsii, and is not joined with the latter part of Śūtra 8, it is not too much to say that Gagannatha has not shown any greater accuracy than his brethren usually do.

9. According to some, the share of the wife consists of her gold-ornaments, and the wealth [which she may have received] from her relations.

The Miṭākṣara, loc. cit., apparently takes the words ‘according to some’ as referring only to property received from relations. The former interpretation is, however, admissible, if the Śūtra is split into two.

11. For it is declared in the Veda, without [marking] a difference [in the treatment of the sons]:—”Manu divided his wealth amongst his sons”. (Taittiriya Samhita 3:1:9:4)

atha-āpi tasmāt-yāṣṭhaṃ putraṃ dhanena niravasāyayanti-ity ekavat-śrūyate ||

12. Now the Veda declares also in conformity with [the rule in favour of the eldest son] alone:—They distinguish the eldest by [a larger share of] the heritage.

‘Athāpi [now also] means ‘and certainly.’ They distinguish, they set apart the eldest son by wealth:—this has been declared in the Veda in conformity with [the rule regarding] sons [heir, Śūtra 6]. He denies [Śūtra 13] that a passage also, which agrees with the statement that the eldest son alone inherits, is found in the Veda.’

13. [But to this plea in favour of the eldest I answer]:—Now those who are acquainted With the interpretation of the law declare a statement of facts not to be a rule, is for instance [the following]:—’Therefore amongst domestic animals, goats and sheep walk together’, [or the following], ‘Therefore the face of a learned Brāhmaṇa [a Snātaka] is, as it were, resplendent’, [or], ‘A Brāhmaṇa who has studied the Vedas [a śrotriya] and a he-goat evince the strongest sexual desires’.

Those who are acquainted with the interpretation of the law are the Mīmāmsakas. The translation of the second Vedic passage is by no means certain, as the root ribh, translated by ‘to be resplendent,’ usually means ‘to give a sound.’ Haradatta thinks that Apastamba means to show that the passage ‘Manu divided his wealth among his sons’ is likewise merely a statement of facts, and cannot be considered a rule. This is probably erroneous, as Sūtras 10 and 11 distinctly state, that the practice to allow the eldest alone to inherit, is forbidden by the above mentioned passage of the Veda.

14. Therefore all [sons] who are virtuous inherit.

15. But him who wastes money unrighteously, he shall disinherit, though he be the eldest son.

The translation of pratipādayati, ‘expends,’ by ‘gains,’ which is also proposed by Gagannatha, is against Apastamba’s usage, see 2:5:11, 17, and below, 2:8:20:19

16. No division takes place between husband and wife.

According to Haradatta, this Sūtra gives the reason why, in Sūtra 1, no share has been set apart for the wife.

17. For, from the time of marriage, they are united in religious ceremonies,

18. Likewise also as regards the rewards for works by which spiritual merit is acquired,
19. And with respect to the acquisition of property.

Yajñ. 3:5:7 seq. The Mantra to be spoken in throwing the water is, ‘I give this water for you N.N. of the family of N.N.’ The water ought to be mixed with sesame.

According to Haradatta those who know the correct interpretation, declare that the word ‘women’ denotes in this Sūtra ‘the Smṛtis.’ But I fear these learned interpreters will find few adherents among those who pay attention to the last Sūtra of this work.

15. Nor [can food] mixed with bad food [be used for a burnt-oblation].

Avarāṇa, ‘bad food,’ is explained by kulitha which is a kind of vetch which is considered low food, and eaten by the lower castes only. The meaning of the Sūtra, therefore - · If anybody has been forced by poverty to mix his rice or Dal with kulitha or similar bad food, he cannot offer a burnt-oblation at the Vaiśvadeva ceremony with that. He must observe the rule, given in the following Sūtra.

1. Formerly humans and gods lived together in this world. Then the gods in reward of their sacrifices went to heaven, but humans were left behind. Those who perform sacrifices in the same manner as the gods did, dwell [after death] with the gods and Brahma in heaven. Now [seeing humans left behind], Manu revealed a ceremony, which is designated by the word śrāddha (a post-mortem-oblation).

Intending to give the rules regarding the monthly śrāddha, he premises this explanatory statement in order to praise that sacrifice.’ — Haradatta.

2. And [thus this rite has been revealed] for the liberation of humankind.

The reading ‘nihśreyasa ca’ apparently has given great trouble to the commentators. Their explanations are, however, grammatically impossible. The right one is to take nihśreyasa as a Vedic instrumental, for nihśreyasena, which may designate the ‘reason.’ If the dative is read, the sense remains the same.

This latter statement explains why Apastamba declares its reward to be ‘success in battle.’ The nature of the reward shows that on that day Kṣatriyas, not Brāhmaṇas, should offer their śrāddhas.

Manu 3:152 - 166, and particularly 153 and 154; Yajñ. 1. 222 - 224.

Haradatta’s explanation of the word “śūdra” by a Brāhmaṇa who has become a śūdra’ is probably right, because the son of a real śūdra and of a Brāhmaṇa male a Caṇḍāla, and has been disposed of by the preceding sūtra.

Compare Manu-3:185, 186.; Yajñ.1:219-221.

The three verses to be known by a Trimadhu are, Madhu vata ritayate, etc., which occur both in the Taitt. Samh; and in the Taitt. Ar. The explanation of Trisuparna is not certain. Haradatta thinks that it may mean either a person who knows the three verses catuṣ-kaṇḍā yuvatiḥ supeśā, etc., Taittiriya Brāhmaṇa 1:2:1:27 etc., or one who knows the three Anuvākas from the Taittiriya Aranyaka 10:48 - 50, beginning, Brahmam-etu mam, etc. The word “Tri-naciketa” has three explanations:—. A person who knows the Naciketa-fire according to the Taittiriya Kaṭhaṇavalli, and the Satapatha, i.e. has studied the portions on the Naciketa-fire in these three books. b. A person who has thrice kindled the Naciketa-fire. c. A person who has studied the Anuvākas called Virajas. “Catuṃmedha may” also mean he who has performed the four sacrifices:’ enumerated above.

5. He shall make a lump of as much [food] as he can swallow [at once].

The verbum finitum, which according to the Sanskrit text ought to be taken with the participle samnayan, is grasīta, Sūtra 9.

6. [And he shall] not scatter anything [on the ground].

7. He shall not let go the vessel [with his left hand];

8. Or he may let it go.

‘Why is this second alternative mentioned, as [the first Sūtra] suffices? True. But according to the maxim that “restrictions are made on account of the continuance of an action once begun,” the meaning of the second Sūtra is that he shall continue to the end to:—handle the vessel [in that manner in which] he has handled it when eating for the first time.’ — Haradatta.

9. He shall swallow the whole mouthful at once, introducing it, together with the thumb, [into the mouth.]

10. He shall make no noise with his mouth [whilst eating].

11. And he shall not shake his right hand [whilst eating].

12. After he [has eaten and] sipped water, he shall raise his hands, until the water has run off [and they have become dry].

13. After that he shall touch fire.

14. And [during this ceremony] he shall not eat in the day-time anything but roots and fruit.

15. And let him avoid Sthāli-pāka offerings, and food offered to the Manes.

3. He who desires prosperity shall fast in the half of the year when the sun goes to the north. Under the constellation Tiśya, in the first half of the month, for [a day and] a night at least, prepare a Sthālipāka-offering, offer burnt-oblations to Kubera [the god of riches], feed a Brāhmaṇa with that [food prepared for the Sthālipāka] mixed with clarified butter, and make him wish prosperity with [a Mantra implying prosperity.

The reason that the constellation Tiśya has been chosen for this rite seems to be that Tiśya has another name, Puśya i.e. prosperous'. This sacrifice is to begin on the Tiśya-day of the month called Taśa or Pauṣa [December-January], and to continue for one year.

1. There are four orders, viz. the order of householders, the order of students, the order of ascetics, and the order of hermits in the woods.
(Manu 6:87.)

Though four [orders] are enumerated, he uses the word “four,” lest, in the absence of a distinct rule of the venerable teacher, one order only, that of the householder, should be allowed, as has been taught in other Smṛtis. — Haradatta.

ata eva brahmacaryavān pravrajati || 8 ||

8. Only after [having fulfilled] the duties of that [order of students] he shall go forth [as an ascetic], remaining chaste.

The meaning of the Sūtra is, that the studentship is a necessary preliminary for the Samnyāsin. If a man considers himself sufficiently purified by his life in that order, he may become a Samnyāsin immediately after its completion. Otherwise he may first become a householder, or a hermit, and enter the last order, when his passions are entirely extinct. (See also Manu 6:36; Yajñ. 3:56 - 57.)

Haradatta apparently takes the word Shastras to mean ‘Dharma-śāstras.

utsṛjamāṇo vācam || 21 ||

21. He shall keep one fire only, have no house, enjoy no pleasures, have no protector, observe silence, uttering speech on the occasion of the daily recitation of the Veda only.

But which is that one fire? Certainly not the Gṛhya-fire, because he must remain chaste. Therefore the meaning intended is, “He shall offer a Samidhā morn and evening in the common fire, just as formerly, [during his studentship].” Another commentator says, ‘Gautama declares that he shall kindle a fire according to the rule of the śrāmanaka Sūtra. The śrāmanaka Sūtra is the Vaikhānasā Sūtra. Having kindled a fire in the manner prescribed there, he shall sacrifice in it every morning and every evening.” ‘ — Haradatta. (See also Manu 6:4; Yajñ. 3:46.)

23. His couch and seat must not be covered [with mats].
24. If he obtains fresh grain, he shall throw away the old [store]. (Manu 6:15; Yajñ. 3:47)

1. If he desires [to perform] very great austerities, he [shall not make a hoard of grain, but] collect food every day only, morning and evening, in his vessel.

The following rules apply to a solitary hermit.

2. Afterwards he shall wander about, sustaining his life with roots, fruits, leaves, and grass [which he collects]. Finally [he shall content himself with] what has become detached spontaneously. Then he shall live on water, then on air, [and finally] upon ether. Each succeeding mode of subsistence procures greater rewards.

These Śūtras are repeated in order to show that, according to the opinion of those who allow hermits to live with their families, the end should be the same.

3. Now they quote [the following] two verses from a Purana:—

4. Those eighty thousand sages who desired offspring passed to the south by āryaman’s road and obtained cremation grounds.

This verse and the next are applied to disparage the order of householders.

Haradatta explains ‘cremation-grounds’ by ‘new births which lead to new deaths; but see below śūtra 10, also Yajñ. 3:186 - 187
6. Thus are praised those who keep the vow of chastity.

7. Now they accomplish also their wishes merely by conceiving them,

8. For instance [the desire to procure] rain, to bestow children, second sight, to move quick as thought, and other [desires] of this description.

9. Therefore on account of [passages] of the revealed texts, and on account of the visible results, some declare these orders [of men keeping the vow of chastity] to be the most excellent.

10. But [to this we] answer:—It is the firm opinion of those who are well versed in the threefold sacred learning, that the Vedas are the highest authority. They consider that the [rites] which are ordered there to be performed with rice, barley, animals, clarified butter, milk, potsherds, [in conjunction] with the wife, [and accompanied] by loud or muttered (Mantras), must be performed, and that [hence] a rule of conduct which is opposed to these [rites] is of no authority.

11. But by the term cremation-ground [in the text above given] it is intended to ordain the last rites for those who have performed many sacrifices, [and not to mean that dead householders become demons and haunt cemeteries.]

The Śūtra is intended to remove the blame thrown on the order of householders by the verse quoted. Haradatta seems to have forgotten his former explanation of Śmaśānāṇi.

12. The revealed texts declare that after [the burial follows] a reward without end, which is designated by the term ‘heavenly bliss.’

Apastamba’s own opinion is apparently against pure asceticism.

   According to Haradatta, who quotes Gautama in his commentary, the śulka is the 1.20th part of a merchant’s gains. On account of the Sūtras immediately following, it is, however, more probable that the term is here used as a synonym of ‘kara,’ and includes all taxes. ‘Lawful’ taxes are, of course, those sanctioned by custom and approved of by the Smṛtis.

This Śūtra refers to the begetting of a surrogate or kṣetraja son, and gives the usual rule, that only the Sagotras or clansman who is related by blood, a brother, a cousin, brother-in-law, etc. shall be employed as sperm donors rather than strangers. ĀPASTAMBA GṛHYA SŪTRAS

Introductory Note

The short treatise of Āpastamba on the Gṛhya ritual forms one Prasna of the great corpus of the Āpastambiya Kalpa-Sūtra and stands, among the Gṛhya texts, in closest connection with the Hiranyakeśin Gṛhya Sutra, these two Sutras, both belonging to the Taittiriya School of the Black Yajur-Veda. The difference between them is that Āpastamba gives only the rules for the performance of the Gṛhya rites without the Mantras, which are contained in a special collection, the Mantrapāṭha, standing by the side of the Sutras: Hiranyakeśin, on the other hand, follows the more usual practice, as adopted by śāṅkhāyana, āśvalāyana, Pāraskara, of interweaving the description of the ceremonies with the text of the corresponding Mantras.

Paṭala 1:Section 1.

1. Now [follow] the ceremonies [the knowledge of] which is derived from practice [and not from the śruti].

2. They should be performed during the northern course of the sun (uttarāyaṇa), on days of the first fortnight (śukla-paśa), on auspicious days,

3. With the sacrificial thread suspended over [the sacrificer’s] left shoulder (upavīti).

4. [The rites should be performed] from left to right.

5. The beginning should be made on the east side or on the north side.

6. And also the end.

7. Ceremonies relating to the Ancestors [are performed] in the second fortnight (kṛṣṇa-paśa).

8. With the sacrificial thread draped over the right shoulder (prācīnāvīti)

9. From right to left.

10. Ending in the south.

11. Ceremonies occasioned by special occurrences [are performed] according as their occasions demand. 6

12. Having kindled the fire, one strews eastward-pointed Darbha grass around it. 7

6 The Parībhaṣas for the Pākayajñas. 7-10. Comp. 7 with 2, 8 with 3:9 with 4,10 with 6.

7 Description of the regular form of a Pākayajña.
13. Or eastward-pointed and northward-pointed [darbha grass];

14. Southward-pointed at sacrifices to the Ancestors,

15. Or southward-pointed and eastward-pointed.

16 To the north of the fire one strews Darbha grass and [on that] one places the vessels [required for sacrifice] upside-down, in pairs, if during ceremonies related to the gods.

17. All at once, if to humans.

18. One by one, if to the Ancestors.

19. The preparation of the [blades used as] “purifiers,” the measure of their length, the preparation of the Prokṣani water, and the sprinkling of the vessels are the same here [to the Ancestors] as at the sacrifices of the new and full moon, [but are performed] in silence. (Comp. śrauta-Sūtra 1: 11, 6 seq.)

Preparation of the praṇīta water

20. To the west of the fire one pours water into a vessel over which one has laid [two grass blades called] pavitrīs, purifies [the water] three times with two northward-pointed pavitrīs, raises it to the level of the nose and mouth, places it to the north of the fire on Darbha grass, and covers it with Darbha grass.

Invocation of the Brāhmaṇa

21. On the south side he invites a Brāhmaṇa to sit down on Darbha grass.

Preparation of the Ghee

22. One melts the ājya, pours it, to the west of the fire, into the ājya-sthāli, over which he has laid two purifiers, draws coals [out of the sacrificial fire] from the north, puts [the ājya-sthāli] on them, throws light on it by means of a burning [grass-blade] throws two Darbha points into it, moves a firebrand round it three times, takes it from the fire towards the north, sweeps the coals back [into the fire], purifies [the ājya] three times with two northward-pointed purifiers, moving them backward and forward, and throws the purifiers into the fire.

Paṭala 1: Section 2.

Preparation of the Sruk-sruva

8 There are two types of clarified butter used in yajñas — Ājya is made from goat’s milk and ghṛta is made from cow’s milk.
1. One warms the [two] sacrificial ladles over the fire, wipes them with Darbha blades, warms them again, sprinkles it [with water], puts it down, touches them with Darbha blades with water, and throws [the blades] into the fire.

   Placing the Paridhis

2. As paridhis [pieces of wood laid round the fire] yoke-pins are used at the marriage, the Upanayana, the Samāvartana, the parting of the [wife’s] hair, the tonsure of the child’s hair, the cutting of the beard, and at expiatory ceremonies.

   Sprinkling Water

3. He sprinkles water round the fire, on the south side from west to east with [the words], “Aditi, give thy consent!” on the west side from south to north with “Anumati, give thy consent!” on the north side from west to east with “Sarasvati, give thy consent!” all around with “God Savitri, please impel us!”

4. At ceremonies belonging to the Ancestors [water is sprinkled] only all round [the fire], silently.

   The Āghāra and Ājya-bhāga Oblations

5. Having put a piece of wood on the fire, he offers the two āghāra oblations as at the sacrifices of the new and full-moon, silently.

6. Then he offers the two ājyabhāga oblations, over the easterly part of the northerly part [of the fire] with [the words], “To Agni Svāhā!” over the easterly part of the southerly part [another oblation] exactly like the preceding one, with [the words], “To Soma Svāhā!”

   The Pradhāna Homa

7. Having offered the chief oblations [belonging to each sacrifice] according to prescription, one adds the following oblations, viz. the Jaya, Abhyātana, Rāṣṭrabhṛt oblations, the oblation to Prajāpati, the Vyāhṛtis one by one, the oblation to [Agni] Sviṣṭakṛt with [the following formula]: “What I have done too much in this ceremony, or what I have done here too little, all that may Agni Sviṣṭakṛt, he who knows, make well sacrificed and well offered. Svāhā!”

8. The sprinkling [of water] round [the fire is repeated] as above; the Mantras are altered so as to say, “Thou hast given thy consent”, “Thou hast given thy impulse.”

9. The designation “Pāka-yajña” is used of ceremonies connected with material life.

10. There the ritual based on the Brāhmaṇa [holds good].

9 The śrauta rules on the two āghāras are given śrauta-Sūtra 11:12, 7; 14,1 One to prajāpati – streaming the ghee from the North-west corner to the South-east corner of the kuṇḍa. The one oblation to Indra from the South-west corner to the North-east corner.

10 Comp. śrauta-Sūtra 11:18 5; Hillebrandt, loc. cit., p. 106, note 3

12 According to Haradatta, this Sutra would imply that wheresoever the ritual described in the preceding Sutras holds good, another ritual based on the Brāhmaṇa, and more especially on the treatment of the Agnihotra in the Brahmaṇa, may be used in its stead.
11. [To which the words allude], “He sacrifices twice; he wipes off [his hand] twice; he partakes twice [of the sacrificial food]; having gone away he sips [out of the śruk] and licks off [the śruk].”

The Wedding Ceremony

12. All seasons are fit for marriage with the exception of the two months of the śiśira (flower) season, and of the last summer month.

13. All Nakṣatras which are stated to be faultless, [are fit for marriage];

15. And one should learn from women what ceremonies [are required by custom].

16. Under the Invākas [Nakṣatra], [the messengers who go to the girl’s father] are sent out: such messengers are welcome.

Paṭala 1: Section 3.

1. Under Magha [Nakṣatra] cows are given;

2. Under Phālgunī [Nakṣatra] marriage is celebrated.

3. A daughter whom he wishes to be dear [to her husband], a father should give in marriage under the Nīśṭya [Nakṣatra]; thus she becomes dear [to her husband]; she does not return [to her father’s] house: this is an observance based on a Brāhmaṇa.¹³

4. The word Invākās means Mṛgaśiras; the word Nīśṭya means Svāti.¹⁴

5. At the wedding one cow [is given].

6. In the house one cow [is given].

7. With the [first cow] he should prepare an Arghya reception for the bridegroom as for a guest.

8. With the other [the bridegroom should do so] for a person whom he reveres.¹⁵

9. These are the occasions for slaughtering a cow: [the arrival of] a guest, [the Aṣṭaka sacrifice offered to] the Ancestors, and marriage.

10. Let [the wooer] avoid in his wooing, a girl that sleeps, or cries, or has left home.¹⁶

11. And let him avoid one who has been given [married to another], and who is over protected [by her relations], and one who looks wicked [?], or who is a most excellent one [?], or [who is like the fabulous deer] sarabhā [?], a hunch-back, a girl of monstrous appearance, a bald headed girl, a girl whose skin is like a frog’s [?], a girl who has gone over to another family [?], a girl given to sensual pleasures [?], or a

12. Girls who have the name of a Nakshatra, or of a river, or of a tree, are objectionable.

13. And all girls in whose names the second to last letter is r or l, one should avoid in wooing.

14. If possible, he should place [the following] objects hidden before the girl, and should say to her, “Touch [one of these things].”

15. [The objects are], different kinds of seeds mixed together, loose earth from [the sacrificial altar called] vedi, an earth-clod from a field, cow-dung, and an earth-clod from a cemetery.

16. If she touches one of the former [objects, this portends] prosperity as characterized [by the nature of what she has touched].

17. The last is regarded as objectionable.

18. Let him marry a girl of good family and character, with auspicious characteristics, and of good health.

19. Good family, a good character, auspicious characteristics, learning and good health: these are the required qualities of a bridegroom.

20. A bride who is pleasing to his mind and his eyes, will bring happiness to him; let him pay no attention to the other things: — such is the opinion of some.

Paṭala 2, Section 4

1. Let him send out as his wooers friends who have assembled, who are versed in the Mantras.

2. He should recite over them the first two verses (Mantrap. 1:1:1;2).

3. When he himself has seen [the bride], let him recite the third mantra (M. 1:1:3).

4. With the fourth (M. 1:1:4) let him gaze at her.

5. Let him seize with his [right] thumb and ring-finger a Darbha blade, and let him wipe [therewith] the forehead between her eye-brows with the next Yajus (M. 1:1:5), and let him throw it away towards the west.

6. If a negative omen occurs [such as the bride’s or her relations’ weeping], let him recite the next mantra (1:1:6).

7. With the next mantra (1:1:7) let him send an even number of persons who have assembled there, and who are versed in the Mantras, to fetch water.

17. Most expressions in this Sutra are quite doubtful, and their translation rests on the explanations of the commentators [see pp. 44:45 of Dr. Winternitz’s edition], which are evidently for the most part only guesses.
8. With the next Yajus (M. 1:1:8) he places [a crown of] Darbha grass on her head; on that, with the next mantra (M. 1:1:9) he places a right yoke-hole; on this hole he lays with the next mantra (M. 1:1:10), a piece of gold, and bathes her with the next five verses (M. 1:2, 1-5), [So that the water runs over that gold and through the yoke-hole]; with the next mantra (M. 1:2, 6) he causes her to dress in a new garment, and with the next (M1:2,7) he girds her with a rope [made of darbha grass].

9. Then he takes hold of her with the next mantra (M.1;2;8) by her right hand, leads her to the fire, spreads a grass mat to west of the fire, so that the points of the blades in it are directed towards the north, and on this mat they both sit down, the bridegroom to the north.

10. After the ceremonies have been performed from the putting of wood on the fire down to the ājyabhāga oblations, he recites over her the first two [verses of the third Anuvāka].

11. Then he should take with his right hand, palm down, her right hand which she holds palm up.

12. If he wishes that only daughters may be born to him, he should seize only the fingers [without the thumb];

13. If he wishes that only sons may be born to him, the thumb.

14. He takes [her hand] so as just to touch her thumb and the little hairs [on her hand],

15. With the four verses, “I take your hand ………..” (1:3:3-6).

16. He then makes her step forward with her right foot, to the north of the fire, in an easterly or northerly direction, with [the formula], “One step for nutrition” (M. 1:3:7)

17. At the seventh step he recites, “You’re my friend in life …… ” (1:3:14)

Paṭala 2, Section 5.

1. Having before the sacrifice circumambulated the fire, in a clockwise manner.

2. They sit down in their former position, and while she touches him, he offers the oblations [indicated by the] next mantras, with [the Mantras], “To Soma, the acquirer of a wife, Svāhā!” (M.1:4,1-16), one oblation with each Mantra

3. He then makes her tread with her right foot on a [mill-]stone, to the north of the fire, with [the verse], “Tread upon this stone” (M.1:5.1). (See below, IV,10, 9.)

4. Having sprinkled ājya into her joined hands, he pours puffed grain twice [into them], and sprinkles ājya over it.

5. Pours the grain [into her hands].

18 The seventh step is the point at which the marriage becomes fixed and irrevocable. Ed.

19 Some prayogas have the brother of the bride perform the function of pouring puffed grains into the bride’s hands. Ed.
6. He\textsuperscript{20} sacrifices [that grain] with [the verse], “This woman …..” (M. 1:5:2).

7. Having circumambulated the fire, in a clockwise direction, with the next three verses; (M. 1:5:3-5) he makes her tread on the stone as above (M.1:5:6).

8. And the oblation [of puffed rice is performed] with the next mantra (M.1:5:7).

9. [Then follow] again the circumambulation (M.1:5:8-10), the injunction to tread on the stone (M.1:5,11), and the oblation with the next mantra (M.1:5,12).

10. [Then] the circumambulation again \textsuperscript{21} (M.1:5,13-15).

11. He then undertakes the performance of the \textit{Jaya} and other oblations.

12. Having performed [the rites] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire], and having untied the rope with the next two verses (M.1:5,6,7), he should then take her away [from her father’s house in a vehicle], or should have her taken away.

13. Having put that fire [with which the marriage rites have been performed, into a vessel], they carry it behind [the newly-married couple].

14. It should be kept constantly.

15. If it goes out, [a new fire] should be kindled by attrition,

16. Or it should be fetched from the house of a śrotiya.

17. Besides, if [the fire] goes out, one of them, either the wife or the husband, should fast.

18. Or he may sacrifice with the next mantra (M.1:5,18), and not fast.

19. The next mantra (M.1:6,1) is for putting the chariot [on which the young couple is to depart], in position;

20. With the next two verses (M.1:6,2,3), he harnesses the two animals to the chariot;

21. First the right one.

22. When she mounts [the chariot], he recites over her the next mantras (M.1:6,4-7).

23. With the next mantra (M.1:6,8), he spreads out two threads in the wheel-tracks [in which the chariot is to go], a dark-blue one in the right [track], a red one in the left.

24. With the next verses (M. 1:6,9) he walks on these [threads].

\textsuperscript{20} “The action of sacrificing belongs to the bridegroom; the hands of the wife represent the sacrificial vessel.” Haradatta.— “It is the bridegroom who sacrifices the grain with the verse, “This wife……” Sudaśanārya. 7. See above, Sutra 3.

There is a controversy over who exactly offers the grains — husband or wife. Some ācāryas direct the husband to simply hold the wife’s cupped hands like a vessel while she pours the grains into the fire, others opine that the wife receives the grains and then offers them into the hands of he husband who is the one to actually pour them into the fire. Ed.

\textsuperscript{21} There is also a controversy about how many times the couple circumambulate the fire. Some say that this verse indicates a separate and fourth round, some say it applies to the last of the group of 3 rounds. The prayogas usually direct 4 rounds – the first 3 are lead by the bride and the last by the groom. Ed.
25. And when they pass by bathing-places, posts, or cross-roads, let him recite the next mantra (M. 1:6,12).

Paṭala 2, Section 6.

1. The next mantra (M.1:6,13), he recites over a boat [with which they are going to cross a river].
2. And let the wife, when she is crossing, not look at the crew.
3. When they have crossed, let him recite the next mantra, (M. 1:6,14).
4. If they have to pass by a charnel ground, or if any article [which they carry with them], or their vehicle breaks, the ceremonies from the putting of wood on the fire down to the ājyabhāga oblations are performed, and while she touches him, he offers the oblations [indicated by the] next (Mantras; M.1:7.1-7) then he offers the Jaya and following oblations, and performs [the rites] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire].
5. If they pass by trees with milky sap or by other trees that serve as marks, by rivers or by deserts, he should recite the next two verses (M.1:7,8,9), according to the characteristics in them [which refer to these different cases].
6. With the next [verse] he shows her the house (M.1:7,10).
7. With the next two verses; (M.1:7,11-12) He unyokes the two animals; the right one first.
8. Having, with the next mantra (M.1:8,1), spread out, in the centre of the house, a red bull’s skin with the neck to the east, with the hair up, he makes her recite the next mantra (M. 1:8,2), while he makes her enter the house, [which she does] with her right foot.
9. And she should not tread on the threshold.
10. In the north-east part of the house the ceremonies from the putting of wood on the fire down to the ājyabhāga oblations are performed, and while she touches him, he offers the oblations [indicated by the] next Mantras; (M. 1:8, 3-15); then he offers the Jaya and following oblations, and performs [the rites] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire]. Then they sit down with the next mantra (M.3;1.1:9,1) on the [bull’s] hide, the bridegroom to the north.
11. He then places with the next mantra (M. 1:9,2), the son of a woman who has only sons and whose children are alive, in her lap, gives fruits to the [child] with the next Yajus (M. 1:9,3), and recites the next two verses; (M. 1:9, 4-5). Then he [and his wife] observe silence until the stars appear.
12. When the stars have appeared, he goes out [of the house with her] in an easterly or northerly direction, and shows her the polar star and [the star] Arundhati with the next two verses (M. 1:9,6-7), according to the characteristics [contained in those verses].
1. He then makes her offer the sacrifice of a Sthālipāka sacred to Agni.

2. The wife husks [the rice grains out of which this Sthālipāka is prepared].

3. After he has cooked [the Sthālipāka], and has sprinkled [ājya] over it, and has taken it from the fire towards the east or the north, and has sprinkled [ājya] over it while it stands [there near the fire], [the ceremonies] from the putting of wood on the fire down to the ājyabhāga oblations [are performed], and while she touches him, he offers oblations of that Sthālipāka.

4. The “spreading under” and the “sprinkling over” [of ājya are done] once; two Avadānas [or cut-off portions are taken].

5. Agni is the deity [of the first oblation]; the offering is made with the word Śvāhā.

6. Or he may sacrifice after having picked out, once, a portion [of the sacrificial food with the Darvi spoon].

7. Agni Svistakrt is the second [deity].

8. [At the Svistakrt oblation] the “spreading under” and taking an Avadāna are done once, the sprinkling over [of ājya] twice.

9. The Avadāna for the first deity [is taken] out of the middle [of the Sthālipāka];

10. It is offered over the centre [of the fire].

11. [The Avadāna] for the second [deity is taken] from the northern part [of the Sthālipāka];

12. It is offered over the easterly part of the northerly part [of the fire].

13. Having silently anointed [a part of] the Barhis [by dipping it] into the remains both [of the Sthālipāka and the ājya] in the way prescribed [in the śrauta ritual] for the [part of the Barhis called] Prastāra, he throws [that part of the Barhis] into the fire.22

14. [The rule regarding] the second sprinkling [of water round the fire] is valid [here].

15. He gives [the remains of] that [sacrificial food] with butter to a Brāhmaṇa to eat —

16. — whom he reveres. To that [Brāhmaṇa] he makes the present of a bull.23

17. In the same way, with the exception of the dakshina, they should offer a Sthālipāka from then onwards, on the days of the new and full moon, after having fasted.

18. Some say that a vessel full [of grain] is the honorarium.

19. From then onwards he should offer morning and evening24 with his hand these two oblations [to Agni and to Agni Svistakṛt] of [rice] grains or of barley.

9. Between their sleeping-places a staff is interposed, which is anointed with perfumes and wrapped round with a garment or a thread.

10. In the last part of the fourth night he takes up the [staff] with the next two verses (M. 1:10,1-2), washes it and puts it away; then [the ceremonies] from the putting of wood on the fire down to the ājyabhāga oblations [are performed], and while she touches him, he offers the oblations [indicated by the] next mantras; (M.1:10, 3-9); then he offer the Jaya and following oblations, and performs [the rites] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire]. Then he makes her sit down to the west of the fire, facing the east, and pours some āhya of the remains [of those oblations] on her head with the [three] Vyahrtis and the word Om as the fourth (M. 1:10, 10—13). Then they look at each other with the next two verses (M. 1:11:1-2), according to the characteristics [contained in those verses]; with the next verse (M.1:11:3) he besmears the region of their hearts with remains of āhya; then he should recite the next three verses (M.1:11:4-6), and should recite the rest [of the Anuvaka; 1:11:7-11] when cohabiting with her.

11. Or another person should recite [the rest of the Anuvaka] over her, [before they cohabit].

12. During her [first] monthly period he instructs her about the things forbidden [to menstruating women], contained in the Brāhmaṇa, in the section, “A menstruating woman with whom,” &c. (Taittiriya Samhita 2:5,1:6 seq.)

29 ii. 5. 1. Viśvarupa, son of Tvāstr, was the domestic priest of the gods, and the sister's son of the Asuras.
He had three heads, one which drank Soma, one Sura, and one which ate food. He promised openly the share to the gods, secretly to the Asuras. Men promise openly the share to every one; if they promise any one secretly, his share is indeed promised. Therefore Indra was afraid (thinking), 'Such an one is diverting the sovereignty (from me).’ He took his bolt and smote off his heads. (The head) which drank Soma [1] became a hazelcock; (the head) which drank Sura a sparrow; (the head) which ate food a partridge. He seized with his hand the guilt of slaying him, and bore it for a year. Creatures called out upon him, 'Thou art a Brahman slayer.' He appealed to the earth, 'Take a third part of my guilt.' She said, 'Let me choose a boon. I deem that I shall be overcome through digging. Let me not be overcome by that.' He replied, 'Before [2] a year is out it will grow up for thee.' Therefore before the year is out the dug-out portion of earth grows up again, for that was what she chose as a boon. She took a third of his guilt. That became a natural fissure; therefore one who has piled up a fire-altar and whose deity is faith should not choose a natural fissure, for that is the colour of guilt. He appealed to the trees, 'Take a third part of my guilt.' They said, 'Let us choose a boon. We deem that we shall be overcome through pruning [3]. Let us not be overcome by that.' He replied, 'From pruning shall more (shoots) spring up for you.' Therefore from the pruning of trees more (shoots) spring up, for that was what they chose as a boon. They took a third part of his guilt, it became sap; therefore one should not partake of sap, for it is the colour of guilt. Or rather the sap which is red or which comes from the pruning one should not partake [4], but of other sap at will. He appealed to a concourse of women, 'Take the third of my guilt.' They said, 'Let us choose a boon; let us obtain offspring from after the menses; let us enjoy intercourse at will up to birth.' Therefore women obtain offspring from after the menses, and enjoy intercourse at will up to birth, for that was what they chose as a boon. They took a third of his guilt, it became (a woman) with stained garments; therefore one should not converse with (a woman) with stained garments [5], one should not sit with her, nor eat her food, for she keeps emitting the colour of guilt. Or rather they say, 'Woman's food is unguent, and therefore one should not accept (from her) unguent, but anything else (can be accepted) at will.
Paṭala 3, Section 9

1. Each following night with an even number, from the fourth [after the beginning of her period] till the sixteenth, brings more excellent offspring to them, if chosen for the [first] cohabiting after her period; thus it is said.

2. If he sneezes or coughs while going about on business, he should touch water and should recite the two following verses; (M.1:13;5—6) according to the characteristics [which they contain].

3. In the same way with the next Mantras (M. 1:13,7—10) — he should address the following objects], according to the characteristics [which those Mantras contain]: a conspicuous tree, a heap of excrements, the skirt [of his garment] which is blown against him by the wind, and a shrieking bird.

4. One [for instance, the wife’s father] who wishes that the hearts of both [husband and wife] may be in accord should observe chastity through at least three nights and should prepare a Sthālipāka. Then [the ceremonies] from the putting [of wood] on [the fire] down to the ājyabhāga oblations [are performed], and while the wife touches him, he sacrifices of the Sthālipāka the oblations [indicated by the] next Mantras; (M.1:14;1—7); then he offers the Jaya and following oblations, and performs [the rites] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire]. [The remains of] the [sacrificial food] with butter, he should give to eat to an even number of Brāhmaṇas, at least to two, and should cause them to pronounce wishes for his success.

5. When the moon, on the following day, will be located in the nakṣatra of Tiśya, she strews three times seven barley-grains around [the plant pāṭham] Clypea Hernandifolia with [the formula], “If you belong to Varuṇa, I redeem you from Varuṇa. If you belong to Soma, I redeem you from Soma.”

6. On the following day she should set upright [the plant] with the next mantra (M. 1:15,1), should recite the next three [verses; M. 1:15,2-4] over it, should tie [its root] with the next mantra (M. 1:15,5) to her hands so that [her husband] does not see it, and should, when they have gone to bed, embrace her husband with her arms, with the verse alluding to the word upadhāna [“putting on”] (M.1:15,6).

7. Thus he will be controlled by her.

8. By this [rite] also [a wife] overcomes her co-wives.

9. For this same purpose she worships the sun daily with the next Anuvāka (M.1:16).

10. If a wife is affected with consumption or is otherwise sick, one who has to observe chastity, should rub her limbs with young lotus leaves which are still rolled up, and with lotus roots, with the next mantras (limb by limb] according to the characteristics [contained in those formulas]: (M.1:17,1-6), and should throw away [the leaves and roots] towards the west.

11. With the next verses (M.1:17,7-10) he should give the wife’s garment [which she has worn at the wedding?] to [a Brāhmaṇa] who knows this [ceremony].

Paṭala 4, Section 10

1. We shall explain the Upanayana (initiation of the student).
2. Let him initiate a Brāhmaṇa in the eighth year.
3. A Rājanya in the eleventh, a Vaiśya in the twelfth year.
4. Spring, summer, autumn: these are the [fit] seasons [for the Upanayana], corresponding to the order of the castes.
5. [The boy’s] father serves food to Brāhmaṇas and causes them to pronounce auspicious wishes, and serves food to the boy. [The teacher] pours together, with the first Yajus [of the next Anuvāka, warm and cold] water, pouring the warm water into the cold, and moistens [the boy’s] head with the next mantra (M. 11:1:2).
6. Having put three Darbha blades into his hair [on each of the four sides of the head] one shaves the hair with the next four verses; (M.2:1:3-6) with the different Mantras, at each of the different [four] sides [of the boy’s head]31.
7. With the following verse (M.2:1,7) somebody addresses [the barber] while he is shaving32.
8. In the southern direction, his mother or a Brahmacārin strews barley-grains on a lump of bull’s dung; with this [dung] she catches up the hair [that is cut off], and puts it down with the next [verse ; M. 2:1:8] at the root of an Udumbara tree or in a tuft of Darbha grass.
9. After [the boy] has bathed, and [the ceremonies] from the putting [of wood] on [the fire] down to the ājyabhāga oblations [have been performed], he causes him to put a piece of Palāśa wood on the fire with the next mantra (M. 2:2,1), and makes him tread with his right foot on a stone to the north of the fire, with [the verse], “Tread” (M.2:2, 2).
10. Having recited the next two verses; (M.2:2,3,4) over a garment that has been spun and woven on one day, and has caused him, with the next three mantras (M.2:2,5-7), to put it on, he recites over him, after he has put it on, the next mantra (M.2:2,8).
11. He ties thrice around him, from left to right, a threefold-twisted girdle of Muṇja grass33 with the next two verses; (M.2:2, 9. 10), and [gives him] a skin as his outer garment with the next mantra (M.2,11).
12. To the north of the fire [the teacher] spreads out Darbha grass; on that he causes [the boy] to stand with the next mantra (M.2:3,1), pours his joined hands full of water into [the boy’s] joined hands, makes him sprinkle himself three times with the next mantra.

31 In actual practice the teacher or the father holds the darbha blades to the four sides of the boys head — front, back and sides — the mantras and the blades of darbha are cut. The barber then shaves the head leaving the topknot.
32 Haradatta: The teacher addresses the barber, &c.—Sudarśanārya: The mother of the boy or a Brahmacārin [comp. Sutra 8] . . . addresses the teacher who shaves him.
33 Comp. Apast. Dharma-Sūtra 1:1:2, 33; 1:3:3 seq. 12. As to the words, “he initiates him” [upanayati], comp. Śāṅkhāyana 11:2,11. 12; āśvalāyana 1:20, 4 &C.
(M.2:3,2), takes hold of his right hand with the next formulas; (M.2:3:3-12), gives him with the next formulas; (M.2:3,13-23) in charge to the deities [mentioned in those Mantras], initiates him with the next Yajus (M.2:3,24), and recites into his right ear the (Mantra), “Blessed with offspring be”. (M.2:3,25).

Paṭala 4, Section 11.

1. The boy says, “I have come to lead the life of a student” (M:2:3,26).
2. The other [ie. the teacher] has to ask; the boy has to answer (M.2:3:27-30).
3. The other recites the rest [of the Anuvāka].
4. And causes the boy to repeat [the Mantra] which contains wishes for himself (M.2:3:32).
5. [The rites] down to the ājyabhāgas have been prescribed.
6. Having then caused him to sacrifice the oblations [indicated in the] next mantras; (M.2:4:1-11), following oblations.
7. Having performed [the rites] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire], he puts down, to the west of the fire, a bunch of northward-pointed grass; on that [the teacher] who performs the initiation, sits down with the next Yajus (M.2:4,12.
8. The boy, sitting to the east [of him], facing the west, seizes with his right hand [the teacher’s] right foot and says, “Recite the Sāvitrī, Sir!”
10. Pāda by Pāda, hemistich by hemistich, and the whole [verse].
11. [When repeating the Sāvitrī Pāda by Pāda, he pronounces] the Vyāhṛtis singly at the beginning or at the end of the Pādas;
12. In the same way [the first and the second Vyāhṛti at the beginning or at the end] of the hemistiches; the last [Vyāhṛti, when he repeats] the whole verse.
13. With the next Mantra (M.2:4,14) the boy touches his upper lip;
14. With the next (M.2:4,15) both his ears;
15. With the next (M.2:5:1) he takes up the staff.
16. The staff of a Brāhmaṇa is made of Palāśa wood, that of a Rājanya of a branch of the Nyagrodha tree, so that the downward-turned end [of the branch] forms the tip [of the staff], that of a Vaiśya of Bādara or Udumbara wood.
17. Some state [only], without any reference to caste, that the staff should be made of the wood of a tree.34

34 These Sutras are identical with Dharma-Sūtra 1:1:2, 3 [S. B. E., vol. 11:p. 9).
18. After [the teacher] has made him repeat [the formula], “My memory” (M. 11:5:2), and he has bestowed an optional gift on his teacher, and [the teacher] has made him arise with [the formula, M2:5,3], “Up, with life!” [the student] worships the sun with the next (Mantras; 11:5,4).

19. If [the teacher] wishes, “May this [student] not be estranged from me,” let him take [the student] by the right hand with the next mantra (M.2:5:6).

20. They keep that fire [used at the Upanayana] three days,

21. And [during that time] salted and pungent food should be avoided.

22. Having wiped [with his hand wet] around [the fire] with [the formula], “Around thee” (M.2:6,1), he should put [twelve] pieces of wood on that [fire] with the next-mantras (M.2:6:2-13).

23. In the same way also on another [fire, when the Upanayana fire is kept no longer],

24. Fetching fuel regularly from the forest.

25. With the next formula (M.2:6,14) the teacher instructs [the student in his duties].

26. On the fourth day [after the Upanayana the teacher] takes the garment [of the student] for himself with the next mantra (M.2:6,15), having made him put on another [garment].

Paṭala 5, Section 12.

1. Having studied the Veda, when going to take the bath [which signifies the end of his studentship], he enters a cow-shed before sunrise, hangs over its door a skin with the hair inside, and sits there.

2. On that day the sun should not shine upon him. 13:2. See above, 4,11:7.

3. At noon, after [the ceremonies] from the putting [of wood] on the fire down to the ājyabhāga oblations [have been performed], he puts a piece of Palāśa wood on [the fire] with the next mantra (M.2:7,1), sits down to the west of the fire on a mat or on erakā grass, recites the next mantra, (M.2:7, 2) over a razor, and hands it over to the barber with the next Yajus (M.2:7, 3). [The rites] beginning with the pouring together of [warm and cold] water down to the burying of the hair are the same as above (comp. M.2:7, 4).

4. He sits down behind the cow-shed, takes the mekhala off, and hands it over to a Brahmacārīn.

5. The [Brahmacārīn] hides it with the next Yajus (M.2:7,5) at the root of an Udumbara tree or in a tuft of Darbha grass.36

35 The garment which the teacher takes for himself is that mentioned above, IV,10,10. 12, 3. See above, IV,10, 5-8. 6. See IV,10, 5.

36 Comp. āśvalāyana-Grhya 1:24,11. 12,
6. With water of the description stated above he bathes with the six next [verses; M2:7,6-11], and with the next (M.2:7,12) he brushes his teeth with a stick of Udumbara wood.

7. Having bathed and anointed his body with such ingredients as are used in bathing, [aromatic powder, &c.],

8. He puts on with the next Yajus (M.2:713) a fresh under garment, and anoints himself, after having given the unguent in charge of the deities with the next mantras, (M.2:7,14), with the next mantra, (M.2:7,15) with sandal paste which is scented with all kinds of perfumes. With the next mantra, (M.2:7,16) he moves about a gold bead with its setting, which is strung on a string, three times from left to right in a water-pot; with the next mantra, (M.2:7,17) he ties the [bead] to his neck; in the same way, without Mantras, he ties a bead of Bādara wood to his left hand, and repeats the rites stated above with a fresh upper garment, with the [verses], “May the rich” 37.

9. To the hem [of that uttariya] he ties two earrings, puts them into the [sacrificial spoon called] Darvi, offers the oblations [indicated by the] next (Mantras; M.2:8, I-8), pouring the āhya, over [the ear-rings], and offers the Jaya and the other oblations.

10. Having performed [the ceremonies] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire], he should fix [one of the ear-rings] with the same [verses] to his right ear, and with the same [verses one] to his left ear.

11. In the same way he should with the following mantras, (M.2:8, 9-9,5), according to the characteristics [contained in them], [put] a garland on his head, anoint [his eyes], look into a mirror, [put on] shoes, [and should take] an umbrella and a staff.

12. He keeps silence until the stars appear.

13. When the stars have appeared, he goes away towards the east or north, worships the quarters [of the horizon] with the next hemistich, and the stars and the moon with the next (M.2:9, 6).

14. Having spoken with a friend he may go where he likes.

Paṭala 5, Section 13.

1. Now this [is] another [way for performing the Samāvartana]. He bathes silently at a bathing-place and puts silently a piece of wood on [the fire].

2. He sits down on a bunch of grass, as stated above (comp. M.2:9,7), at a place where they are going to honour him [with the Argha reception].

3. A king and a chieftain [sit down] in the same way [as a Brāhmaṇa], with the next two mantras (M.2:9,8,9), according to the characteristics [contained in them].

4. [The host] announces [to the guest], “The water for washing the feet!”

37 comp. above, 4,10,10; M.2:7,18
5. [The guest] should recite the next mantra, (M.2:9,10) over [that water] and should stretch out the right foot first to a Brāhmaṇa, the left to a Sudra.

6. Having touched the person who washes him, he should touch himself [ie. his own heart] with the next mantra (M.2:9,11).

7. [The host, taking the Argha water] in an earthen vessel which he holds with two bunches of grass, announces [to the guest], “The Argha water!”

8. [The guest] should recite the next mantra (M.2:9,12) over [that water] and should recite the next Yajus (M.2:9,13), while a part [of the water] is poured over his joined hands.

9. Over the rest [of the water] which is poured out towards the east, he recites the next mantra, (M.2:9,14)

10. [The host] mixes together yoghurt and honey in a brass vessel, covers it with a larger [brass cover], takes hold of it with two bunches of grass, and announces [to the guest], “The honey-mixture!”

11. Some take three substances, [those stated before] and ghee.

12. Some take five, [the three stated before], and grains, and flour.

13. The guest recites the next two mantras (M.2:10,1,2) over [the honey-mixture] and sips water with the two Yajus (M.2:10,3,4) before [eating] and afterwards; with the next mantra, (M.2:10,5) he should partake three times [of the drink] and should give the remainder to a person towards whom he is kindly disposed.

14. A king or a chieftain should only accept it and [give it] to his Purohita.

15. [The host] announces the cow with [the word], “The cow!”

16. After the guest has recited the next mantra, (M.2:10,6) over [the cow, the host kills it and] cooks its omentum, and having performed the ‘spreading under’ and the sprinkling over [of ājya], he sacrifices it with the next verse (M.2:10,7) with a palāśa leaf from the middle or the end [of the stalk].

17. If the guest chooses to let [the cow] loose, he recites the next mantras (M.2:10, 8-11) in a low voice [and says] loudly, “Om! Let it loose!” (M.2:10,12).

18. [In this case] he recites the next mantras (M.2:10,13-17) in a low voice over the food which is announced to him [instead of the cow], [and says] loudly, “Om! Make it ready!” (M.2:10,18).

19. For his teacher, for a Ritvig, for his father-in-law, for a king he ought to perform this [Arghya ceremony] as often as they visit his house, if at least one year has elapsed [since they came last].

20. For a renowned teacher [of the Veda the ceremony should be performed] once.
Paṭala 6, Section 14.

1. The Simantonnayana [or parting of the pregnant wife’s hair, is performed] in her first pregnancy, in the fourth month.

2. [The husband] serves food to Brāhmaṇas and causes them to pronounce auspicious wishes; then, after [the ceremonies] from the putting [of wood] on the fire down to the ājyabhāga oblations [have been performed], he offers the oblations [indicated in the] next mantras (M.2:11,1—8), while [the wife] touches him, and enters upon the [performance] of the Jaya and following oblations.

3. Having performed [the rites] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire], he makes her sit down to the west of the fire, facing the east, and parts her hair upwards [i.e. beginning from the front] with a porcupine’s quill that has three white spots, with three Darbha blades, and with a bunch of unripe Udumbara fruits, with the Vyāhṛtis or with the two next (verses, M.2:11:9.10).

4. He says to two lute-players, “play!”.

5. Of the next two (verses, M.2:11:11.12) the first [is to be sung on this occasion] among the [people of the] Sālavas.

6. The second [is to be used] for Brāhmaṇas; and the river near which they dwell is to be named.

7. He ties barley-grains with young shoots [to the head of the wife]; then she keeps silent until the stars appear.

8. When the stars have appeared, he goes [with his wife] towards the east or north, touches a calf, and recites the Vyāhṛtis; then she breaks her silence.

9. The Pumsavana [i.e. the ceremony to secure the birth of a male child] is performed when the pregnancy has become visible, under the constellation Tiśya.

10. From a branch of a Nyagrodha tree, which points eastward or northward, he takes a shoot with two [fruits that look like] testicles. The putting [of wood] on the fire, &c., is performed as at the Simantonnayana (Sutra 2).

11. He causes a pre-pubescent girl to pound [the Nyagrodha shoot] on an upper mill-stone with another upper mill-stone, and to pour water on it; then he makes his wife lie down on her back to the west of the fire, facing the east, and inserts [the pounded substance] with his thumb into her right nostril, with the next Yajus M.2:11:13).

12. Then she will give birth to a son.

13. Here follows the ceremony to secure a quick delivery (kṣipram-suvanam).

38 The pumsavana sacrament is to be performed before the simantam — it is unclear why both Āpastamba and Hiranyakasīn describe the simantam first. Nowadays both sacraments are usually done on the same day for convenience.

39 āśvalāyana 1:14:7; Pāraskara I:15.8.

40 Sudarśanārāya mentions that instead of the singular ‘she keeps silence, she breaks her silence’, some read the dual, so that the husband and his wife are referred to.

41 Usually in the 3rd month. This is actually the time at which the gender of the foetus is decided — having been female up to this point.
14. With a shallow cup that has not been used before, he draws water in the direction of the river’s current; at his wife’s feet he lays down a Turyanti plant; he should then touch his wife, who is soon to be delivered, on the head, with the next Yajus (M.2:11:14), and should sprinkle her with the water, with the next [three] verses (M.2:11:15-17).

15. If she miscarries then with the recitation of the 2 mantras (M.2.11:18,1942) she should be sprinkled with water.

Paṭala , Section 15.

1. After he has touched the new-born child with the Vātsapra hymn [Taitt. Samh. 4:2:2 M.2:11:20], and has taken him on his hands with the next Yajus (M.2:11:2 I), with the next [three] [verses— M.2:11:22; 12:1.22 — one by one] he addresses the child, kisses him on his head, and recites [the third verse] into his right ear.

2. And he gives him a Nakṣatra name.

3. That is secret.

4. He pours together honey and ghee; into this [mixture] he dips a piece of gold which he has tied with a noose to a Darbha blade. With the next [three] formulas (M.2:12, 3-5) he gives the boy [by means of the piece of gold, some of the mixture] to eat. With the next five [verses, M.2:12, 6-10] he bathes him. Then he pours curds and ghee together and gives him this [mixture which is called] “sprinkled butter” [priṣadājya] to eat out of a brass vessel, with the Vyāḥṛtis to which the syllable “Om” is added as the fourth (M.2:12,11-14). The remainder he should mix with water and pour out in a cow-stable.

5. With the next mantra, (M.2:13:1) he places [the child] in the mother’s lap; with the next (M.2:13:2) he causes her to give him her right breast; with the next two [verses, M.2:13:3. 4] he touches the earth, and after [the child] has been laid down, [he touches him] with the next mantra (M.2:13:5).

6. With the next Yajus (M.2:13:6) he places a water-pot at [the child’s] head, sacrifices mustard seeds and rice-chaff with his joined hands three times with each of the next mantras (M.2:13:7-14:2), repeating each time the word Svāhā, and says [to the people who are accustomed to enter the room in which his wife lies], Whenever you enter, strew silently [mustard seeds with rice-chaff] on the fire.

7. This is to be done until the ten days [after the child’s birth] have elapsed.

8. On the tenth day, after [the mother] has risen and taken a bath, he gives a name to the son. The father and the mother [should pronounce that name first].

9. [It should be a name] of two syllables or of four syllables; the first part should be a noun; the second a verb; it should have a long vowel [or] the contain a semi-vowel.

10. Or it should contain the particle ‘su’, for such a name has a firm foundation; thus it is said in a Brāhmaṇa text.

42 “tila deva padyasva…” and “niraitu prāšni śevalam …”
11. A girl’s name should have an odd number of syllables.

12. When [the father] returns from a journey, he should address the child and kiss him on his head with the next two [verses, M.2:14,3-4], and should recite the next Mantras (M.2:14,5) into his right ear. (Comp. above, Sutra 1.)

13. With the next Yajus (M.2:14,6) he addresses a daughter [when returning from a journey].

Paṭala 6, Section 16.

1. In the sixth month after birth he serves food to Brāhmaṇas and causes them to pronounce auspicious wishes; then he should pour together curds, honey, ghee, and boiled rice, and should give [the mixture] to the child to eat, with the next [four] Mantras (M.2:14:7-10);

2. [He should feed him] with the flesh of a partridge, according to some [teachers].

3. In the third year after his birth the Caula [or tonsure is performed] under [the Nakṣatra of] the two Punarvasus.

4. Brāhmaṇas are entertained with food as at the initiation [Upanayana].

5. The putting [of wood] on the fire, &c. [is performed] as at the Śīmantonayana.

6. He makes [the boy] sit down to the west of the fire, facing the east, combs his hair silently with a porcupine’s quill that has three white spots, with three Darbha blades, and with a bunch of unripe Udumbara fruits; and he arranges the locks in the fashion of his ancestral Rishis,

7. Or according to their family custom.

8. The ceremonies beginning with the pouring together of [warm and cold] water and ending with the putting down of the hair are the same [as above; comp. M.2:14,11). (See IV,10, 5-8.)

9. He puts down the razor after having washed it off.

10. The ceremony is [repeated] three days with the [same razor]. [Then] the rite is finished. 43

11. [The father] gives an optional gift [to the Brāhmaṇa who has assisted].

12. The Godāna [or the ceremony of shaving the beard, is performed] in the sixteenth year, in exactly the same way or optionally under another constellation.

13. Or he may perform the Godāna sacred to Agni. 44

43 I translate as if the words tena tryanam and karmanivṛttim formed two Sutras.

44 “Having performed the same rites as at the opening of the study of the Agneya-kāṇḍa, he performs an Upasthāṇa to the deities as taught with regard to the Sukriyavrata.” Haradatta.—”After the ceremonies down to the ājyabhāgas have been performed, one chief oblation of is offered with the formula, “To Agni, the rṣi of the kāṇḍa svāhā. Sudarśanārya
14. Some prescribe the keeping of a vow through one year in connection with the Godāna. (Compare the statement given in Gobhila III;1:1).

15. The difference [between the Caula and the Godāna] is that [at the Godāna] the whole hair is shaven [without leaving the locks].

16. According to the followers of the Sama-Veda he should “touch water.”

Paṭala 7, Section 17.

1. The ground for building a house should be inclined towards the south-west. He elevates the surface and sweeps [the earth] with a broom of Palāśa wood or of śami wood, with the next mantra, (M.2:15:1), in the same [south-west] direction;

2. In the same way three times.

3. He touches the ground, which has thus been prepared, with the next mantra, (M.2:15:2). Then he has the pits for the posts dug from left to right, throws the earth [from the pits] towards the inside [of the building-ground], and erects the right doorpost with the next two verses, (M.2:15:3-4);

4. In the same way the other [door-post].

5. Having erected after [the door-posts] the other [posts] in the same order in which [the pits] have been dug, he recites the next Yajus (M.2:15:5) over the ridge-pole when it is placed [on the posts],

6. The next [six] Yajus mantras, (M.2:15:6-11) over the [house when it is] finished, according to the characteristics contained in the single formulas.

7. He offers a piece of Palāśa wood or śami wood on fire, takes the fire up [in a dish] with the next verse (M.2:15,12), carries it to the house with the next Yajus (M.2:15,13), and places the fire in the north-eastern part of the house with the next (M.2:15,14).

8. The place for the kumbha (water-vessel) is to the south of that spot.

9. He strews there Darbha grass, so that its points are turned in every direction, pours rice and barley-grains over the [grass] with the next mantra, (M.2:15,15), and thereon he places the water-vessel.

10. With the next Yajus, (M.2:15,16) he pours four potfuls of water into it.

11. If [the kumbha] breaks, he recites the next mantra, (11:15,17) over it.

12. After the ceremonies from the putting of wood on the fire down to the ājyabhāga oblations have been performed, he offers the [four] oblations [indicated by the] next (Mantras; 11:15,18-21); then he offers the Jaya and following oblations.

45 The udakopasparśana according to the rite of the Sāmavedins is described by Gobhila,1:2, 5 seq.
46 This does not accord with vāstu principles which suggest that the house should incline either to the north, north-east or east.
13. Having performed [the rites] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire], he should sprinkle [water] with a water-pot around the house or the resting-place on the inside, with the next Yajus (M.2:15:22) three times from left to right; then he should serve cakes, flour, and boiled rice to the Brähmanas.

Paṭaḷa 7 Section 18.

1. When a boy is attacked by the dog-demon [piśāca], [the father or another performer of the ceremony], having devoted himself to austerities [such as fasting], covers him with a net. Then he causes a gong to be beaten or a bell to be rung, takes [the boy] by another way than the [main] door into the gambling-hall, raises [the earth in the middle of the hall] at the place in which they gamble, sprinkles it [with water], casts the dice, lays [the boy] on his back on the dice, and besprinkles him with his joined hands with curds and salt, with the next [eleven] mantras (M.2:16,1-11), in the morning, at noon, and at night.\(^{47}\)

2. Then he will get well.

3. Over a boy who suffers from the "śaṅkha disease"\(^{48}\), [the father, &c.] having devoted himself to austerities, should recite the next two [verses, M.2:16,12-13], and should pour [water] on his head with a water-pot with the next mantra, (M.2:16,14), in the morning, at noon, and at night.

4. Then he will get well.

5. On the day of the full moon of [the month] śrāvana after sunset a Sthālipāka [is offered]\(^{49}\).

6. After the ceremonies down to the ājyabhāga oblations have been performed in the same way as at the fortnightly sacrifices, he sacrifices of the Sthālipāka, and with each of the next mantras (M.2:16,15-17) he offers with his joined hands Kimsuka flowers.\(^{50}\)

7. With the next [three] verses (M.2:17,1-3) [he offers] pieces of āragvadhā wood [Cathartocarpus fistula];

8. Then the ājya oblations [indicated by the] next mantras (M.2:17,4-7).

9. Then he offers the Jaya and following oblations.

10. Having performed [the rites] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire], he silently takes the objects required [for the rites which he is going to perform], goes out in an easterly or northerly direction, prepares a raised surface, draws on it three lines directed towards the east and three towards the north, pours water on the [lines], and lays [an offering of] flour [for the sarpas] on them, with the next mantra (M.2:17,8).

\(^{47}\) Comp. Pāraskara 1:16:24; Hiranyakeshīn 11:2, 7.

\(^{50}\) Comp. above, 3:7, 2-3.
12. With the next mantras (M.2:17,9-26) he should worship [the serpents], should sprinkle water round [the oblations], should return [to his house] silently without looking back, should sprinkle [water] with a water-pot from left to right, thrice around the house or the resting-place on the inside, with the two verses, “Beat away O white one, with thy foot” (M.2:17,27,28), and should offer food to the Brāhmaṇas.

Paṭala 7, Section 19.

1. The whole grain [which is left over, see above, 7:18,11] they give to the boys to eat.
2. Let him repeat in the same way this Bali offering of whatever food he has got or of flour, from that day to full moon of [the month] Mārgaśīrṣa.
3. On the day of the full moon of Mārgaśīrṣa after sunset a Sthālipāka [is offered as above, 7:18, 5].
4. In the Mantra for the Bali-offering he changes [the word “I shall offer” into] “I have offered.”
5. Then he does not offer [the Bali] any longer.
6. [Now follows] the āgrayaṇa sacrifice [or partaking of the first-fruits] of one who has not set up the [śrauta] fires.
7. He prepares a Sthālipāka of the fresh fruits, sacrifices to the deities of the [śrauta] āgrayaṇa sacrifice with [Agni] Sviṣṭakṛt as the fourth, fills his mouth with grains, swallows them, sips water, forms a lump of the boiled [sacrificial] food, and throws it up with the next Yajus (M.2:18,1) to the roof of the house.
8. [Now follows] the sleeping arrangements in the winter.
9. With the next Yajus (M.2:18,2) they “descend” [or take as their sleeping-place a mattress of straw instead of the high beds which they have used before]. With the next Yajus formulas (M.2:18,3-7) they lie down on a new layer [of straw] on their right sides.
10. The father to the south, the mother to the north [of him], and so the others, one after the other from the eldest to the youngest.
11. After he has arisen, he touches the earth with the next two verses. (M.2:18,8,9).
12. In the same way the lying down, &c., is repeated thrice.
13. Having prepared a Sthālipāka for īśāna51 and one for Kṣetrapati, he goes out in an easterly or northerly direction, prepares a raised surface, [and then follow the ceremonies] beginning with the putting of wood on the fire.
14. To the west of the fire he builds two huts.

51 The description of the śūlagava sacrifice, which here follows, agrees in most points with the statements of Hiranyakeśin 11:3, 8
Paṭala 7, Section 20.

1. With the next mantra, (M.2:18,10) he invokes īśāna in the southern [hut].

2. With worldly words [he invokes] the mīḍuṣī devī (“bountiful goddess”) in the northern [hut].

3. To the middle [between the two huts] jayanta (“the conqueror.”)52

4. He offers them water to drink in the same order in which they have been invoked [to their places], takes three portions of boiled rice [from the Sthālipāka prepared for īśāna], takes [these portions of rice] to the fire, makes [the three gods] touch them with the next mantras (M.2:18,11-13), sacrifices of these portions, to each god of the portion which belongs to him, with the next mantras (M.2:18,14-30), cuts off [Avadānas] from all [portions], and sacrifices with the next Yajus (M.2:18,31) to Agni Śviṣṭakṛt.

5. Having worshipped [the god īśāna] with the next Yajus (M.2:18,32), he distributes with the next mantras (M.2:18, 33-39) leaves together with portions of boiled rice, two [leaves] with each [Yajus], then ten to the divine hosts (M.2:18, 40), and ten to the [divine hosts] that follow [and are referred to in the next Yajus. (M.2:18,41).

6. With the next mantras (M.2:18, 42-45) he does the same as before [ie. he distributes two leaves with each Mantra].

7. Having formed a lump of boiled rice, he puts it into a basket of leaves, and with the next Yajus (M.2:18, 46) hangs it up on a tree.

8. Here he should recite the Rudra texts (Taître. Samh. 4: 5),

9. Or the first and last [Anuvaka].

10. He places his cows around the fire so that the smoke [of the sacrifice] may reach them.

11. With his firmly shut fist full of Darbha grass he sprinkles [them] with scents; the bull first.

12. He should perform a sacrifice to Kṣetrapati, without a fire, in the path used by his cows.

13. He has [the Kṣetrapati] brought to his place in the same way as the īśāna (see above, Sutra 1).

14. He puts [portions of boiled rice] into four or seven leaves, naming [the god].

15. Let him sacrifice quickly; the god is impatient.53

16. With the next two verses, (M.2:18, 47. 48) he offers worship [to Kṣetrapati].

17. The Sthālipāka [belonging to īśāna] he gives to the Brāhmaṇas to eat.

52 verses 1—3. Comp. Hiranyak. 11:3:8, 2—4. Haradatta explains the īśāna, the mīḍuṣī, and the jayanta as images of the three gods.

53 The Kṣetrapati is like a child — unable to sit for very long without getting fidgety and moving off elsewhere.
18. That belonging to Kṣetrapati his blood relatives eat. Or as is the custom in their family.

Paṭala 8, Section 21.

1. The times for the monthly śrāddha are in the Dark Fortnight [of the month], as they are stated.

2. Let him feed, without ulterior motives, pure Brāhmaṇas, versed in the Mantras, who are not connected with himself by blood or by Gotra or by the Mantras [such as his teacher or his pupils], an odd number, at least three.

3. He makes oblations of the food [prepared for the Brāhmaṇas] with the next verses, (M.2:19, 1-7);

4. Then the ājya oblations [indicated by the] next mantras, (M.2:19,8-13).

5. Or in the opposite manner (i.e. he offers ājya with the verses referred to in Sutra 3c and food with those referred to in Sutra 4).

6. Let him touch the whole [food] with the next mantras (M.2:19,14—16).

8. Having caused them with the next mantra (M.2:20,1) to touch [the food, he gives it to them to eat].

9. When they have eaten [and gone away], he goes after them, circumambulates them, turning his right side towards them, spreads out southward pointed Darbha grass in two different layers, pours water on it with the next mantras (M.2:20, 2-7), offers the Piṇḍas, ending in the south, with the next mantras (M.2:20,8-13), pours out water as before with the next mantras (M.2:20,20-23), sprinkles with the next mantra, (M.2:20,24) water three times from right to left round [the Piṇḍas] with a water-pot, besprinkles the vessels, which are turned upside down, repeating the next Yajus (M.2:20,25) at least three times without taking breath, sets up the vessels two by two, cuts off [Avadānas] from all [portions of food], and eats of the remains at least one morsel with the next Yajus (M.2:20,26).

10. Of the dark fortnight that follows after the full moon of Magha, the eighth day falls under [the constellation of] Jyeṣṭha: this day is called Ekāṣṭaka.

11. In the evening before that day [he performs] the preparatory ceremony.

12. He bakes a cake of four cups [of rice]

13. [The cake is prepared] in eight dishes [like a Puroḍāśa], according to some [teachers].
Paṭala 8. Section 22.

1. After the ceremonies down to the ājyabhāga oblations have been performed in the same way as at the fortnightly sacrifices, he makes with his joined hands oblations of the cake with the next mantra, (M.2:20,27).

2. The rest [of the cake] he makes ready, divides [it] into eight parts and offers it to the Brāhmaṇas.

3. On the following day he touches a cow with a Darbha blade, with the words, “I touch thee agreeable to the Ancestors.”

4. Having silently offered five āhya oblations, and having cooked the omentum of the [cow], and performed the “spreading under” and the “sprinkling over” [of āhya], he oblates [the omentum] with the next mantra, (M.2:20—28) with a Palāśa leaf from the middle or the end [of the stalk].

5. [He oblates] boiled rice together with the meat [of the cow] with the next verses. (M.2:20,29—35).

6. Food prepared of meal (Piṣṭanna) with the next mantra. (M.2:21:1).

7. Then the āhya oblations [indicated by the] next mantras. (M.2:21:2—9).

8. [The rites] from the Śviṣṭakṛt down to the offering of the Piṇḍas are the same [as at the śrāddha].

9. Some [teachers] prescribe the Piṇḍa offering for the day after the Aṣṭakā.

10. Here [follows] another [way for celebrating the Aṣṭakā]. He offers yoghurt with his joined hands in the same way as the cake (apūpa).

11. Having left over from the meat of the [cow], (see above, 3.4) as much as is required, on the day after [the Aṣṭakā] [he performs] the rite of the Anvaṣṭakā.

12. This rite has been explained in the description of the monthly śrāddha.

13. If he goes out in order to beg for something, let him recite the next mantras (M.2:21:10-16) and then state his desire.

14. If he has obtained a chariot, he has the horses harnessed to it, turns it to face the east, and touches with the next mantra, (M.2:21:17) the two wheels of the chariot or the two sides.

15. With the next Yajus (M.2:21:18) he should mount, and drive with the next mantra, (M.2:21:19) towards the east or north, and should then drive off on his business.

16. Let him mount a horse with the next mantras (M.2:21:20-30),

17. An elephant with the next mantra (M.2:21:31).

18. If any harm is done him by these two [beasts], let him touch the earth as indicated above.

19. If he is going to a dispute, he takes the parasol and the staff in his left hand.
Paṭala 8. Section 23.

1. Having sacrificed, with his right hand, a fist full of chaff with the next mantra, (M.2:21:32), he should go away and recite the next mantra. (M.2:21:33).

2. Over an angry person let him recite the two next mantras (M.2:22,1-2); then his anger will be appeased.

3. One who wishes that his wife should not have sex with other men, should have big living centipedes ground to powder, and should insert [that powder] with the next mantra (M.2:22,3), while she is sleeping, into her secret parts.

5. For success [in trade] let him offer with the next mantra, (M.2:22,4) —some [portion] from the articles of trade which he has in his house.

6. If he wishes that somebody be not estranged from him, let him pour his own urine into the horn of a living animal, and sprinkle [it] with the next two mantras; (M.2:22,5-6) three times from right to left around [the person] while he is sleeping.

7. In a path which servants or labourers use to run away, he should put an ṵvā (an instrument for holding a hot sacrificial pan) on [a fire], and should offer the oblations [indicated by the] next mantras (M.2:22,7-10).\(^5\)

8. If a fruit falls on him from a tree, or a bird shits on him, or a drop of water falls on him when no rain is expected, he should wipe that off with the next mantras (M.2:22,13), according to the characteristics [contained in these Mantras].

9. If a post of his house puts forth shoots, or if a hive is made in his house [by bees], or if the footprint of a dove is seen in the kitchen, or if diseases arise in his household, or in the case of other marvels or omens, let him perform in the new-moon night, at dead of night, at a place where he does not hear the noise of water, the rites from the putting [of wood] on the fire down to the ājyabhāga oblations, and let him offer the oblations [indicated in the] next mantras; (M.2:22,14-23), and perform the Jaya and following oblations.

10. Having performed [the ceremonies] down to the sprinkling [of water] round [the fire], he puts out towards the south with the next mantra (M.2:22,24) a stone as a barrier for those among whom a death has occurred.
