I am very glad to know that the Sacred Books of the East, published years ago by the Clarendon Press, Oxford, which have been out-of-print for a number of years, will now be available to all students of religion and philosophy. The enterprise of the publishers is commendable and I hope the books will be widely read.

PREFATORY NOTE TO THE NEW EDITION

Since 1948 the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), upon the recommendation of the General Assembly of the United Nations, has been concerned with facilitating the translation of the works most representative of the culture of certain of its Member States, and, in particular, those of Asia.

One of the major difficulties confronting this programme is the lack of translators having both the qualifications and the time to undertake translations of the many outstanding books meriting publication. To help overcome this difficulty in part, UNESCO's advisers in this field (a panel of experts convened every other year by the International Council for Philosophy and Humanistic Studies), have recommended that many worthwhile translations published during the 19th century, and now impossible to find except in a limited number of libraries, should be brought back into print in low-priced editions, for the use of students and of the general public. The experts also pointed out that in certain cases, even though there might be in existence more recent and more accurate translations endowed with a more modern apparatus of scholarship, a number of pioneer works of the greatest value and interest to students of Eastern religions also merited republication.

This point of view was warmly endorsed by the Indian National Academy of Letters (Sahitya Akademi), and the Indian National Commission for Unesco.

It is in the spirit of these recommendations that this work from the famous series "Sacred Books of the East" is now once again being made available to the general public as part of the UNESCO Collection of Representative Works.
First, the man distinguished between eternal and perishable. Later he discovered within himself the germ of the Eternal. This discovery was an epoch in the history of the human mind and the East was the first to discover it.

To watch in the Sacred Books of the East the dawn of this religious consciousness of man, must always remain one of the most inspiring and hallowing sights in the whole history of the world. In order to have a solid foundation for a comparative study of the Religions of the East, we must have before all things, complete and thoroughly faithful translation of their Sacred Books in which some of the ancient sayings were preserved because they were so true and so striking that they could not be forgotten. They contained eternal truths, expressed for the first time in human language.

With profoundest reverence for Dr. S. Radhakrishnan, President of India, who inspired us for the task; our deep sense of gratitude for Dr. C. D. Deshmukh & Dr. D. S. Kothari, for encouraging assistance, esteemed appreciation of UNESCO for the warm endorsement of the cause; and finally with indebtedness to Dr. H. Rau, Director, Max Müller Bhawan, New Delhi, in procuring us the texts of the Series for reprint, we humbly conclude.

The Second Volume will contain a General Introduction to the Grihya-Sūtras.
SĀṆKHĀYANA-GRĪHYA-SŪTRA.
INTRODUCTION
TO THE
SÂNKHYÂYANA-GRihYA-SûTRA.

The Grihya-sûtra ascribed to Sânkhyâyana, which has been edited and translated into German by myself in the XVth volume of the Indische Studien, is based on the first of the four Vedas, the Rig-veda in the Bâshkala recension\(^1\), and among the Brâhmaṇa texts, on the Kaushitaka. Its reputed author, whom we ordinarily find called by his family name, Sânkhyâyana, had the proper name Suyagñã. This we may infer from the lists of Vedic teachers given in different Grihya texts where they describe the Tarpâna ceremony. Though in these lists the order of names varies very much, yet the two names Suyagñã and Sânkhyâyana are constantly placed side by side, so that this fact alone would render it probable that they belonged to the same person. Thus we read in the Sânkhyâyana-Grihya IV, 10 = VI, 1:

Kaholam Kaushitakam, Mahâkaushitakam, Suyagñãm Sânkhyâyanam, Âsvalâyanam, Aitareyam, Mahaitareyam.

Here we have grouped together the two Brâhmaṇa authors (with the fictitious doubles, the great Kaushitaki, the great Aitareya) and the two corresponding Sûtra authors belonging to the two chief branches of the Rigveda literature; first comes one Brâhmaṇa author (for Kahola Kaushitaki is one person) with the Sûtra author connected with him, then the second Sûtra author and the corresponding Brâhmaṇa teacher.

In the Sâmbavya-Grihya (Indische Studien, XV, 154) the corresponding passage runs thus:

Gârgya- Gautama- Sâkalya- Bâbhravya- Mândattavya

\(^1\) See IV, 5, 9.

B 2
[sic]- Māndūkeyāḥ Suyagāḥ- Sāṁkhyāyana- Gātukarnyeyāḥ [sic] Paimga [sic]- Sāmbavy'-Aitareyāḥ.

The same Grihya still more explicitly bears’witness to the name of Suyagāḥ Sāṅkhāyana, by adding at the end of the list from which these names are quoted the following words. Suyagāḥ Sāṅkhāyanas [sic] trī[pya]tu, i. e. ‘May Suyagāḥ Sāṅkhāyana satiate himself (with the water offering).’

In the Āṣvalāyana-Grihya III, 4, we read:

Kaholam Kaushitakam Mahākaushitakam Paingyam
Mahāpaingyam Suyagām Sāṅkhāyanam Aitareyam Mahaitareyam.

We may also quote here a Kārikā given by Nārāyana ¹ in his great commentary on the Sāṅkhāyana-Grihya (I, 1, 10):

Atiāraṇīṣpadānam yad adhvaryuh kurute kvalit²
matam tan na Suyagāḥasya, mathitam so 'tra nekkhati.

It would perhaps be hazardous to claim for the author of this Kārikā the authority of an independent witness, for very likely he may have derived his knowledge from the lists of teachers which we have quoted before. But at all events the concordance of the three Grihya texts furnishes a proof which, I think, cannot be set aside by another testimony which we must mention now. At the end of the Kaushitaki-Āranyaka (Adhyāya 15) we find a Vamsa or list of the teachers by whom the knowledge contained in that Āranyaka is supposed to have been handed down. The opening words of this list run thus:

‘Oṃ! Now follows the Vamsa. Adoration to the Brahman! Adoration to the teachers! We have learnt
(this text) from Guṇākhya Sāṅkhāyana, Guṇākhya Sāṅkhāyana from Kahola Kaushitaki, Kahola Kaushitaki from Uddālaka Āruni, &c.’

It is a very natural supposition that the author of this list intended to begin with the name of the Doctor eponymus, if we may say so, of the Sūtras of his school, and them to proceed to name the Doctor eponymus of the Brāhmaṇas, and after him the more ancient teachers and sages. But whether the author of this passage really supposed this Grukhya Sankhayana to be the author of the Sankhayana-sutras, or not, we shall be justified in following rather the unanimous statements of the texts previously quoted, and in accepting in accordance with them, as the full name of our Suttrakara, the name Suyagn Sankhayana.

The Grihya-sutra which has been here translated presupposes, as all Grihya-sutras do, the existence of the Srauta-sutra, with which it is intimately connected and which is referred to in the Grihya in several instances.

Here the question arises whether the Grihya-sutra was composed by the same author to whom the authorship of the Srauta-sutra belongs, so that the two texts form together, and would, in the conception of their author, be intended to form, one great body of Sutras, or, on the other hand, whether the Grihya-sutra is a later addition to the Srauta-sutra. On this question I have ventured, in the preface to my German edition of Sankhayana, to offer a few remarks which, however, I feel bound to say do not seem to myself quite decisive. I there pointed out that the Grihya-sutra contains a few aphorisms which we should rather expect would have found their place in the Srauta-sutra, if the two texts were composed by the same author and on a common plan. But, apart from the possibility that in a work of such considerable extent as that collection of Sutras would be, such trifling incongruences or irregularities might very easily escape the attention even of a very careful author, there is still another objection that may be urged against the inference drawn by me from such passages. It can be shown that the Grihya texts which we possess are based to some extent on one common original, from which they have taken verbatim, or nearly verbatim, a certain number of aphorisms. Thus if we were to suppose that Sankhayana,

1 See, for instance, Grihya I, 16, 1 (Srauta IV, 16, 2)
2 Indische Studien, vol xv, pp. 11, 12.
3 The Sutras with reference to which I made that observation are I, 8, 14; 14, 13-15; II, 16, 10. Comp. Srauta-sutra II, 7, 12, IV, 21.
4 I intend to give some proofs of this in the General Introduction to the Grihya-sutras which will be given in the second volume of these translations.
or whosoever the author of this Grihya-sūtra may have been, found the aphorisms on which I once based my argument, in that original text, this would explain the occurrence of those passages in a portion of the great body of Sūtras different from that in which we should expect, to meet them. Now several of the passages in question recur identically in other Grihya texts, so that we may infer indeed that they are taken from that lost original, and we have no means to judge whether the other similar passages are not taken from it also. I believe, therefore, that the opinion which I once pronounced regarding the relation in which the two Sūtra texts stand to each other, cannot be vindicated, and that it is better to leave that question unanswered until perhaps further discoveries throw a new light on it.

For the reconstruction of the correct text of the Sāṅkhārayana-Grihya, and occasionally also for its interpretation, it is of considerable importance that we possess, besides the Devanāgarī MSS. of the text and of the commentaries, a South Indian MS. written in the Grantha character (MS. Whish 78 in the library of the Royal Asiatic Society, London) which contains a Grihya based on that of Sāṅkhārayana and following it, during the greater part of the work, nearly word for word. It is designated in the MS., at the end of the single Adhyāyas, as ‘Kaushitaka-Grihya.’ It therefore professes to follow the teaching of the same Brāhmaṇa which is adhered to also by the Sūtra school of Sāṅkhārayana. A metrical commentary, which in the MS. follows after the text, names in its opening Sloka a teacher Sāmbavya as the author of this Sūtra. The Sloka runs thus:

Naṭvā Kaushitakākāryam Sāmbavyam sūtrakṛttamam grihyam tadyam samkshipya vyākhyāsyāye bahuvismṛtam.

(‘Having bowed to the most excellent author of Sūtras, to Sāmbavya, the Ākārya belonging to the Kaushitaka school, I shall compose a short commentary on his Grihya, which has been forgotten by many.’)

The name of this Sāmbavya does not occur among the teachers enumerated in the description of the Tarpava ceremony, neither in Sāṅkhāyana IV, 10, nor in Ārvalāyana III, 4; but in the list of the Sambavya-Gṛihya itself it is found (see above, p. 4); and besides it seems to me also to be mentioned in Ārvalāyana-Gṛihya IV, 8, 24, in which passage it will scarcely be considered too bold to conjecture Sambavya instead of Sāṃvatya.

Though the MS. of the Sambavya-Gṛihya is very confused, and full of blunders of all sorts, yet it deserves to be attentively studied by all scholars who are accustomed to look, if not in theory yet in practice, on the agreement of a few Vedic text MSS., or of a few Indian commentaries, as if it had a claim to an unassailable authority to which European Orientalists would have no right to deny their faith. In the Sāṅkhāyana-Gṛihya a number of passages are found in which corrupt readings or perverse explanations are supported by all the Sāṅkhāyana MSS. and by all the Sāṅkhāyana commentaries, and if, by a rare and fortunate chance, the Sambavya Grantha MS., which is unaffected by the blunders of the Devanāgarī MSS., had not been discovered in the south of the peninsula, these readings and explanations would seem to rest on the unanimous agreement of tradition. Perhaps it seems unnecessary to dwell on this point, for very few Orientalists, if any, would be prepared to assert that Indian tradition is infallible. But when looking over many of the editions and translations of the Vedic texts, even such as have been published in the last years, one finds plentiful occasion to observe that in hundreds of passages tradition has been practically treated, by scholars of very high merit, as if it had an authority not very far removed from infallibility. A case like that of which we have to speak here, in which a whole set of MSS., and occasionally also of commentaries, can be tested by a MS. of a nearly related text, written in a different character and in a distant part of India, will strengthen our belief that we are right in judging for ourselves, even if that judgment should oppose itself to such authorities as Nārāyana or Rāmaśandra or Gayaśrama.

Perhaps it will not be out of place to add here, as an illustration of these remarks, a few observations on one of the passages in which the rejection of the traditional Sāṅkhāyana reading, together with the traditional Sāṅkhāyana explanation, is confirmed by the Sāmbavya MS., though no doubt, even without the aid of that MS., we ought to have formed the right conclusions for ourselves. At Sāṅkhāyana II, 4, 1. 2 the traditional reading is.

Mama vrata hṛdayam te dadhāmi mama kīttam anu kīttam te astu | mama vākam ekamānā gushasva Bṛhaspatisī mā niyunaktu māhyam iti | kāmasya brahma-karyasyāsāv iti.

Sāṅkhāyana is treating here of the Upanayana, or the initiation of the student who is received by a teacher and intends to study the Veda with him. The teacher on that occasion is to pronounce the Mantra which we have just transcribed, and which translated into English would run thus:

'Under my will I take thy heart; after my mind shall thy mind follow; in my word thou shalt rejoice with all thy heart; may Bṛhaspati join thee to me.' 'Of the Brahma-karya of Kāma (or lust), N. N.1'

The MSS. give the end of the passage as we have printed it above, kāmasya brahma-karyasyāsāv iti. This Nārāyana explains in the following way. Brahma-karya here means the observances which the student has to keep through certain periods of time before the different texts which he has to learn can be taught him. First comes the Sāvitṛ verse, for which he prepares himself by observing the sāvitṛ vrata; this lasts either one year, or three days, or the Sāvitṛ can also be taught him immediately (see chap. 5, i–3). Then follows the sukrīya vrata, of three days, or twelve days, or one year, or any other period of time according to the teacher’s pleasure (chap. 11, 10); by this vrata the student is enabled to study the main portion of the Veda. Finally come the sākvara, vrātika, aupanishada observances, each of which has to last one year, and which refer to the different parts of the Āraṇyaka (see chap. 11, 11 seq., and the sixth book). Now the formula of which we treat here refers principally to the sāvitra vrata. The teacher announces to the student how long he has to keep that vrata. He says (Sūtra 1), 'May Brhaspati join thee to me (Sūtra 2) for a brahmakařya (i.e. a vrata) of such and such (kāmasya) a time (one year, three days, &c.), N. N.1' Kāma (the pleasure) would thus stand here as an expletive which was to be replaced in each single case by the indication of the real space of time that depended on the teacher's pleasure ('...niyunaktu mahyam sāmvatsarikasya trairātrikasya vānvakshikasya vā sāvitraṣya brahmakařasyaṃukāmukkāśaṃkārman iti vākyasamyogā gūnayāh'). The same should take place at the corresponding forms of Upanayana which had to precede the entrance of the student upon the suktiya, sākvara, &c. observances. This is the explanation of Nārāyana, with which Rāmaṇḍra and all the other commentators agree. It will scarcely be necessary to observe that the singular use of kāma, on which this traditional explanation rests, is neither in accordance with the meaning of the word, nor supported by any parallel texts. So, even before I had the opportunity of collating the Sāmbayva MS., I had no doubt that the system of the Vratas has nothing at all to do with our Sūtra, and that its text should be made intelligible by a slight alteration touching only the quantity of the a in two syllables, by writing, Kāmasya brahmakařy asy asāv iti (thou art the Brahmaṅḍin of Kāma, N. N.1), as we read in Āśvalāyana I, 20, 8, kasya brahmakařy asi, prānasya brahmakařy asi. Afterwards I found that the Grantha MS. of Sāmbayva gives the very reading which I had conjectured.

Passages like this are not very rare in the Gṛhya-sūtras. In the other Sūtras we are not in the same favourable position of possessing a MS. which enables us, as the Grantha MS. of Sāmbayva does, to test their text.

We cannot conclude these introductory remarks without speaking of the later additions tacked on at the end of the original body of the Sānkhaḷaṇa-Gṛhya-sūtras1. There are unmistakable indications that the fifth and sixth books are later additions. The fifth book is

1 Comp. the remarks in my German edition of Sānkhaḷaṇa, Ind. Studien, XV, 7 designated as a parisishṭa in a Kārikā quoted by Nārāyana:

parisishṭād āvasathye pārvanatikrame karuh
Vaisvānarāyāgnyaye kāgnaye¹ tantumate tathā.

('According to the Parisishṭa, if one of the half-monthly sacrifices has been omitted, a mess of rice should be offered on the sacred domestic fire to Agni Vaisvānara and to Agni Tantumat.')

The passages of the 'Parisishṭa' here referred to are the two first aphyoiisms of V, 4:

'Now if a half-monthly sacrifice has not been performed, one or the other of them, then a mess of rice (is to be offered)—

'With (the words), "To Agni Vaisvānara svāhā! To Agni Tantumat svāhā!"

There are, besides, several passages in which Nārāyana himself mentions the fifth book under the designation of Pariseshadhyaṭya². And even if we had not the authority of the Kārikā and of Nārāyana, the contents alone of the fifth book would raise our suspicion against its genuineness. The matter ordinarily treated of in the Grhyya texts is brought to an end in Adhyāyas I–IV; in the fifth book we find diverse supplementary additions on points discussed before; rules, which no doubt would have been given at their proper place, had the fifth book been composed at the same time, and by the same author, as the preceding books³. Besides, we find different prāyasçātta oblations treated of, and a description of two ceremonies which are mentioned, as far as I know, in no other Grhyya-sūtra, but belong to the rites frequently described in such works as Purāṇas, Parisishṭas, and later Dharma texts: the consecration of ponds or wells (chap. 2), and the consecration of gardens (chap. 3).

There can thus be little doubt as to the secondary character of the fifth book. And this alone suffices to furnish an important argument in favour of the same view with regard to the sixth book also. This view is furthermore supported by the opening invocation in that book, addressed to Brahman and to a number of mythological beings and Vedic sages and teachers. It is evident that by such an invocation this book is characterised as a separate treatise, presupposing of course the main body of the Sāṅkhāyana sūtras, but not forming part of it in the same sense in which, for instance, the second or the third Adhyāya does. The object of that treatise is the exposition of the ritual connected with the study of the Rahasya texts. The sixth book, composed no doubt by a later adherent of the Sāṅkhāyana school, returns, in fact, to, and enlarges on, matters that have already found their proper place in the original Grīhya-sūtra at II, 12, and partly also at IV, 7.

SÂNKHÂVANA-GRîHYA-SÛTRA.

Adhyâya I, Khandâ 1.

1. Now henceforth we shall declare the Pâkayâgas.

2. When (a pupil) is going to return (from his teacher), let him keep that fire (as his domestic fire) on which he has put the last piece of wood -(as required by the regulations for a student),

3. Or (he should keep) his nuptial fire.

1, 1. The ceremonies to be treated of are defined here as the Pâkayâgas (i.e. oblations of cooked offerings) just as in the opening sentence of the Pâraskara-Grîhya they are called grîhya-sthâlîpâkâs. This is indeed the most characteristic form of offerings belonging to the domain of the Grîhya rûtu, although it would not be correct to state that the Grîhya-sûtras treat exclusively of sacrificial ceremonies of this kind.

2. As to the duty of the Vedic student of putting every day a piece of wood on the sacred fire of his teacher, see below, II, 6, 8, and compare the Grîhya-samgraha-parishâsa II, 58. According to a Kârikâ given by Nârâyana, and the Karmapradipa (I, 6, 13), the prescription of this Sûtra regarding the time for the kindling of the sacred fire refers exclusively to the case of vâgdâna (betrothal). Comp. also Dr. Bloomfield’s note on the Grîhya-samgraha-parishâsa I, 76 (Zeitschrift der Deutschen Moigenlandischen Gesellschaft, XXXV, 560). In the Kârikâ it is stated that if the betrothed girl dies after the fire has been kindled, but before the marriage, the sacrificer is not to forsake his fire, but to marry another girl; if he cannot find a bride, he should make the fire enter into himself according to the rules given by Sânkhâyanâ-Grîhya V, 1, and himself become uttarâsrâmin, i.e. enter one of the two final Âsrâmas.
4. Some declare (that the domestic fire should be kindled) at the time of the division of the inheritance.

5. Or that after the death of the householder the eldest one himself (should kindle it).

6. (It should be kindled) on the day of the new moon of the month of Vaisākha or on another (new moon day).

7. Some say (that the fire should be kindled) according to the (sacrificer’s) wishes under the (corresponding) constellation.

8. He should light his fire at one of the following places, viz. in the house of a Vaisya who is rich in

5. Nārāyana: ‘If the fire has not been kindled at the time stated above, then, after the householder. i.e. the father, even if he should not have performed the ādāna, or the elder brother has died, the eldest son (or the son who after his elder brother’s death has become the eldest), after he has performed the Sapindākaraṇa (for the dead father or brother; see below, IV, 3, and the ninth chapter of the Parisishṭa [book V]), even if he has not divided the inheritance with his younger brothers (so that the time stated in the fourth Sūtra would not have arrived), should kindle the fire himself, i.e. without an officiating priest (ṛtvig). . . . Or the Sūtra should be divided into two; prete vā grihapatau (or after the death of the householder), and svayam gyāyān (the eminent one himself), i.e. of Brāhmaṇas, Kṣatriyas, and Vaisyas a gyāyān, which means a most eminent person, a Brāhmaṇa, performs the Pākayāgas himself; for the two other castes the Pākayāgas have to be performed through an officiating priest: this is the meaning of this svayam (himself).’ I have given this note of Nārāyana as a specimen of the entirely arbitrary and obviously misleading explanations which are unfortunately so frequently found in this author, as indeed in most of the other Sūtra commentators. As to the true meaning of this svayam I still adhere to the explanation which I proposed in my German edition of the text (p. 118), that in case no division of the inheritance takes place, the sacred fire should be kindled on behalf of all the joint-proprietors, but that only the eldest brother should act personally (svayam).

8. Or, ‘at (the fire of) a person rich in cattle, in the house of a Vaisya,' &c.? The commentators (see p. 118 of the German cattle, at a frying-pan, or (at the fire of) one who offers many sacrifices.

9. Some say that (the fire should be fetched from one of the above-mentioned places) in the evening and in the morning.

10. The inauguration (of the fire) by an evening offering should be learnt from the Adhvaryus, according to (my) teacher.

11. In the morning he shall offer a full oblation with a verse sacred to Vishnu, or silently.

12. The time for setting it (i.e., the domestic fire) in a blaze and for sacrificing on it has been explained by (the rules given with regard to) the Agnihotra.

eDITION) differ as to whether in purupāru-vikūla one or two alternatives are contained, and it is interesting to see that the Śāṅkhaṇya authors themselves differed in this respect; Pāraskara (I, 2, 3), when declaring from where the fire should be fetched, speaks of the house of a Vaiśya rich in cattle; Āśvalāyana, on the contrary, who in the Grhyasūtra does not expressly treat of the kindling of the domestic fire, in the corresponding passage of the Srauta-sūtra (II, 2, 1), gives the rule that the daksināgni is to be fetched 'from the house of a Vaiśya or from a rich person.'

9–11. I now differ from the opinion which I pronounced in my German edition with regard to the relation in which these three Śūtras stand to each other. I think they ought to be understood thus: 9. Some teachers say that the fetching of the fire from its yoni, as taught in Śūtra 8, ought to be done twice; in the evening, so that the fire, after the necessary rites have been performed, goes out, and then again in the morning. 10. But my (the author's) teacher (comp. as to ākśaryaka, Kātyāyana's Srauta-sūtra I, 3, 7; Professor Garbe's note on Vaitāna-sūtra 1, 3) is of opinion that the fire should be fetched only once, and that with this fire the ceremonies which are taught by the Adhvaryus are to be performed in the evening (see, for instance, Kātyāyana IV, 7, 8, which passage is paraphrased here by Nārāyaṇa). 11. In the morning (according to the same teacher, not, as I once understood this passage, according to the eke referred to in Śūtra 9), a full oblation is to be offered, &c.

12. Srauta-sūtra II, 6, 2 seq.
13. And 'invested with' the sacrificial cord,' &c., all these rules, as far as they are applicable, should be applied (here also) in consequence of the unity of the ritual.

14. With regard to this they quote also (the following Sloka):

15. 'The kinds of Pākayagnīs, the kinds of Haviryaṅgas, and again the kinds of Soma sacrifices,
    'Twenty-one by number, these are proclaimed to be the kinds of sacrifice.'

KHANDA 2.

1. At the end of the sacrificial acts (follows) the distribution of food to Brāhmaṇas.

2. Voice, (pleasantness of) form, age, learning, moral character, (right) conduct are the qualities (required in the Brāhmaṇas who are to be invited thereto).

13. Srauta-sūtra I, 1, 6. 7: yagñopavitaḥ devakarmāṇi karoti, prāṇāṇvitaḥ pitryāni, &c. The unity of the ritual of course means the unity of the two great domains of the Srauta and Grhyya ritual.

15. With regard to the twenty-one kinds of sacrifice compare, for instance, Gautama VIII, 18–20; Max Müller, Z. D. M. G. IX, p. lxxii; Weber, Indische Studien, X, 326. The seven kinds of Pākayagnīs are the Ashvakā sacrifices (see below, III, 12 seq.), the sacrifices offered at each Parvan (I, 3), the Srāddha (or funeral) sacrifices (IV, 1 seq.), the sacrifice of the Srāvanī full moon (IV, 15), of the Āgrahāyani (IV, 17 seq.), of the Kaitṛī (IV, 19), and of the Árvayugī (IV, 16). The seven Havī sacrifices (belonging, as is the case also with the third division of sacrifices, to the Srauta ritual) are the Agnyādhēya, the Agnihotra, the sacrifices of the full and new moon, the Āgrayāna, the three Kāturmāṣya sacrifices, the Nirñākaparbandha, and the Saurāṃśa. The seven kinds of Soma sacrifices (of which the more ancient texts mention only three or four samsthas, see Weber, Indische Studien, IX, 120) are the Agnīshoma, the Atyagniṣhoma, the Ukṣhyas, the Shoḍāsin, the Atiṭrātra, the Aptoryāma
3. Learning, however, outweighs every (other qualification).

4. A learned one should not be passed over.

5. ‘The threefold (knowledge, viz. that) which refers to the deities, that which refers to the Âtman, and that which refers to sacrifice, ‘(Handed down) in the Mantras and in the Brâhmaṇa: this is called learning.

6. ‘A performer of the sacred rights, a man who has studied (the Veda), who is old in learning and devoted to austerities:

‘He who gives food (even) once to such (a Brâhmaṇa), hunger will not befall that man any more.

7. ‘Whatsoever deity he may wish to satiate at any sacrifice, ‘Destining it to that (deity) in his mind, he shall give (the food) to a person like that.

8. ‘An oblation deposited in a person like that will never miss its way to the deity;

‘Treasure of men, vessel of gods (in which they receive what is given to them) he is called.’

3, 1. Most probably this rule should be divided into two Sūtras, so that atha dārasāphūrmamāsau would stand as the heading of the chapter; comp. below, chap. 18, 1, atha daturthakarma; chap. 24, 1, atha gātakarma, &c.

2. ‘If this is expressly stated, the oblation is to be made in night-time; for instance, at the Vâstoshpatīya ceremony it is stated, “The tenth oblation of the Stâlipâka, to Agni Svishākṣat at night” (see below, III, 4, 8).’ Nârâyana.
top of the great trees, that is the most auspicious time for all kinds of sacrifices, unless there be a special rule.

3. With a genial mind, clean, on a pure, protected spot, having cooked a full, thin mess of rice, he offers that cooked oblation to the deities of the festivals of the new and full moon, distributing it in the due way.

4. In the oblations of cooked food the acts of taking (the intended oblation), of putting it down (near the fire), and of sprinkling it (with water) are performed with regard to the deities of the respective Mantras.

3. On vighana, which I have translated thin, see the note in the German edition, pp 119 seq.

The deities of the festivals of the new and full moon (i.e. of the rites which in the Srauta rital correspond to that taught here) are, at the full moon, Agni and Agnisthomau, at the new moon, Agni, Vishnu, and Indragni, who are preceded in both cases by Agni and Soma as the deities of the two Agyabhagas (see below, ch. 9, 7), and followed by Agni Svishakrati. For more detailed statements see Hillebrandt, Das altindische Neu- und Vollmondsopfer (Jena, 1879), pp. 102 seq.

4. For instance, the taking of the portion of food destined to Agni should be performed with the Mantra: Agnaye tvā gush-tam grīhāmi, &c. A number of ceremonies common to the Sthālipāka ritual and to the ordinary ritual of Agya oblations, such as the strewing of Kusa grass round the fire, the ceremonies regarding the Pāvītras (stramers), &c., have to be supplied here from the Agya ritual given below (ch. 7 seq.), this may be looked upon as an argument in favour of our conjecture which will be stated in the preface (vol. ii of the Grihya-sūtras), that our text, as probably is the case also with the Pāraskara-sūtra, is based on an original, the opening sentences of which are preserved to us in Śāṅkhā I, 5, 1-5=Pāraskara I, 4, 1-5, so that the first chapters of Śāṅkhāyana, and among them the exposition of the festivals of the full and new moon, would have been prefixed to the original commence-ment of the text.
5. And the rules about the portions to be cut off (from the sacrificial food, are valid).

6. But before the sacrifices of the new and full moon one should make offerings to the deities of the Anvârâmbhantya ceremony.

7. The time for the new moon sacrifice is not elapsed until the full moon, nor that for the full moon sacrifice until the new moon.

8. And some say that the morning oblation may be made at the time of the evening oblation, in the case of danger.

9. But the time is fixed, as at the Agnihotra an expiation has been prescribed for him who has neglected the time.

10. At the two daily oblations one should use as sacrificial food either rice or barley or grains.

11. In case these are not at hand, other (sorts of sacrificial food are) not prohibited.

12. Some say that if he uses grains, he should wash them.

13. With the other (kinds of food) no such preparation takes place.

6. The Anvârâmbhantya-îshna is the sacrifice taught in the Srauta texts which is to be performed before the sacrificer for the first time offers the Dârâprarâmâsa sacrifice. See Weber, Indische Studien, X, 330; Hillebrandt, loc. cit., p. 185. The deities of this ceremony are Agîtvâsâhê, Sarasvâtî, and Sarasvâtî.

7. Comp. the expiatory sacrifice prescribed in the Parishâta book, V, 4.

8. The text here passes over from the two monthly sacrifices to the two daily ones, which correspond to the Agnihotra of the Srauta ritual.
14. In the evening (he makes the oblation) to Agni, in the morning to Sūrya.

15. And after both silently to Prāgāpati.

16. Some (say that) before the first oblation a piece of wood (is to be put on the fire).

17. The sprinkling with water as indicated (in the Srauta-sūtra).

KHANDA 4.

1. When he has risen in the morning and has sipped water, let him daily repeat his recital.

2. (This consists of, or is accompanied by, the following texts:) the two verses, 'To-day, god Savitar' (Rig-veda V, 82, 4-5); the hymn, 'Go away, Manasaspati' (X, 164); the hymn, 'Right and truth' (X, 190); the verses, 'Look down, ye Ādityas,' to the end of the hymn (VIII, 47, 11-18); 14, 15. These are the same deities who are worshipped also at the Agnihotra.

4, 1. The Paddhati of Rāmaśandera understands svādhyāyaṃ adhyātta as a prescription to perform the daily Brahmayagña (comp., for instance, Āsvālaya-Gṛhyā III, 2; Āpastamba I, 11, 22 seq.), which consists in the recitation of portions of the Veda; the hymns and verses stated in Sūtra 2 are, according to the same authority, to be repeated immediately after the recitation of the svādhyāya ('svādhyāyānantaram'). Nārāyana, on the contrary, considers that the svādhyāya prescribed in Sūtra 1 consists of those very hymns and verses which are indicated in the second Sūtra. As to the Brahmayagña, he says that the āra at the end of the second Sūtra may be referred to it ('the word āra means that texts procuring a long life, such as Rig-veda I, 89, should be murmured, or an injunction of the Brahmayagña is intended'). At all events it is very difficult to believe that the recitation of the texts stated in this chapter should be quite independent from the daily Brahmayagña. About the performance of the Brahmayagña in our days comp. the note of Professor Büttner, Sacred Books of the East, vol. ii, p. 43.

This Sūtra and the following ones down to the fifth are identical with Pāraskara I, 4, 1-5; it seems to me that we have here before us the opening Sūtras of a lost text from which this passage has been copied both by Śāṅkhāyana and Pāraskara. 1. If he will acquire a wife, let him recite over the wooers (whom he sends to the girl's father) when they go away, the verse, 'Thornless' (Rigveda X, 85, 23).
2. When they arrive, they take flowers, fruits, barley, and a pot of water.
3. They say thrice, 'Here I am, sir!'
4. When these words have been uttered, they ask the girl in marriage, reciting the clan names, the dwellers turning their faces to the east, the visitors to the west.

6. The position of the words as well as the sense favours combining the genitive kanyāyāḥ with ākāryaḥ, not with mūrdhān, though Rāmaṇḍra says that the varapakṣākārya is to be understood.

7. 1 seq. Here follows a description of the sacrifice which is to be performed when the girl’s father has declared his assent (pratīsrute) to give her away in marriage: this is the general model for all Grihya sacrifices — ‘Varo guhoti,’ Nārāyaṇa.

3. ‘He here states an exception to the rule, “The ceremonies sacred to the Manes are directed towards the south” (Srauta-sūtra I, 1, 14) .... An illustration of the form of the sthânâlā with the lines drawn thereon is given by Dr. Bloomfield in his note on the Grhya-samgraha-parisîshâ I, 5a seq.; instead of the three lines, however, which are here prescribed in Sûtra 7, there are four indicated in accordance with the doctrine of that Parisîshâ and of Gobhila himself, which are stated to be sacred to Prthivî, Pragâpati, Indra, and Soma, while the line turned from south to north is sacred to Agni.

12. The place for the insertion is the interval between the Mahāvyāhṛtis, the general expiation, and the oblation to Prāgāpati.

11. See chap. 8, 13.

12. This Sūtra prescribes where the āvāpa, i.e. the special characteristic offerings of each sacrifice, is to be inserted between the regular offerings that belong to the standing model. The same subject is treated of in the Srauta-sūtra in the two rules, I, 16, 3 and 4: 'Whatsoever is offered between the two Āgya portions and the Svishākṛti, that is called āvāpa; this is the chief part (pradhāna) of the sacrifice; the other (oblations) are subordinate thereto (tadangām).’ The position of the āvāpa among the other oblations is indicated by Pāraskara in the following rule (I, 5, 6). 'Between the general expiation and the oblation to Prāgāpati, this is the place for the āvāpa.' (The word vivahe at the end of this Sūtra seems to me to belong not to this rule, but to Sūtra 7.) Our Sūtra is identical with that of Pāraskara void for word; only instead of sarvaprāyāsākīta, as Pāraskara has, we read here, mahāvyāhṛtisarvaprāyāsākīta. This means, I believe, that the āvāpa, preceded and followed by the Mahāvyāhṛti oblations (comp. below, I, 12, 13), should be placed between the Sarvaprāyāsākīta and the Prāgāpatya oblation. The oblations made with the Mahāvyāhṛtīyas are four in number; the corresponding formulas are: bhūḥ svāhā, bhuvāḥ svāhā, svāḥ svāhā, bhūr bhuvāḥ svāḥ svāhā (comp. below, chap 12, 12) The Sarvaprāyāsākīta (general expiation) consists of two oblations, one with the three Mahāvyāhṛtīyas, the other with the verse ayās āgñe, quoted in the Srauta-sūtra III, 19, 3, and in Āşvalāyana’s Srauta-sūtra I, 11, 13. (On the Sarvaprāyāsākīta in the Srauta ritual, compare Hillebrandt, Neu- und Vollmondsopfer, p. 166.) The Prāgāpatya oblation is performed with the formula Prāgāpatye svāhā. The discussions of Nārāyana on this Sūtra (see p. 125 of the German edition) evidently fail to bring out the true meaning of the text; according to this commentator the oblations follow each other in this order: the two Āgyabhāgas, the principal oblations (pradhānakutayaḥ), the Svishākṛti, the four Mahāvyāhṛtī oblations, the two Sarvaprāyāsākīta oblations, the Prāgāpatya oblation. Finally we may mention the corrupt form in which the corresponding passage of the Sāmbavya-sūtra is pr-

This Mantra then is given down to svaheti, then follows agyena, which seems to me to form part of the same Sutra, and to refer to the oblations to which the Mantra belongs. Then the MS. goes on: mahavyahrstitishu sarvaprasyashittaram (sic) etad avapasthahanam agonyahavishi vyahrstitishu sarvaprasyashittaram (the syllables praysikitaram seem to be expunged) svishakrityo sthalipake. In the commentary I find the following Slokas, which I give exactly as they are read in the MS.: tisram vyahrstinam ka praysikitahutfr api yad antaram tad apapasthahanam sarpipradhahanake, sthalipake vyahrstinam yat tat svishakrityottaram ahutnam pradhahanam namadaivatahhandasam yas tu kulas tad avapasthahanam italyate budhah tatam tatam ma abhaya praysikitahuti kramat.

19. This Sutra, though reckoned in the Indian tradition to be performed) when (the father's) assent (to give away his daughter) has been declared—

Khandá 10.

1. Forms the standard for all sacrifices that procure happiness,

2. And for all Ágya offerings,

3. For the sacrifice of animals which are tied to a branch,

4. And for the offerings of boiled (rice) grains and of cooked food.

5. These are performed, all the offerings of cooked food, without Pravága and Anuvága oblations, without (the invocation of) the Ilá, without Nigáda recitation, and without Sámídhéní verses.

6. There are also the following Slokas:

-Chap. 9, seems to me clearly to belong to the next chapter, and to contain the subject, to which the predicate is given in 10, 1. For pratísrute, see chap. 7, 1.

10, 1. "As in the Srauta ritual the sacrifice of the full and new moon forms the standard for the ishás, the pasubandha, &c., thus the pratísrut-kalpa is the standard for the vikrita of the Smártta ritual, such as the gátakarman (chap. 24), &c." Náráyana.

3. "It is the standard of the sacrifices prescribed in the rules, "The animal (offered) to the teacher is sacred to Agni; to an officiating priest, to Bráhman, to a doctor", Náráyana. This refers to the sacrifice of animals which forms part of the Arghya ceremony; see II, 15-4 seq.

5. On the five Pravágas and the three Anuvágas (introductory oblations and oblations following on the principal offerings) prescribed in the Srauta ritual, comp. Hillebrandt's Neu- und Vollmondsofer, pp. 94 seq.; 134 seq. On the Ilá, see ibid., 122 seq.; on nígáda, Weber's Ind. Studien, IX, 217, &c.; on the Sámídhéní verses, Hillebrandt, loc. cit., pp. 74 seq. On this Sútra compare also the passage in Kátyáyana's Srauta-sútra, VI, 10, 22 seq. –
7. ' (An oblation is called) Huta, (if made) by the performing of the Agnihotra; Ahuta (i.e. unsacrificed, if) by the Bali offering; Prahuta (i.e. sacrificed up, if) by a sacrifice to the Manes; Prasita (i.e. tasted, if) deposited as an offering in a Brahmana.

8. 'Without raising his knees, with spread knees let him always offer his oblation; for the gods never accept an offering (that has been made holding the hand) not between (the knees).

9. 'But when he has repeated a text sacred to Rudra, to the Rakshas, to the Manes, to the Asuras, or that contains an imprecation, let him touch water, and so also when he has touched his own body.'

KHANDA 11.

1. Now when the bride is to be carried away (to the bridegroom's house) that night, or on the next, or on the third night,

2. On that night, when (the darkness of) night is gone, they wash the girl up to her head with (water that has been made fragrant by) all sorts of herbs and the choicest fruits together with scents;

7. Comp. chap. 6, 1.

9. This verse is found also in the Karmapradipā III, 8, 4.

11, 1. The ceremony described in this chapter is called Indrāt-karman. The goddess Indrāṣṭi is mentioned in Sūtra 4 among the deities to whom Āgya oblations are made.

3. They put on her a newly-dyed garment or (a new one) which has not yet been washed;

4. Then (the Ākārya of the bride's family) makes the girl sit down behind the fire, and while she takes hold of him he sacrifices with the Mahāvyāhṛties, and then he makes Āgya oblations to Agni, to Soma, to Pragāpati, to Mitra, to Varuna, to Indra, to Indrānt, to the Gandharva, to Bhaga, to Pūshan, to Tvashṭār, to Brāhmaṇaṇi, to the king Pratyāntika.

5. After they have regaled four or eight women, who are not widows, with lumps of vegetables, Surā, and food, these should perform a dance four times.

6. The same deities (they worship also) on behalf of the man,

7. And Vaisravana and Ṵṣāna.

8. Then follows the distribution of food to Brāhmaṇas.

KHANDA 12.

1. The bridegroom, who has bathed and for whom auspicious ceremonies have been performed, is escorted by happy young women, who are not widows, to the girl's house.

2. To these he shall not behave unobsequiously, except where forbidden food or a transgression is concerned.

3. Having obtained their permission, he then gives her the garment with (the verse), 'The Raibhī was' (Rig-veda X, 85, 6).

4. The 'king Pratyāntika' has given origin to a very curious misunderstanding in the Śāmbavya-Grhyā and its commentary; see p. 127 of the German edition.
4. With (the verse), 'Mind was the cushion' (ibid. 7) he takes up the salve-box.

5. The verse for the anointing is, 'May the Visve devás anoint (or, unite),' (ibid. 47.)

6. 'As this (has protected) Sākt the beloved one, and Aditi the mother of noble sons, and Apālā who was free from widowhood, may it thus here protect thee, N. N.!'—with these words (the bridegroom) gives her into her right hand the quill of a porcupine (and) a string of three twisted threads,

7. With the verse, 'Shape by shape' (Rig-veda VI, 47, 18) a mirror into the left.

8. Her relations tie (to her body) a red and black, woollen or linen cord with three (amulet) gems, with the verse, 'Dark-blue and red' (Rig-veda X, 85, 28).

9. With the verse, 'Full of honey the herbs' (Rig-veda IV, 57, 3), (the bridegroom) ties (to her body) Madhūka flowers.

12. 5. On the ceremony of 'salving together' (samañgana), comp. Pāraskara I, 4, 14; Gobhula II, 2, &c. Professor Stenzler is certainly wrong in translating Pāraskara's samañgayati by 'heisst sie beide zusammentreten' (according to Gayārāma's explanation, samañkharoti). It is clear from Sāñkhāyana, that a real anointing of bridegroom and bride took place. This was performed, according to Gobhula, by the 'audaka' (this seems to be the same person that is mentioned in Pāraskara I, 8, 3), of whom it is said, pāñigrāham (i.e. the bridegroom) mūrdha de se 'vasiñkati, tathetarām. Nārāyana, on the contrary, in his note on our passage, says that it is the bridegroom who anoints the eyes of the girl with the verse quoted. But the word sam-añgana, and the obvious meaning of the whole rite, make it rather probable that both were anointed, and that this was done by a third person.

6. Comp. below, chap. 22, 8, where the use of a porcupine's quill is prescribed at the śīmantonnayana ceremony, and see chap. 22, 10.

* [39]
10. At the wedding one cow, when the Argha ceremony has been performed; in the house one cow: these are the two Madhuparka cows.

11. (The bridegroom) makes the girl sit down behind the fire, and while she takes hold of him he makes three oblations with the Mahāvyāhṛitis.

10. As to the meaning of arhayitvā I differ from the opinion of Nārāyana (see his note on p. 127 of the German edition), who takes gām as the object of this verb (gām arhayitvā pūgayitvā mātā rudrānām ity rīkam gapitvā [comp. Pāraskara I, 3, 27]). The real meaning of arhayati is, to perform the Argha ceremony for a guest. Evidently in this Sūtra two different occasions are stated on which the Argha reception, eventually with the killing of a cow, should be performed; firstly, the bridegroom should be so received in the house of the bride's father; secondly, when the newly-married people have arrived at their own house, an Argha reception should there be offered to them, perhaps, as the commentaries state, by the Āśārya.

11. According to Nārāyana it is the Āśārya who performs the rite prescribed in this Sūtra; Rāmacandra, on the contrary, refers it to the bridegroom, which would be right. Comp. Gobhila II, 1.

In Sāṅkhāyana's description of the wedding ceremonies the point at which the bride passes over from the paternal power into that of her new husband is not expressly indicated. Pāraskara (I, 4, 15) clearly indicates it (pitṛ pratiṃ dādaya), and in the Pārtishtha of the Āśvalāyana-Gṛhyā the act of handing over the girl is treated of in detail (I, 22). On this depends the description in the Prayōgaratna, fol. 69; comp. also Colebrooke's Miscell. Essays, I, 240. The Paddhati of Rāmacandra does not fail to mention the kanyāpradāna, but I do not think that the succession of the different rites is stated there correctly. According to the Paddhati the bridegroom goes to the house of the girl's father, and there, after the madhuparka has been offered, the bride is given over to him; he then (labdhavo dādayat) goes (chap. 12, 1), accompanied by young women, to the kantukāgāra, where the ceremonies described in chap. 12, 3 seq. take place. Pāraskara, on the contrary, describes the handing over of the garments, the anointing, &c., as preceding the giving over of the girl, and indeed it is scarcely possible to say in the acts of dressing, adorning the girl, &c., it which is in the bridegroom and her relations
12. A fourth (oblation) with (the three Mahâvyâhritis) together is to be understood from this rule.

13. In this way, where no express rule is stated, in all sacrifices that procure happiness, one is to sacrifice before and afterwards with these same (Mahâvyâhritis).

Khanda 18.

1. 'Be queen with thy father-in-law,' with this verse (Rig-veda X, 85, 46) her father or brother sacrifices with a sword's point on her head, or with the Sruva, standing while she is sitting, with his face turned to the west, while her face is turned to the east.

2. 'I seize thy hand for the sake of happiness' (Rig-veda X, 85, 36), with these words (the bridegroom) seizes with his right hand her right hand with the thumb, both hands being turned with the palms upwards, he standing while she is sitting, with his face turned to the west, while her face is turned to the east.

3. And when he has murmured the following five verses,

4. (He continues thus,) 'This am I, that art thou; take part, anything but preparatory performances that precede the decisive moment. The sacrifice, on the contrary, which the bridegroom performs, according to chap. 12, 11, in common with his bride, seems to presuppose that he has already received her from her father; and the ceremonies described in chap. 13, the pâñjgrahana, the pronouncing of the Mantra, chap. 13, 4, which reminds one of the Roman formula ubi tu Galus, the seven steps—all that should be understood not as intended to establish the power of the husband over his wife, but as presupposing that power and showing an exercise of it.

2. Nârâyana states that here four Brâhmans should recite that art thou, this am I; the heaven I, the earth thou; the Rik art thou, the Sâman I. So be thou devoted to me.

'Well! Let us here marry. Let us beget offspring. Let us acquire many sons who may reach old age.'

5. (The Ākārya) fills, with the words bhūr bhuvaḥ svaḥ, a new water-pot,

6. Throws into it (branches) with milky sap and leaves, of a tree the name of which is masculine, together with Kusa grass,

7. And gold, according to some (teachers),

8. And hands it over to a student who observes silence.

9. They should walk round this Stheyâ water, (placed) to the north-east, so that they turn their right sides towards it.

the Sûryâ hymn (Rig-veda X, 86) to the bride. That, according to Sâṅkhâyana, that hymn is recited at the wedding, is clear from chap. 14, 12.

6. Sakshatrânt sapalásânt sakusān. Nârâyana's commentary divides sâ kusān, and refers sâ to the ākârya. But this sà would be superfluous, and the substantive to which sakshatrânt and sapalâsânt are to be referred, is, as both the nature of the case and the corresponding passages show, sâkhân and not kusân. Comp. the Śrava-sūtra IV, 17, 5: palârasâkhâm sapalâsâm nikhâya, and a passage concerning the very site here described, Ārvâlayâna-parâshûya I, 24. audumbâryâddhayâ (read, ârdrayâ?) sâkhâyâ sapalârayâ sahiranyapavitrayâ sadûrvapavitrayâ. The MS. of the Sâmbavya-sūtra has sakshâtrân palâsânt sakusân.

9. 'The Stheyâ water has to be so placed that when the bride and the bridegroom walk (their seven steps, see chap. 14, 5 seq.), their right sides are turned towards it.' Nârâyana. Comp., regarding the Stheyâ water and its bearer, the Gṛhya-samgraha-parâshûya II, 26. 30. 35.
10. And after (the Āśārya) has placed a stone towards the northern direction,
11. (The bridegroom) makes her rise with the words, 'Come, thou joyful one,'
12. And makes her tread with the tip of her right foot on the stone, with the words, 'Come, tread on the stone; like a stone be firm. Tread the foes down; overcome the enemies.'
13. He then leads her round the fire so that their right sides are turned to it,
14. And gives her a second garment with the same text (chap. 12, § 3).
15. Her father or brother pours out of a basket fried grain mixed with Sāmī leaves into her joined hands.
16. The spreading under, the sprinkling over, and the second sprinkling over (are done) with Āgya.
17. She sacrifices those (fried grains).

KHANDA 14.

1. 'This woman, strewing grains, prays thus, "May I bring bliss to my relations; may my husband live long. Svāhā!"—while the husband murmurs (this) text, she sacrifices standing.
2. (All the ceremonies,) beginning from the tread-

17. I believe that the words forming this Sūtra, śām guhoti, are taken from the same lost old Gṛhya text which Sāṅkhāyana has followed word for word also in I, 5, 1-5 and elsewhere. This is made probable by the comparison of Pāraskara I, 6, 2. The author of our text, while literally adopting the words of his original, has not quite succeeded in welding them together with his own statements; thus the sacrifice of grains is treated of in this Sūtra and in the first Sūtra of the next chapter, as if there were two different acts, while indeed it is one and the same.
ing upon the stone, (are repeated) in the same way for a second time,

3. And in the same way a third time.

4. Silently, if they like, a fourth time.

5. (The Ākārya?) makes (them) step forward in a north-eastern direction seven steps (with the words),

6. 'For sap with one step, for juice with two steps, for the prospering of wealth with three steps, for comfort with four steps, for cattle with five steps, for the seasons with six steps. Friend be with seven steps.'

7. (The Ākārya?) 'appeases' those (foot-steps) with water.

8. With the three Āpohishṭātyā verses (Rig-veda X, 9, 1-3) he wipes (them) with the Stheyā water,

9. And sprinkles it on their heads.

10. (The bridegroom then) says, 'I give you a cow.'

11. Let him give something to the Brāhmaṇas each time at the Sthālpākas and other rites;

12. To him who knows the Sūryā hymn the bride's shift.

5, 7. According to Nārāyanā it is the teacher who makes them walk the seven steps; the Paddhati says that the bridegroom or the Ākārya causes her to do so. Comp. Pāraskara I, 8, 1; Āsvalāyana I, 7, 19, &c.

9. Probably we should read mūrdhan (acc. dual.), not mūr-dhāni. Āsvalāyana has śrāṣṭ. Of course the heads of both the bridegroom and the bride were sprinkled with water; comp. Āsvalāyana I, 7, 20, &c.

10. The Sūryā hymn is Rig-veda X, 85. Comp. the note above on chap. 13, 4.
13. A cow is the optional gift to be given by a Brāhmaṇa,
14. A village by a Rāganya,
15. A horse by a Vaisya.
16. A hundred (cows) with a chariot (he gives to a father) who has only daughters.
17. To those versed in the sacrificial rites he gives a horse.

KHANDA 15.

1. The three verses, 'I loosen thee' (Rig-veda X, 85, 24), when she departs from the house.
2. 'The living one they bewail' (Rig-veda X, 40, 10), if she begins to cry.
3. The wife then smears the axle of the chariot with clarified butter with this (verse), 'They feasted, they got drunk' (Rig-veda I, 82, 2), 13–15. These Sūtras, treating of the fee for the sacrifice, are identical with Pāraskara I, 8, 15–18. Apparently they are taken from the same lost original from which several identical passages in the Sūtras of Pāraskara and Sānkhyāyana seem to be derived (see the notes on chap. 6, 1; 13, 7). They stand rather out of place here, for they return to the same subject which had already been treated of in Sūtra 10, though in that Sūtra, as very frequently is the case in our text and in similar ones, only the case of the bridegroom being a Brāhmaṇa has been taken notice of.

16. Comp. the passages quoted by Professor Stenzler on Pāraskara I, 8, 18. Nārāyana has the following note: 'To a duhitri-mat, i.e. to the father of a girl who has no brother, he shall give a hundred cows and besides a chariot, in order to destroy the guilt brought about by marrying a girl who has no brother.' Possibly we should here emancipate ourselves from the authority of the commentators, and explain duhitri-mat 'he who gives his daughter in marriage,' the bride's father. Comp. Āpastamba II, 11, 18; II, 13, 12; Weber, Indische Studien, V, 343, note 2.

15, 3. Probably the use of this verse on this occasion rests on the assonance of its opening word akṣap and akṣa (rathākṣa).
4. And with the two (verses), 'Pure are thy wheels,' 'Thy two wheels' (Rig-veda X, 85, 12. 16), of the two wheels the first with the first (verse) and the second with the second (verse),

5. And the two bulls.

6. After (the wife?) has put, with this (verse), 'In the box of the wheel' (Rig-veda VIII, 80, 7), a branch of a fruit-bearing tree into each of the holes destined for the pins,

7. Or, if (such branches) are (already) fixed, has recited (that verse) over them,

8. They then harness the two bulls with the two (verses), 'Harnessed be thy right one' (Rig-veda I, 82, 5-6), (the bridegroom) reciting the half-verse, 'White the two bulls' (Rig-veda X, 85, 10), over them when they have been harnessed.

9. Now should any part of the chariot break or burst, let him take the girl to the house of one who keeps the sacred fires,

10. And repair (the damage) with the verse, 'Cover thyself with the Khadiras' (Rig-veda III, 53, 19).

11. A knot with the verse, 'Him like a horse' (Rig-veda X, 143, 2).

12. He then murmurs the five verses, 'May prosperity give us' (Rig-veda V, 51, 11-15).

13. 'Adorned with Kimsuka flowers' (Rig-veda X, 85, 20), when she mounts the chariot;

14. 'May no waylayers meet us' (ibid. 32), at a cross-way;

15. 'Which the woman's' (ibid. 31), near a cemetery;

16. The half-verse, 'O tree with thy hundred branches' (Rig-veda III, 8, 11), he mutters near a big tree;

17. 'The good protectress' (Rig-veda X, 63, 10),
when she ascends a ship;
18. 'Carrying stones' (Rig-veda X, 53, 8), when she crosses a river;
19. Optionally (he) also (murmurs the same verse, if that is done) with the harnessed chariot;
20. 'Up may your wave' (Rig-veda III, 33, 13), at deep places (in the river);
21. And (at such places) let her not look out.
22. The seven verses, 'Here may delight' (Rig-veda X, 85, 27 seq.), when she has reached the house, omitting the verses already employed.

KHANDA 16.

1. 'A bull's hide'—this has been declared.
2. On that hide the husband makes her sit down and sacrifices, while she takes hold of him, four oblations (with the following formulas),
3. 'With god Agni, with the earth-world of the worlds, and the Rig-veda of the Vedas: therewith I appease thee, N. N., svāhā!
   'With god Vāyu, with the air-world of the worlds,

16, 1. In chap. 15, 22 it is said that the bride arrives at the house; in 16, 12, that she enters the house. Probably we are to understand, therefore, that the sacrifice prescribed in this chapter, Sūtras 2 seq, is performed before the house, like the Vāṣṭosha-patīya karman (below, III, 4). The words, 'has been declared,' refer to the Śrāuta-sūtra (IV, 16, 2), 'Having spread a red bull's skin, with the neck to the north or to the east, with the hair outside, behind the fire, they sit down,' &c.
2. On anvārambha comp. the quotation in the note on chap. 11, 2.
with the Yagur-veda of the Vedas: therewith I appease thee, N. N., svåhå!

‘With god Sûrya, with the heaven-world of the worlds, with the Såma-veda of the Vedas: therewith I appease thee, N. N., svåhå!

‘With god Kandra, with the world of the quarters (of the horizon) of the worlds, with the Brâhma-veda of the Vedas: therewith I appease thee, N. N., svåhå!’

4. Or, ‘ Bhûk! What harm dwells in thee, bringing death to thy husband, death to thy husband’s brother, that I make death-bringing to thy para-mour, N. N., svåhå!’—thus the first (of the before-mentioned formulas) may be joined with the first Mahâvyåhåriti, the second with the second, the third with the third, the fourth with (the three Mahâ-vyåhåritis) together.

5. With (the verse), ‘With no evil eye’ (Rig-veda X, 85, 44), let him besmear (her) eyes with Âgya salve.

6. (The bridegroom,) having touched the ends of her hair with the three (verses), ‘How may us the resplendent one . . .’ (Rig-veda IV, 31, 1–3),

7. And having quickly recited the four verses, ‘And those divine medicines’ (Rig-veda VIII, 18, 8), at the end (of that text) with the word svåhå (pours out) the remainder on (her) head.

8. Here some place a boy of good birth on both sides, in her lap, with this (verse), ‘Into thy womb’ (see below, chap. 19, 6),

8. It should be noted that the verse Æ te yonim is quoted here only with the Pratika, while its full text is given below, chap. 19, 6. Can the Sûtras describing this ceremony with the kumåra ubha-yataå-sugåta be a later addition?
9. Or also silently.
10. Into this (boy's) joined hands (the bridegroom) gives fruits and causes (the Brâhmanas) to wish an auspicious day.
11. Thus she becomes the mother of male children.
12. With the rest of the hymn, 'Stay ye here both' (Rig-veda X, 85, 42 seq.), they make them enter the house.

KHANDA 17.

1. With the verse, 'I praised Dadhikrâvan' (Rigveda IV, 39, 6), let them drink together curds.
2. Let them sit silent, when the sun has set, until the polar-star appears.
3. He shows her the polar-star with the words, 'Firm be thou, thriving with me!'
4. Let her say, 'I see the polar-star; may I obtain offspring.'
5. Through a period of three nights let them refrain from conjugal intercourse.
6. Let them sleep on the ground.
7. Let them eat together boiled rice with curds, with the three verses, 'Drink and satiate yourselves' (Rig-veda VIII, 35, 10).
8. Let them serve the nuptial fire in the evening and in the morning with the words, 'To Agni svâhâ! To Agni Svishtakrît svâhâ!'
9. 'Let the two men Mitra and Varuña, let the two men, the Aśvins both, let the man Indra and also Agni make a man grow in me. Svâhâ!'—with (these words she offers) the first oblation if she is desirous of pregnancy.

10. For ten days they are not to set out (from home).

Kiianda 18.

1. Now the rites of the fourth day.

2. When the three nights have elapsed, he makes offerings of cooked food (with the texts),

3. ‘Agni! Thou art expiation; thou art the expiation of the gods. What substance dwells in her that brings death to her husband, that drive away from her.

‘Vāyu! Thou art expiation; thou art the expiation of the gods. What substance dwells in her that brings sonlessness, that drive away from her.

‘Sūrya! Thou art expiation; thou art the expiation of the gods. What substance dwells in her that brings destruction to the cattle, that drive away from her.

‘To god Aryaman the girls have made sacrifice, to Agni; may he, god Aryaman, loosen her from this, and not from that place.

‘To god Varuna the girls have made sacrifice, to Agni; may he, god Varuna, &c.

‘To god Pūshan the girls have made sacrifice, to Agni; may he, god Pūshan, &c.’

4. The seventh oblation with the verse, ‘Pragāpati’ (Rig-veda X, 121, 10).

5. The eighth to (Agni) Svishṭakrīṭ.

18, 3. As to preto muṣkātu māmutaḥ compare Pāraskara I, 6, 2: preto muṣkātu mā pateḥ. This passage shows what itaḥ and amutaḥ refer to. Comp. Professor Weber’s note 3 at Indische Studien, V, 347.
KHANDA 19.

1. Let him pound the root of the Adhyāndā plant and sprinkle it at the time of her monthly period with the two (verses), 'Speed away from here; a husband has she' (Rig-veda X, 85, 21. 22), with svāhā at the end of each, into her right nostril.

2. 'The mouth of the Gandharva Visvāvasu art thou'—with these words let him touch her, when he is about to cohabit with her.

3. When he has finished, let him murmur,

4. 'Into thy breath I put the sperm, N. N. !'

5. Or, 'As the earth is pregnant with Agni, as the heaven is with Indra pregnant, as Vāyu dwells in the womb of the regions (of the earth), thus I place an embryo into thy womb, N. N. !'

6. Or, 'May a male embryo enter thy womb, as an arrow the quiver; may a man be born here, a son after ten months.

'Give birth to a male child; may after him (another) male be born; their mother shalt thou be, of the born, and (to others) mayst thou give birth.

'In the male verily, in the man dwells the sperm; he shall pour it forth into the woman: thus has said Dhātar, thus Pragāpati has said.

'Pragāpati has created him, Savitar has shaped him. Imparting birth of females to other (women) māy ā he put here a man.

20, 3. On suîngâ compare the note of Nârâyana and the verse quoted from the Kâmapadpâ, p. 131 of the German edition.

On kusakântaka Nârâyana says, kusakântaka kusodarbhas tasya kañkâkâh sūkâ (sūkâ, MS. Berol. Orient. fol. 602) tâm vâ peshayitvâ. I do not understand why the commentators of Pâràskara, whom Professor Stemler has followed in his translation of Pâr. I, 14, 4, make kañkâka equal to mûla.

5. According to some (teachers) boiled rice with Mudga beans.

6. The implements used and the Nakshatra should be of male gender.

7. (He then sacrifices with the following texts,)

'May Dhâtar give to his worshipper further life and safety; may we obtain the favour of the god whose laws are truthful.

'Dhâtar disposes of offspring and wealth; Dhâtar has created this whole world; Dhâtar will give a

8. (The husband then) parts her hair, upwards, beginning from the middle, with a porcupine’s quill that has three white spots, or with a Darbha needle together with unripe Uḍumbara fruits, with the words, ‘Bhūr bhuvaḥ svāḥ.’

9. He lays down (the thing he has used) in her lap,
10. Ties (the fruits) to a string of three twisted threads and fastens them to her neck with the words, ‘Rich in sap is this tree; like the sappy one be thou fruitful.’

22, 8. Comp. above, chap. 12, 6.
10. Nārāyana: tisribhis tantubhir vrīte sūtre udumbbara-rāphalāṇī...gale...badhnāti. I have translated accordingly. Pāraskara I, 15, 6 uses the same expression trīvrī. Professor Stenzler there translates it, on the authority of Gayaṛāma, ‘dreisfache Haarlechte,’ and says in his note on that passage that, according to Sāṁkhāyana, he would have to tie the things with a threefold string to the neck of the woman, as if Sāṁkhāyana’s statement were different from that of Pāraskara. But both authors have the same word, and only the commentators differ in their explanations thereof.

11. Āśvalāyana more explicitly says (I, 14, 6), Somam rāgānam samgāyetām iti.
13. In my German translation there is a mistake which should be corrected. I have there referred shalrīṣha to the verses Rākām 'May Vishnu take care of thy womb,' 'I call Râkâ' (Rig-weda X, 184, 1; II, 32, 4–8).

14. Let him then touch her (with the words),

16. Let him cause her to sing merrily,

Nârâyana observes that, as it is prescribed below (chap. 25, 4) that a mess of food is to be cooked in the sūtikâgni, here the sūtikâgni is established, and sacrifice is performed therein. The Sûtra 1, 25, 4, from which it is to be inferred that the sūti-kâgni should be kept, is considered, accordingly, as a Gâdâpaka (see Professor Bühler's notes on Åpastamba I, xi, 7; Gautama.

With (the verse), 'I administer to thee honey food for the festival, the wisdom ("veda") raised by Savitar the bountiful; long-living, protected by the gods, live a hundred autumns in this world, N. ADHYÄYA II, KṚNDA I.

1. In the eighth year after the conception let him initiate a Brāhmaṇa,

2. With an antelope-skin,

1, 1. With regard to the standing terminology of the Upanayana, or the initiation of the student, we may observe that upa-nt does not mean, as for instance, Professor Stenzler seems to understand it, 'to introduce a student to his teacher.' Thus Pāraskara's Śūtra II, 2, 1, as Śāvarṣham brāhmaṇam upanayet, &c., is translated by that distinguished scholar, 'Den achtyahren Brāhmaṇa soll er (beim Lehrer) einführen,' &c. (comp. also Āśvalāyana-Grīhya I, 19, 1). The texts clearly point to another translation of upa-nt, for they show that the person that introduces the student (upanayati or upanayate; the middle is used very frequently, for instance, Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XI, 5, 4, 1, Śūkha, II, 1, 25) is not the father or a relation of the youth who could be supposed to lead him to the teacher, but the teacher himself; he introduces (upanayati) him to the brahma-kārya, or introduces him with himself, and the student enters upon (upaiti) the brahma-kārya, or enters with (upaiti) the teacher; he who has thus entered upon studentship, is consequently designated as upāta (Śūkha, IV, 8, 1, Pāraskara III, 10, 10), and for the initiation, which is usually called upanayana, occasionally also the word upāyana is used (see the Mānava-Grīhya I, 22, quoted by Professor Jolly in his article, Das Dhāma-sūtra des Vishnu, p. 79). The following passages may be quoted here as supporting our opinion on this terminology. At Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XI, 5, 3, 13 Saukhya says to Uduḍālaka Ārūni, 'I will enter (as a student) with the reverend One' (upāyāni bha-gavantam); and Ārūni, replies, 'Come, enter (with me)! ' (chy upchi), 'and he initiated him' (tam hopanīye). Ibid. XI, 5, 4, 16 it is stated that according to some a teacher who has initiated a Brāhmaṇa as a student (brāhmaṇam brahma-kāryam upanīya) should abstain from sexual intercourse, for a student who enters upon studentship (yo brahma-kāryam upaiti) becomes, as it were, a garbha, &c. Finally we may add that the Buddhist terminology regarding the entering into the order or upon a life of righteousness is clearly connected with that followed, for instance, in the dialogue between Sauṇeyya and Ārumi. As Sauṇeyya there says, uparāṇi bhagavantam, we frequently read in the Pāli books expressions like this, upemī Buddhāṁ saranāṁ dhammaṁ kāpi anuttarāṁ, &c. (Dhammap. Adhakathā, p. 97, ed. Fausbøll), and as Ārumi replies, ehy upemi, Buddha says to those who wish to be ordained, ehi bhikkhu, svākkhāto dhammo, kara brahmaṁ kariyam, &c. (Mahāvagga I, 6, 32, &c.; S.B. E., vol. xiii, p. 74, note).

The counting of the years not from the birth but from the conception occurs both in the Brahmanical and in the Buddhist ordinances, comp. H. O., Buddha, sein Leben, seine Lehre, seine Gemeinde, p. 354, note 1. Several Grhīya texts (for instance, Āsv. I, 19, i. 2) admit both ways of counting the years. The number of years given for the Upānayana of persons of the three castes (Brāhmaṇas 8–16, Kshatriyas 17–22, Vaisyas 13–24) is evidently derived from the number of syllables of the three metres which are so very frequently stated to correspond to the three castes, to the three gods or categories of gods (Agni, Indra, Visve devās) &c., viz. the Gāyatrī, the Trishūbha, and the Gagati. This is a very curious example, showing how in India phantastical speculations like those regarding the mystical qualities of the metres, were strong enough to influence the customs and institutions of real life.

9 seq. All these are standing expressions recurring nearly identically in most of the Grhīya and Dharma-sūtras. In the rule contained in Sūtra 13 a number of the parallel texts have vivahāyukta or vivāhāyēyuḥ, others have vyavahāreyuḥ. Comp. Vasishtha XI, 75; Indische Studien, vol. x, p. 21.

21. There is no doubt that piṇāsammito (which Nārāyana explains thus, 'piṇā is the wind [or breath]; [the staff should] reach to the place where the wind leaves the body, i.e. to the tip of the nose') should either be corrected into, or explained as, ghrāsammito; the Śāmbava MS. has ghrāṇāntiko brāhmaṇasāya. Comp. Gautama I, 26, &c. The parallel texts agree in assigning the longer staff to the higher, not as Śāṅkhāyana does, to the lower caste.
26. Having had him shaved all round (his head) he should initiate him.

7. 'Descending from the same Rishis, sir,' says the other.

2. Rāmākandra: 'Let him make one, or three, or five knots, according to (the student’s) Ārṣheya,' i.e. accordingly as he belongs to a family that invokes, in the Puṇava ceremony, one, or three, or five Rishis as their ancestors. Comp Weber, Indische Studien, vol. x, p. 79.

3. On the sacrificial cord (upavita) comp. the Grīhya-samgraha-parishā, II, 48 seq.

6, 7. A similar dialogue between the teacher and the student at the Upanayana is given in the Kauśika-sūtra (ap. Weber, Indische Studien, x, 71). The student there says, 'Make me an Ārṣheya (a descendant of the Rishis) and one who has relations, and initiate me.' And the teacher replies, 'I make thee an Ārṣheya and one who has relations, and I . . . . . . thee.' As in this passage of the Kauśika-sūtra the teacher is represented as having the power of making, by the Upanayana ceremony, an Ārṣheya of the student, thus, according to the view expressed by Professor Weber (loc. cit., p. 72 seq.), Sāṅkhāyana would even give it into the teacher's power to make the student his samānārṣheya, i.e. to extend his own Ārṣheya on as many pupils as he likes. Professor Weber understands the sixth Sūtra so that the teacher would have to say, samānārṣheyo bhavān brūhi (Nārāyana: bhavān brūhi brahma-brūti brahma-brūty ataḥ Sūtra 8) sāṅkhāvalokananyāy-yenātānubhagyate. According to Rāmākandra's Paddhati he is
8. 'Declare (that thou art) a student, sir.'
9. 'I am a student, sir,' says the other.
10. With the words, 'Bhūr bhuvah svah' (the teacher) sprinkles thrice with his joined hands (water) on the joined hands (of the student),
11. And seizing (the student's) hands with (his own) hands, holding the right uppermost, he murmurs,
12. 'By the impulse of the god Savitar, with the arms of the two Asvins, with Pūshan's hands I initiate thee, N. N.'
13. Those who are desirous of a host (of adherents, he should initiate) will (the verse), 'Thee, (the lord) of hosts' (Rig-veda II, 23, 1).

only to say samānārsheya,ā). The student answers, samānārsheyo 'ham bho; Professor Weber, who supplies the imperative asāṃti, translates this, 'May I have the same Ārsheya, sir!'

I think it more natural to simply translate the teacher's question, 'Art thou samānārshīya?' (or, supplying bhavān brāhī from Sūtra 8, 'Declare that thou art samānārsheya'), and the student's reply, 'I am samānārsheya, sir!' Thus we ought possibly to consider these formulas, which state a fictitious, ideal samānārsheyatva of the teacher and the student as a trace, and as far as I can see as the only trace, of an ancient rule requiring a real samānārsheyatva of teacher and student. As long as the ritual differences between the different Gotras, of which, as is well known, only a few traces have survived in the Vedic tradition, had retained their full importance, it can indeed scarcely have been considered as admissible that a young Brāhmaṇa should be confided to the guidance of a teacher who sacrificed and invoked the gods in another way than the customs of the pupil's own family required.

KHANDA 3.

1. 'Bhaga has seized thy hand, Savitar has seized thy hand, Pûshan has seized thy hand, Aryaman has seized thy hand. Mitra art thou by right, Agni is thy teacher, and I, N. N., both of us, Agni, I give this student in charge to thee. Indra, I give this student in charge to thee. Sun, I give this student in charge to thee. Visve devâs, I give this student in charge to you, for the sake of long life, of blessed offspring and strength, of increase of wealth, of mastership of all Vedas, of renown, of bliss.'

2. 'In Indra's course I move; in the sun's course I move after him'—with these words he turns round from left to right,

3. And grasping down with the span of his right hand over (the student's) right shoulder he touches the place of his heart with the words, 'May I be dear to thy inviolate heart.'

8, 1. Nârâyana: 'Instead of asau (N. N.) he puts the name of the student in the vocative case.' I think rather that the teacher here pronounced his own name. Comp. asâv aham bho, chap. 2, 5, &c., and the Mantra in Pâraskara II, 2, 20.

The text of the Mantra shows that the Âkârya here seizes the hand of the Brahmadâsin; comp. Ârvâlâyana I, 20, 4–6, where it is stated that he seizes the student's hand together with the thumb, quite in the way prescribed for the wedding at Sûkh. I, 13, 2. Comp. also Pâraskara II, 2, 17. Nârâyana: mânavakasya grhita-sampû/s evâkâryo Bhagas ta imam mantram gapan, &c.

Nârâyana here has the following note, 'Âkâryo bâtor dakshinâm bhum hastam aindrâm āvritam tâ mantrenâtvâvartayet. ayam arthââ, akârya imam mantram gâptvâ tâm bhâvam ka vâkayitvâ pradakshinâ-vartam kârayet.' I believe that the commentator here, as he frequently does, instead of interpreting the text of Sûkhâyana, fathers

2. ‘Thou art the Brahmaśārin of Kāma, N. N.!’

3. With the same text (see chap. 3, 2) he turns round as before,

4. And touching with the span of his right hand (the student’s) right shoulder, he murmurs:

on him statements belonging to other Sūtras, in this case probably to Āṣvalāyana I, 20, 9. As our text has not anvāvartya but anvāvrītya, and in the Mantra not āvartasva but āvarte, we must conclude that he turned round himself, and, as far as the statements of the text go, did not cause the pupil to do so.

5. The gesture is the same as that prescribed in the Pāraskara-Gṛhya I, 8, 8 to the bridegroom at the wedding; the Mantra there is identical with Śāṅkh. II, 4, 1, the only difference consisting in the name of the god who is invoked to unite the two: at the wedding this is Piigāpati, of course, because he is ‘lord of offspring’ at the Upanayana, Brāhhaspati, the Brahman kṣarā ḫoxhś among the gods. It is very natural that at the Upanayana and at the Vivāha, which both are destined to establish an intimate union between two persons hitherto strangers to each other, a number of identical rites should occur, for instance, the seizing of the hand; see the note on Sūtra 1.

2. As to Kāmasya brahmaśāry asi, see my remarks in the Introduction, p. 9.

The Gāyatrī which the teacher shall recite to a Brāhmaṇa is the same verse of which it is said below, chap. 7, 11, that it belongs to Visvāmitra (Rig-veda III, 62, 10); the Trishtubh which is taught to the Kshatriya is a verse ascribed to Hiranyastūpa, Rig-veda I, 35, 2; the Gagati which is to be repeated to a Vaiśya is Rig-veda IV, 40, 6, belonging to Vāmadeva, or Rig-veda I, 35, 9, belonging to Hiranyastūpa. the study of the Āranyaka the position is slightly different (VI, 3, 2). According to Nārāyana this Sūtra would contain a nishedha of the Sūtras 838 and 839 of the Rig-veda-Prātisākhya (p. ccxcii of Professor Max Muller’s edition).

10, 11. The Indian tradition divides these Sūtras after ākāryah, so that the words adhīhi bho would have to be pronounced by the teacher. Thus also Nārāyana explains, ākārya adhīhi bho 3 iti mānāvakām uktvā, &c. In my opinion it is the student or the students who say adhīhi bho. Thus the Prātisākhya (Sūtra 831, ed. Max Müller) says, ‘They invite him with the words adhīhi bho 3, all the students the teacher, having embraced his feet.’ Comp. also below, IV, 8, 12, the greater part of which Sūtra is word for word identical with these rules; VI, 3, 6; Gautama I, 46; Gobhila II, 10, 38.

three times ... He (the teacher) then gives him again the staff, which he had given him before silently. I do not think that this double handing over of the staff agrees with the real meaning of the text; Gobhila also (II, 10) and Âsvalâyana (I, 22, 1) prescribe the dandapradâna after the repetition of the Sâvitrî, without mentioning that the same had been already done before; Pâraskara II, 2, 11 speaks of the handing over of the staff before the recital of the Sâvitrî, and does not state that it should be repeated afterwards.

All these ceremonies, the teaching of the Sâvitrî as well as the dandapradâna, were considered as forming part of the Upanâyana, even though a longer or shorter space of time (chap. 5, 1-3) might elapse between the first arrival of the student at the teacher's house and the performance of these rites. This follows from chap. 11, Sûtras 2-4.

7, 1. Nārāyana: ‘Now (atha), i.e. after the observance of the Sukriya vrata,’ &c. On the Sukriya vrata which has to be undergone before the Anuvāhana treated of in this chapter can be performed, see the note on chap. 4, 1, and below, chap. 11, 9. One would have expected that in the arrangement of Sānkhyāyana the rites belonging to the Sukriya viṣṇu would precede the exposition of the Anuvāhana. Perhaps it was in consequence of the exact analogy of the Sukriya with the Sākvara, Vrāti, Aupanishuda vratas, that the description of the former has been postponed till the latter had to be treated of.

Rāmaśandra’s Paddhati has the following remark here, ‘Now the way of studying the Veda, called Anuvāhana, is set forth. This can be done only after the Sukriya vrata has been enjoined on the student; before that nothing but the Śāvitrī can be taught to him.’

17. 'Recite faith and insight, sir!' says the other.
'I recite faith and insight to thee!' says the teacher.

90. Comp. the note on chap. 5, 4–6. Nārāyana states, in accordance with these Sūtras of the fifth chapter, that in case the student belongs to the second or third caste, an Ūha (i.e. a corresponding alteration of the formulas; from the Śauta-sūtra, VI, 1, 3 the definition is quoted here sabḍavikāram ūham bruvate) takes place. If he is a Kshatriya, he has to say, 'Recite the Trishṭubh, sir!'—'Recite the verse of Hiraṇyastūpa (Rig-veda I, 36, 2), sir!' A Vaisya has to say, 'Recite the Gagai, sir!'—'Recite the verse of Hiraṇyastūpa (or, of Vāmadeva, Rig-veda I, 36, 9 or IV, 40, 5), sir!'

18. In that way, according to what Rishi each, hymn belongs to and what its deity and its metre is, thus (with the corresponding indications of Rishi, &c.) let him recite each hymn;

19. Or also, if he does not know the Rishis, deities, and metres, the teacher recites this verse, ‘That glorious (splendour) of Savitar’ (Rig-veda III, 62, 10), pada by pada, hemistich by hemistich, (and finally) without a stop, and says, when he has finished, ‘This (verse belongs to Savitar; it is a Gāyatrī; Visvāmitra is its Rishi).’

18-20. I do not think that Professor Weber (Indische Studien, X, 132) has quite exactly rendered the meaning of these Sūtras when he says, ‘The teacher then (i.e. after the formula of Sūtra 17 has been pronounced) teaches him first the Rishi, the deity, and the metre of each Mantra. In case he does not know them himself for a Mantra, he recites the holy Sāvitrī (tat Savitur vareṇyam). After this he teaches him in due order either (1) the single Rishis, i.e. the hymns belonging to each Rishī, or (2) the single Anuvākas, &c.—It does not seem quite probable to me that the student should have had to learn first the Rishis, deities, and metres of the whole Veda, before the text of the hymns was taught him; I rather believe that hymn by hymn the indication of the Rishis, &c. preceded the anuvākana of the text itself, and with this opinion the statement of Nārâyana agrees, ‘Evaṃ pūrvoktena praṇāma rishidevatāyllandā/pūrvakam tam tam Agnim ṛṣa ityādikam mantraṁ mānavakā-yākāryo-nubhrāyā’

19. According to Nārâyana by eshēti (literally, ‘This [is the Rāk]’) it is meant that the teacher, after having recited the Sāvitrī in the three ways mentioned, should say to the student, ‘This Rāk is in the Gāyatrī metre. If recited pada by pada, it has three pādas. Thus also this Rāk, if recited hemistich by hemistich, has two Avasānas (pauses), the first at the end of the hemistich, the second at the end of the third kārana (or pada). Thus also this Rāk is recited without stopping, at the end of the three kāranas, or of the twenty-four syllables, the pause (avasāna) should be made. Thus I recite to thee the Sāvitrī; I recite to thee the Gāyatrī; I recite to thee the verse of Visvāmitra.’ ‘For,’ adds Nārâyana, ‘if the Gāyatrī has been recited, the whole complex of the Veda being of that very

21. The Kshudrasūktas are the hymns Rig-veda X, 129-191.

24 seq. This seems to be an abridged method by which students who had not the intention of becoming Vedic scholars, and probably chiefly students of the Kshatriya and Vaisya caste, could fulfill their duty of learning the Veda; a student who knew the first and last hymn of a Rishi, or of an Anuvāka, was, as would seem from these Sūtras, by a sort of fiction considered as though he had known the whole portion belonging to that Rishi, or the whole Anuvāka.

27. Nārâyana explains Rishisvādhyāya by mantrasamhitā. He says, 'The Anuvāka which has been declared here, is to be understood also with regard to the svādhyāya, i.e. to the Sāṃhitā of the Mantras.' I think there is a blunder in the MS., and instead of tat api svādhyāye ... gṛhyam we ought to read tad rishi- svādhyāye ... gṛhyam. In this case we should have to translate the quoted passage, '... is to be understood with regard to the Rishisvādhyāya, i.e. to, &c.'—I think, however, that the true meaning of the Sūtra is different from what Nārâyana believes it to be. The expression vyākhyātām apparently conveys a reference to another treatise in which the rules regarding the Rishisvādhyāya would seem to have been fully set forth. The Śauta-sūtra contains no passage which could be the one here referred to, we may suppose, therefore, that either a chapter of a Prátiśākhya is quoted here, or a separate treatise on the special subject of the Rishiśvādhyāya. References to such treatises are found in the Sūtra texts in several instances, of which the most important is that in the Gobhila-Grhīya I, 5, 13, 'On what day the moon becomes full, the knowledge thereof is contained in a special text; that one either should study or ascertain when the Parvan is from those who have studied it.'

On yathāṣāktaṃ Nārāyaṇa observes that according to some teachers these water oblations were directed to the Rishis of the different hymns (ṛṣhīn uddiyeti keśit). This statement seems to be countenanced by IV, 6, 6. Comp. the note below on IV, 9, 1.

4. Narâyana: samidham iti mantralingât samidhâm homaḥ, mantraprāthaktvāt karmapraśthaktvam iti nyāyat

In the Atharva-veda XIX, 64, r the MSS. have Agne samidham âhârsham. Professors Roth and Whitney have conjectured in this passage âgṛ instead of Agne. It is shown by our passage and the corresponding ones in the other Sūtras that the true reading is Agnaye. Instead of ahäsrham we should read âhârsham, as all the parallel texts have. In the passage 'Firewood art thou; might we prosper,' there is a play upon words untranslatable in English, 'edho-sy edhishmahi.' Perhaps instead of samiddho mâm samardhaya we should read samriddho mâm samar-dhaya. As the Mantra referred to the Samidh-offering, samriddha could very easily be supplanted by the participle of sam-idh. In the parallel texts indicated p. 139 of the German edition it should be, Vâg. Sâmb. II, 14 a.

7. This Sūtra is wanting in one of the Haug MSS. and in the Śāmavāya MS.; Rāmaśandra's Paddhati takes no notice of it. I take it for a later addition. It should be noticed that the words dakshinaskandhe . . . ka paṭṭasau form a half Sloka.

12, 1 seq. The Indian tradition (with the exception only, as far as is known to me, of the Sâmavâya commentary) refers the ceremonies described in this chapter, like those treated of in chap. x, as well to the Sukriya as to the Sâkvara and the other Vrata.s. This is not correct. The eleventh chapter gives the rites common to the four Vrata.s; the Sukriya vrita is connected with no special ceremonies beside those, so that the exposition of this Vrata is brought to an end in that chapter. The last Sûtra of chap. xi marks the transition to the special rites which are peculiar to the three other Vrata.s, and are connected with the character of mystical secrecy attributed to the Ûrasyaka, and thus it is with the exclusion of the Sukriya that the twelfth chapter refers only to those Vrata.s. The difference which we have pointed out between the two chapters finds its characteristic expression in Sûtras 9 and 11 of chap. xi, compared with chap. 12, 13, 14; in the former Sûtras the statements there given are expressly extended to the Sukriya, the Sâkvara, the Vrâtiîka, and the Upanishada, while in the latter passage mention is made first of the Mahânâmnas, i.e. the text corresponding to the Sâkvara vrita, and then the uttarastî prakaraṇâni (the following sections) are referred to, i.e. the Mahâvrita and the Upanishada, so that the Sukriya vrita or the texts, the study of which is entered upon by that Vrata, are left out here.

There is a good deal of confusion in the several commentaries
2. Having sacrificed, the teacher then asks him with regard to those deities to whom he has been given in charge (see above, chap. 3, 1), ‘Hast thou fulfilled the duties of holiness before Agni, Indra, the Sun, and the Visve devâs?’

with regard to the succession of the different ceremonies taught in this chapter. They all agree in stating that after the lapse of the year through which the Vrata is kept, a ceremony is performed called Uddikshasikâ, i.e. the giving up of the Dikshâ, or preparatory observance. This Uddikshasikâ consists chiefly in the teacher’s ascertaining whether the student has fulfilled the duties involved by the Vrata (see Sûtras 2 and 3). Besides that, there is no doubt that a repetition of the Upanayana (chap. 11, 2) also formed part of the preparatory rites for the study of the Āranyaka. As to the way in which these different ceremonies and the other rites described in this chapter would have to be arranged according to our text, it is perhaps best to follow the statements given in an epitome from the bâlâvabodhanârtham RishidaivataÂsandopaddhati (MS. Beil. Chambers, 199a, fols. 13-16); the slight confusion therein is not difficult to get rid of. There we read, ‘The Sâkvara, however, is to be kept one year (chap. 11, 11). When the Uddikshasikâ has been performed, and three nights (chap. 12, 6) or one day and one night (ibid. 7) have elapsed, the Upanayana should be performed as above (chap. 11, 2), with this difference that at the end of the formula mama vrate, &c. (chap. 4, 1) one should say, “May Brîhaspati join thee to me for the holy observance of the Sâkvara through one year, O Devadatta!” (On this formula, resting on a misunderstanding of chap. 4, Sûtra 2, see the Introduction, p. 8.) The rest is the same as at the Sukriya. Then, when the year (chap. 11, 11) has elapsed, and the Uddikshasikâ has been performed, and the three days or the night have passed (chap. 12, 6. 7), he should go out of the village...and in the north-easter direction,’ &c. (here follows the description of how the secret doctrines should be taught to the student, according to Sânkha. VI). The confusion showing itself in the double mention of the Uddikshasikâ, before and after the Upanayana, should no doubt be put to the account of the excerptor or perhaps even of the MS.; what the meaning of the original Paddhati was is sufficiently shown in the remarks on the following Vratas, for instance, on the Vrâtiika (fol. 16), ‘Now follows the Vrâtiika vrata. It lasts one year (chap,

4. The teacher three times envelops, from the left to the right, with a fresh garment the face (of the student) who is standing behind the fire, in front of the teacher, with his face to the east.

5. He turns the skirt (of that garment) upwards so that it cannot slip down,

6. (And says:) 'Leaving off for three days the putting on of fuel, the going for alms, the sleeping on the ground, and the obedience to the teacher, fast in the forest, in a god's house or in a place where Agnihotra is performed, keeping silence, with earnest care.'

11, 12. When the Sākvara has reached its end [here we find added at the margin of the MS., "After the Uddikshasikā has been performed." These words ought not to be received into the text; in the corresponding passage on the Anapanishada vrata they are not found] he performs the whole ceremony, beginning from the smearing (of the Sthānāla with cow-dung), the drawing of the lines, &c., as at the Upanayana . . . and then, when one year has elapsed, he performs the Uddikshasikā, and the rules [given in chap. 12, 9 seq.] are observed as above.' I think that here the meaning of the text is correctly represented; first comes the Upanayana, then follows the Vrata lasting one year, then the Uddikshasikā. After this ceremony the teacher gives to the student the directions mentioned in chap. 12, 16; then follow the three days, or the one night (chap. 12, 6. 7), and finally they both go out of the village to the north-east, and in the forest they recite the Rahasya.

On the whole ceremonies connected with the study of the Ās- nyaka the sixth book should be compared.

5. Nārāyana : Vasrasya dasāḥ prāntabhāga[m] uparashīstå krivā tathā badhniyād yathā na sambhrasyeta adhāstān na patati tathā vidhīyam.

6. The things which the student here is ordered to leave off for three days are the same that are mentioned above, chap. 6, 8, as his standing duties. According to Nārāyana this would be the Ādeśa mentioned in chap. 11, 13.
7. Here some (teachers) prescribe the same observance only for one night, during which he is to stand.

8. The teacher refrains from eating flesh and from sexual intercourse.

9. When those three days or that night has elapsed, going out from the village he shall avoid to look at the following (persons or things) that form impediments for the study (of the Veda):

10. Raw flesh, a Kandāla, a woman that has lately been confined, or that has her courses, blood, persons whose hands have been cut off, cemeteries, and all sorts of corpse-like (animals?) which enter (their dens?) with the mouth first (?), keeping them away from the place where he dwells.

10. With Sūtikā is meant a woman during the first ten days after her confinement, for which period the asauka lasts.—Aparahasta is rendered by Narāyana by kāinnahasta; the comment on the Sambhava-Gṛhya mentions āyudhāṅkitahastāms ṣa. The translation of the last words of this Sūtra (sarvāṇi ṣa sava-rūpāṇi yāny āsyena [or āsyena?] praviseyukh svasya vasant nirasan) is absolutely uncertain. Narāyana says that such animals as lions, serpents, &c. are designated in common use as sava-rūpāṇi. (This literally means, 'having the form of a corpse' Immediately afterwards Narāyana gives a nearly identical explanation of sava-rūpā as different from the one stated first. So perhaps we may conjecture that his first explanation rests on a reading sarpāṇi; comp. the reading sava-rupā of Pāraskara.) Of these the animals entering their dwelling-places with the mouth first (āsyena) are to be understood here as forming, when looked at, an impediment for the study. Narāyana then says that other authorities understand sava in the sense of a dead human body; then sava-rūpāṇi are beings having the form thereof (tadṛūpāni), such as dogs, jackals, &c. The words yāny āsyena praviseyukh signify that the study is impeded also on the sight of lions, tigers, &c.; for these enter their dwelling-places with their faces first (? anumukhaḥ krītvā). The words svasya vasant nirasan mean,
11. Going out (from the village) in a north-eastern direction the teacher sits down on a clean spot, turning his face to the east.

12. When the sun has risen, he recites, in the way prescribed for the Veda-study, (the Āranyaka texts to the student) who is to keep silence and who wears a turban.

13. This rule is to be observed only for the Mahānāmnt verses.

14. At the sections however that follow (after the Mahānāmnts) the other one hears while the teacher recites them for himself.

15. He gives (to the teacher) the turban, a vessel, a good cow.

16. (The teacher accepts the gifts) with the verses, according to Nār., 'when he—i.e. the teacher—goes out of his dwelling-place.' Rāmaḷandra says that sāvarūpa either means lions, snakes, and other dangerous animals, or nails, horns, and other such things that fall off or are severed from the body. The text of the Sāmbayya MS. is sarvāni ka syāmarūpaṇi yāvānā (?) praviṣeyuḥ, which the commentary explains, sarvānā ka bhakshyaśvargāms ka. I think there can be little doubt that the text of Sāṅkhāyana is correct (except that some doubt will remain as to āsyena or āsyena), the more so as the passage reoccurs, nearly identically, below at VI, 1, 4. 5. As to the translation we can only go so far as to venture the opinion that the Sāṅkhāyana text does not admit the interpretation given by Gayaṛāma, and accepted by Professor Stenzler (who compares Āpastamba I, 11, 27; Gautama XVI, 47) in Pāraskara II, 13, 3 for sāvarūpa, which consequently should, in our opinion, be rejected also in that passage of Pāraskara. For ascertaining the true meaning of sāvarūpa we shall have to wait until new parallel passages have been discovered.

8. Nārāyana here quotes Rig-veda I, 24, 6, which is the first verse in the Rig-veda addressed to Varuna (i.e. to Varuna alone, not to Mitra and Varuna, &c.).

14, 1. The rules regarding the Vaisvadeva sacrifice stand here, as I have already pointed out in the German edition, p. 142, in a very strange position amid the matter that concerns the student, and before the description of the ceremony that concludes studentship (the Samāvartana; III, 1). On the first word of the chapter, atha, Nārāyana observes that thereby the householder is marked as the subject of the following rules. It seems rather forced to explain the position of this chapter, as Nārāyana does, by pointing out that in some cases, for instance when the teacher is away on a journey, a student also can eventually be called upon to perform the Vaisvadeva sacrifice (comp. below, chap. 17, 3).

2. This Sūtra shows, according to Nārāyana, that the Vaisvadeva offering does not follow the ordinary type of sacrifice (the Pratisrute homakalpa, as it is termed above, I, 9, 19), but the form described in the Agnikāryaprakarana, above, chap. 10, 3 seq.
svāhā!—having thus offered the oblations belonging to those deities,

5. He then shall offer Balis (i.e. portions of food) in the centre of the floor to the same deities; (then another Bali with the words,) 'Adoration to Brahman and to the Brāhmaṇas!' and (with the verse), 'Vāstoshpati, accept us' (Rig-veda VII, 54, 1) in the centre of the floor to Vāstoshpati.

6. He then distributes Balis, from the left to the right, through the different quarters (of the horizon, to the presiding deities) in due order (with the words),

7. 'Adoration to Indra and to those belonging to Indra! Adoration to Yama and to those belonging to Yama! Adoration to Varuṇa and to those belonging to Varuṇa! Adoration to Soma and to those belonging to Soma! Adoration to Brāhaspati and to those belonging to Brāhaspati!'

8. Then (turned) towards the disk of the sun, 'Adoration to Aditi and to the Ādityas! Adoration

5. 'He shall offer a Bali to those deities, i.e. to those ten deities to whom he has sacrificed, to Agni, &c. (see Sūtra 4), addressing them with the word, "Adoration (to such and such a deity")—because in the other cases the word "adoration" (namah) has been prescribed for the Bali.' Nārāyana.

6, 7. The distribution of Balis begins in the east, which is the part of the horizon sacred to Indra; it then proceeds to the south, the west, the north, which are sacred respectively to Yama, Varuṇa, and Soma. Finally the Bali belonging to Brāhaspati and the Bārhaspatyas is offered, according to Nārāyana, to the north-east.

8. The commentators (see p. 142 of the German edition) differ as to whether ādityamandalā means the disk of the sun towards which this Bali should be offered, or a place or an apartment of circular form (ādityamandalārdyape mandalagare, as in my opinion we ought to correct the reading in Nārāyana's note).

13. 'To Parganya, to the waters'—(thus) near the water-pot.

14. 'Adoration to Sûrî'—(thus) in the bed at the head, 'to Bhadrakâlî' at the foot.

15. In the privy, 'Adoration to Sarvânnabhûti!'

16. Then (he throws a Bali) into the air, in the evening with the words,'To the night-walkers,' in the morning with the words, 'To the day-walkers,' and with the verse, 'Which gods' (Rig-veda I, 39, 11).

17. To the unknown deities to the north, and to Dhanapati (i.e. the Lord of treasures).

18. With the sacrificial cord suspended over the right shoulder he pours out the remnant to the south with the verse, 'They whom the fire has burnt' (Rig-veda X, 15, 14).

19. When he has made his offerings to gods, fathers (i.e. Manes), and men, let him give food to a Srotiya (i.e. to a learned Brâhmaṇa).

20. Or let him give alms (of food) to a student.

21. Let him immediately afterwards offer food to a female under his protection, to a pregnant woman, to boys, and to old people.

22. Let him throw (some food) on the ground for the dogs, for the dog-butchers, and for the birds.
23. Let him eat nothing without having cut off (and offered as a Bali) a portion thereof.
24. (Let him) not (eat) alone,
25. Nor before (the others).
26. With regard thereto it has been said also in the Rik, 'In vain the fool gains food' (Rig-veda X, 117, 6).

KHANDA 15.

1. Should any one of the six persons (mentioned in the Srauta-sūtra and in the Sūtras 4–9) to whom the Arghya reception is due, visit (him), let him make (ready) a cow, a goat, or what (sort of food) he thinks most like (thereto).
2. Let the Argha not be without flesh.
3. On the occasion of a sacrifice and of a wedding let (the guest) say, 'Make it (ready).'

22, 23. Probably these Sūtras should be divided after it.
23. 'Pūrvam means, he should not eat before his relations (bandhubhyāḥ pūrvam prathamataḥ).' Nārāyana.
15, 1. This Sūtra presupposes the Srauta-sūtra IV, 21, 1 : 'To six persons the Argha reception is due, viz. to the teacher, to an officiating priest, to the father-in-law, to a king, to a Snātaka, to a friend.' Here the fourth person mentioned is the svasūra, while in the Grhyāya text the expression vaivāhya is used. It is difficult not to believe that both words are used in the same sense, and accordingly Nārāyana says vivāhyaḥ svasūraḥ. Comp. Professor Stenzler's note on Pāraskara I, 3, 1, Āpastamba II, 8, 7; Gautama V, 27.

2, 3. These Sūtras are identical with Pāraskara I, 3, 29. 30
The following Sūtra of Pāraskara stands in the Sāṅkhāyana text as
4. The animal (offered) to the teacher is sacred to Agni;
5. If offered to an officiating priest, to Bṛhaspati;
6. If to the father-in-law, to Pragāpati;
7. If to a king, to Indra;
8. If to a friend, to Mitra;
9. If to a Snātaka, to Indra and Agni;
10. Even if he performs more than one Soma sacrifice during a year, let only priests who have received (from him) the Arghya reception officiate for him, not such who have not received it.

11. Here it is said also:

Sūtra 10. Probably Pāraskara here represents the text which both Sātrākāras follow, more exactly, and the enumeration given by Śaṅkhāyana in Sūtras 4–9 of the different categories of Arghyas with the corresponding deities, is an addition to that original stock of rules.

Apparently the two Sūtras 2 and 3 stand in contradiction to each other, as Sūtra 2 seems to prescribe that at the Argha meal in every case flesh should be given to the guest, and Sūtra 3 specifies only two occasions on which the killing of the Argha cow cannot be dispensed with. Perhaps the meaning is this, that it is not necessary, except in the cases of a sacrifice and of a wedding, to kill a cow expressly for that purpose, but that in any case, even if the cow offered to the guest be declined by him, the host should take care that some flesh be served at that meal. So says Nārāyana; his note on Ārvalāyana-Grhyas I, 32, 33, 'Pasukaramapaksha tanmaṣṭiṣṭena bhogānum, uṣraganapakṣaṃ maṁśāntarena.' Similarly the Buddhists distinguish between eating flesh and eating the flesh of an animal expressly killed in order to entertain that very guest.

6. The literal translation of vaivāhya would be 'a person related by marriage.' But comp. the note on Sūtra 1.

Priya of course does not mean gāmātār, as is stated in a number of commentaries. Gobhila says priyo-śāthiḥ.

The last Asháká, which is celebrated in the dark fortnight of Mågha, is called Ekásháká; this Asháká is called the 'wife of the year,' 'the image of the year,' 'the disposer of the days.' If the Pháguna month is reckoned as the first of the year, this Asháká precedes the year's beginning only by a few days; there are also some Vedic passages which point to the Ekásháká's following shortly after the beginning of the year; see Weber, loc. cit., p. 342.

Nārāyana understands not ‘in the middle of the rainy season,’ but ‘in the middle of the year’ (see his note, p. 146 of the German edition). I cannot help thinking that the word madhyāvarsha, given by the MSS. here and in Pāraskara III, 3, 13, and explained by Nārāyana, is a corrupt reading which we should correct into māghyāvarsha (‘the festival celebrated during the rainy season under the Nakshatra Maghās’), or something like that. The MSS. of Āsvalâyana-Gṛhya II, 5, 9 have māghyāvarsham, māghāvarsham, mādhyāvarsham. Vishnu (LXXVI, 1, comp. LXXVIII, 52, and Professor Jolly’s note, Sacred Books of the East, VII, p. 240) mentions ‘the three Ashākās, the three Anvashākās, a Māgha day which falls on the thirteenth of the dark half of the month Praushānapada.’ Comp. 14, 3–6. This is one of the passages which the author has taken unchanged from a more ancient Śūtra; see Āsv. II, 4, 8–11; Gobhila IV, 1 (end of the chapter). The Śūtras do not refer, as their position would seem to indicate, to the third, but to the second Ashākā.

ADHYÄYA IV, KHANDA 1.

1. Let him offer (Srâddha oblations) every month to the fathers.

2. Having invited an uneven number of Brâhmanas, versed in the Veda, at least three, to sit down as (representing) the fathers,

1, 2. Khandas 1–4 contain the rules regarding the Srâddha oblations directed to the Manes. The dinners offered in connection with these Srâddha sacrifices to Brâhmanas and also—though of this of course no notice is taken in Vedic texts—to Sramanas stood in the first line among the exhibitions of liberality of lay people towards priests and monks. Thus we find among the stock phrases that constantly reoccur in the Pâli Piṭakas, the mention of Sramanas and Brâhmanas ‘who have eaten the food given to them out of faith’ (saddhâdeyyâni bhoganâni bhûnâgîtvâ)—wherein the ‘food given out of faith’ (saddhâdeyya) either chiefly or exclusively means the Srâddha dinners, which are so called because the sacrificer gives them ‘full of faith’ (srâddhâsaṃ-anvita, Manu III, 275) to the Brâhmanas and through them to the Manes.

The principal form of Srâddha is that treated of in chap. 1, which is designated in other texts (see, for instance, Âsrâlâyana-Grihya IV, 7, 1) as pârvana srâddha. There are, however, besides the parvan of the new moon, other times also considered as admissible for the performance of this monthly Srâddha; see Gautâma XV, 2 seq.; Âpastamba II, 16, &c.; and comp. on the Srâddhas in general the passages quoted by Professor Jolly, Das Dharma-sûtra des Vishnu (Sitzung der Bair. Akademie, phil. Classe, 7 Juni, 1879), pp. 46 seq.; Max Müller, ‘India, what can it teach us?’ pp. 234 seq., 374 seq.

2. ‘As the fathers’ means: he invites the youngest, middle-aged, and eldest Brâhmanas to sit down in the place of the father, the grandfather, and the great-grandfather’ (Nârâyana). A similar explanation of pitrâvata is mentioned by Nârâyana on Âsvalâyana-
3. And having strewn sesamum into an uneven number of water-pots,

4. He shall pour them out over the hands of the Brāhmaṇas, assigning (this gift) to them with the words, 'N. N.! This to thee!'

5. After this they should be adorned;

6. And after he has (respectfully) spoken to them, and has put food into the fire,

7. Assigning (the food) to them with the words, 'N. N.! This to thee!' he shall cause them to eat.

8. While they are eating, he shall murmur the Mahāvyāhṛtis, the Sāvitṛ, the Madhuvatiya-verse (Rig-veda I, 90, 6 seq.), and verses addressed to the Manes and to (Soma) Pavamāna.

Grīhya IV, 7, 2. My German translation of this Sūtra ought to be altered accordingly.

Besides the Brāhmaṇas mentioned in this Sūtra, who represent the fathers, according to all the commentaries, other Brāhmaṇas had to be invited as representing the Viśve devās. Nārāyaṇa gives detailed statements as to the number of the paitrīka, and of the daivika Brāhmaṇas to be invited, and though at first sight a European reader would rather be inclined to doubt whether at the Śrāddha ceremony, as the author of the text intended to describe it, any Brāhmaṇas at all had to be present except the paitrīkas, the Sūtra 2, 5 shows that the commentators are quite right in their statements regarding both categories of Brāhmaṇas.

5–7 It would be more natural to alter the division of the Sūtras, so as to bring āmantrya in the fifth, annaḥ ṛṣa in the seventh Sūtra. In this case we should have to translate: 5. After this, having (respectfully) spoken to them who have been adorned (by him with flowers, ornaments, &c.); 6. And having put (food) into the fire, 7. And having assigned the food to them, &c., he shall cause them to eat.—The respectful address mentioned in the fifth Sūtra consists, according to Nārāyaṇa, in the announcement, ‘Ye Brāhmaṇas, I will put (food) into the fire!’ (comp. Āśv.-Grīhya IV, 7, 18), which he subsequently does with the formulas, ‘To Agni Kavyavāhana svāhā! To Soma Pitṛimat svāhā! To Yama Aṅgirasvat Pitṛimat svāhā!’ Comp. Baudhāyana II, 14, 8.
9. When they have finished with eating, he shall offer the lumps (of flour).
10. Before (their dinner he shall offer) the lumps, according to some (teachers).
11. Behind (these he places the lumps) for their wives, putting something between (these and the preceding ones).
12. To the Brāhmaṇas he shall announce the remnants.
13. The rites of the putting (of food) into the fire (see Sūtra 6), &c. have been declared (in the Srauta-sūtra) by the Pindapitriyagña.

5. No inviting (takes place here), nor the putting

9. As to the way in which the Pindas should be offered, Nārāyaṇa refers to the Srauta-sūtra (IV, 4).
10. I1. Pindāṇa evidently belongs to the tenth Sūtra, not, as the Indian tradition takes it, to the eleventh. Between the Pindas of the fathers and those belonging to the mothers he puts, according to Nārāyaṇa, for instance, Daibha grass.

At the Pārvana Sraddha, after the Brāhmaṇas have finished their dinner and rinsed their mouths, and after the Pindas have been offered, the sacrificer says, ‘May what has been given at this Sraddha to our father N.N. who belongs to the gotra N.N., be imperishable!’ (comp. Yāgñ. I, 242.) This phrase is to be altered at the Ekoddhā Sraddha in the way indicated in this Sūtra.

8. After the Ekoddhā Sraddha has been performed for a dead person during the first year after his death, he is to be admitted, by the Sapinda-karana ceremony, among the other Manes, and receives thenceforward his Pinda together with them at the ordinary Pārvana Sraddha. As the ritual of this Sraddha requires that the number of the 'fathers' worshipped should be three, the accession of a new person makes necessary the omission of the pra-pra-pitamaha, who has now become fourth among the fathers.

3. It appears to me that this whole chapter is a later addition to the original text. The last Sūtra of the preceding chapter, treating of the omission of the fourth 'father,' which forms, as shown in the preceding note, a consequence of the Sapinda-karana,
2. When one year has elapsed, or three half-months,
3. Or on a day when something good happens,
4. He fills four water-pots with sesame, scents, and water,
5. Three for the fathers, one for the (newly) dead person,
6. And pours the pot that belongs to the (newly) dead person out into the pots of the fathers with the two verses, ‘They who commonly’ (Vāgāsaneysi Samhitā XIX, 45. 46).
7. Thus also the lump (of flour).
8. This is the Sapindaḥkarana.

Kanda 4.

1. Now (follows) the Ābhyudayika (i.e. the Sraddha ceremony referring to good luck).

supposes this ceremony to be known and to require no special explanation. Had the intention of the author been to treat of the Sapindaḥkarana, this would have been the right place for mentioning the Āturahavāsarga, and not, as we really read it, the end of the chapter treating of the Ekoddisā. As pointing in the same direction I will mention that the Sambavya-Gṛihya, while giving the first, second, and fourth chapter of this Adhyāya, omits the third. Finally it seems decisive to me that the fifth (Parishā) book of, the Sankhāya-Gṛihya treats of the Sapindaḥkarana in a whole chapter (V, 9), which shows that the text itself, as the author of the Parishā read it, gave no exposition of this ceremony.

2. Sāṅkhya says that tripakṣha means either three pakshas, i.e. one month and a half, or one paksha deficient by three days, i.e. twelve days. We need not say that the latter explanation is inadmissible; it evidently rests on a wrong conclusion drawn from a passage of another Sūtra quoted by him, in which it is stated that the Sapindaḥkarana should be performed samvatsarānte dvādasāhe vā.

Khandā 5.

1. Now (follows) the Upākarana (i.e. the ceremony by which the annual course of study is opened).

2. When the herbs appear, under the Nakshatra Hasta or Sravana,

3. Let him make oblations of the flour of fried barley and of grains, mixed with curds and ghee, with the (whole) Veda, verse by verse: thus say some (teachers).

4. Or with the first verses of the Sūktas and Anuvākas.

5. With the first verses of the Adhyāyas and of the sections belonging to the (different) Rishis, according to Māndukkeya.

6. But Kaushitaki has said:

7. ‘I praise Agni the Purohita (Rig-veda I, i, i), this one verse,

8. ‘The Kushumbhaka (mongoose?) has said it;’ ‘If thou criest, O bird, announce luck to us;’ ‘Sung by Gamadagni;’ ‘In thy abode the whole world rests;’

5, 1. As to the Upākarana, see the statements of Professor Weber in his second article on the Nakshatras, Abhandlungen der Berliner Akademie, 1861, p. 338, and of Professor Bühler in his notes on Āpastamba, S. B. E., II, pp. 110, 111.

2. The Nakshatra Sravasa is evidently considered as particularly fit for this occasion because of its name containing an allusion to śruti, &c.

3. I have followed Nārāyana, but perhaps I ought to have translated, ‘Sūktas or Anuvākas,’ and in the fifth Sūtra, ‘Adhyāyas or the sections, &c.’
‘Come to our sacrifice, O you that are worthy of sacrifice, with care;’ ‘Whosoever, be he ours, be he alien,’ ‘Look on, look about;’ ‘Come here, Agni, the Maruts’ friend;’ ‘The oblation, O king, cooked for thee:’ each time two verses,

9. ‘That blessing and bliss we choose’—this one verse (the first and last verse of each Mandala).

10. (Taking something) of the remnants of the sacrificed (food) they partake of that sacrificial food with this (verse), ‘I praised Dadhikrāvan’ (Rigveda IV, 39, 6).

11. They sip water, sit down,

12. Murmur the Mahāvyāhṛtis, the Sāvitrī, and the auspicious hymns commencing from the beginning of the Veda,

13. And cause the teacher to pronounce auspicious wishes.

9. According to Kaushitaki, the oblations are made with the first and last r̥kas of each Mandala. The last r̥k of the tenth Mandala quoted here, taṅ kham yor ā vṛiṇīmahe, is different from the verse with which our Samhitā (the Sākala Sanhitā of the Rig-veda) closes. It is well known that taṅ kham yor ā vṛiṇīmahe is the last verse in the Bāṣhkalā Sākhā which was adopted by the Sāṅkhārayana school (comp. Indische Studien, IV, 431; Weber, Verzeichniss der Berliner Sanskrit-Handschriften, p. 314, &c.; Indische Literaturgeschichte, second edition, Nachtrag, p. 2) It was also known long since that the Bāṣhkalā Sākhā of the Rig-veda contains eight hymns more than the Sākala Sākhā. The Karavavyātha Bhāṣya (comp. Dr. von Schroeder's Introduction to his excellent edition of the Maitrāyani Sanhitā, vol. 1, p. xxv), known to me through the kindness of Professor Weber, tells which eight hymns these are. There it is said (folio 22 of Professor Weber's MS.) that in the Bāṣhkalā Samhitā there followed after VIII, 48 the first two of the Vālakhilya hymns, after VIII, 94 the Vālakhilya hymns 3–7, and at the end of the whole collection the so-called saṃghāna hymn (see Professor Max Müller's edition, vol. vi, p 32), which ends with the very verse quoted in our Sūtra, taṅ kham yor ā vṛiṇīmahe.
14. Of this (ceremony) it is also said,
15. ‘Desirous (of acquiring) for the hymns inexhaustible vigour, reverence, and also soundness, the Rishis, by the power of their austerities, have discovered the Upakarman.
16. ‘Therefore a constant performer of the six kinds of works should, in order that his Mantras might be successful, perform the Upakarman—so they say—if he wishes for success of his (holy) works.
17. ‘At the time of the Upakarman and of the Utsarga an interruption (of the Veda study) shall take place for (three days and) three nights, likewise at the Ashakas for one day and one night, and so on the last night of each season.’

Khandava 6.

16. The six kinds of works are, performing sacrifices (yagana), officiating at the sacrifices of others (yagana), studying the Veda (adhyayana), teaching the Veda to others (adhyapana), giving (dana), and accepting gifts (pratigara). Narayana.
17. Concerning the Utsarga, see chap. 6. This Sloka occurs also Manu IV, 119 with the reading kshapasaam instead of kshapasaam (‘kshapasaam khandasasam virama anadhyayah, Narayana). Kshapasaam is correct.

6, 1. This Kandava treats of the Utsarga, i.e. the ceremony performed at the end of the term.
5. And having thrown clods of earth (on the ground) to the different quarters (of the horizon), from the left to the right, with the hymn, 'A ruler indeed' (Rig-veda X, 152), verse by verse,

7. The reason why the recitation of the Rig-veda is forbidden when the sound of a Sāman is heard, becomes manifest, for instance, from Āpastamba I, 10, 7, where the discontinuance of the Veda-study is prescribed when the barking of dogs, the braying of asses, the cry of a wolf, &c., the sound of musical instruments, of weeping, and of a Sāman is heard. Loud sounds like these would disturb the recitation of Rīk or Yagus texts. A very curious opinion has been recently brought forward by Professor Aufrecht (see his edition of the Rig-veda, second edition, vol. ii, p. xxxviii) that the incompatibility of the recitation of Rīk hymns and of Sāmans

29. Except during the rainy season. Nārāyana.
45. Nārāyana also understands maithuna, and I think that the German translation ought to be corrected accordingly.
48. With veiled hands;
49. In an army;
50. In presence of a Brāhmaṇa who has not had his meal, and of cows (that have eaten nothing);
51. When (these impediments) have passed, let them (continue to) recite (the Veda).
52. Should any of these cases arise against his will, let him (continue to) recite after having held his breath and looked at the sun.
53. (The same rules hold good,) except (those regarding) lightning, thunder, and rain, for (the study of) the Kalpa. During the five months and a half (they have to behave) as while it rains.
54. Thereof it is also said,
55. 'Food, water, roots and fruits, and whatsoever else Sraddha-food there may be: even when he has (only) accepted thereof, the study should be interrupted; the Brāhmaṇa's hand is his mouth; so it is taught.'

53. I think that this Sūtra contains two different rules which have to be separated, viz. 1. vidyutstanaśitnamvarshavargam kalpe; 2. varshavad ardhashahsthāshhu. The first of these rules would extend the cases of anadhīyāya mentioned in this chapter to the study of the Kalpa-sūtra, except the cases of lightning, rain, &c. The second would refer to the five months and a half following on the Utsaiga ceremony (comp. chap. 6, 8), and would imply that during this time the same texts are to be studied or not, according as their study is allowed or forbidden during rainfall; i.e. the study of the Sanskrit is to be discontinued, while that of the Kalpa is allowed to go on. Rāmakandra and Nārāyana differ from this interpretation; see p. 151 of the German edition.

12. The words adhīthi bho (recite, sir!) are pronounced by the student; this follows from the passages quoted in the note on II, 5, 10. Nārāyana states that those words are pronounced by the teacher (ākāryo guruḥ sishyam adhyāṭpanārtham adhīthi bho 3 id sabdam uktvā . . .).
17. (He shall say,) 'Leave! Pause meanwhile!' according to some (teachers).

18. Let no one step between (a teacher and students) who study.

19. Let no one change his place during the recitation.

20. Should any fault be committed, let him fast three days, or one day and one night, repeat the Sāvitrī as long as he can, and give something to the Brāhmaṇas; then after an interruption of one day and one night the study should go on.

KHANDA 9.

1. Having bathed,

2. And having submerged himself at the time prescribed for the bath, he satiates the deities:

19. The translation of ātmānām vipariharet is conjectural; comp. also Nārâyana's note, p. 151 of the German edition.

9, 1. It is not expressly stated in our text for what occasion the tarpana (i.e. satiating of deities, Rishis, &c. with water-offerings), which is treated of in chap. 9–10, shall be prescribed. The comparison of Baudhāyana II, 9 might perhaps lead us to believe that the ceremony in question is to be performed whenever the sacrificer takes a bath. But the two texts which are most closely connected with ours, the Śambavya and Ārvalāyana Gṛhyas, seem to point clearly to another conclusion. The Śambavya-sūtra transposes the rules about the tarpana to the place which would correspond to Śutra II, 7, 28 of our text. The passage of the Śambavya-sūtra runs thus: mūle kundam kṛtvā yathoktam adbhīh parishitāṁ yathāmās (so the MS.) tarpayati Agniḥ Ṛgāpatir Virūpākṣah, &c. It ends: pitaraḥ pitāmahāḥ pita-pitāmahāḥ Pailāḥ Kaholāḥ Kaushītakāḥ (sic) Kaholāya Kaushītakaye svadhāśtv iti pratipurushah (sic) pitṛms tarpayitvā. The last words are taken from the Śutra IV, 6, 6 of our text. Thus there can be no doubt that Śambavya intended to prescribe the tarpana for the conclusion of the vedādhyayana. The same can be said of Āśvalāyana, who also by the position which he assigns to the ārṣaṇa sections (III, 4) brings it into a similar connection with the vedādhyayana (see Nārāyaṇa’s commentary on Ārv., loc. cit.). We may also refer to the treatise about the study of the Āiṣayaka, which is appended to the Sāṅkhāyana-Grhyā as its sixth book; there the ārṣaṇa is mentioned quite in the same connection (VI, 6, 10 seq.). I believe, therefore, that in our text, chapters 9 and 10 have found their place here as a sort of supplementary addition to chap. 6, 6, just as in the first book the list of Nakshatras seems likewise appended to the Sūtra I, 25, 5.

'Agni may satiate himself; Vāyu may satiate himself; Śūrya may satiate himself; Viṣṇu may satiate himself; Prajāpati may satiate himself; Virūḍhaka may satiate himself; Sahasrākṣa may satiate himself; Soma, Brahman, the Vedas, the gods, the Rishis, and all the metres, the word Om, the word Vashat, the Mahāvyāhṛtis, the Sāvitrī, the sacrifices, heaven and earth, the Nakshatras, the air, days and nights, the numbers, the twilights, the oceans, the rivers, the mountains, fields, herbs, trees, Gandharvas and Apsaras, the serpents, the birds, the Siddhas, the Sādhyas, the Vipras, the Yakshas, the Rakshas, the beings that have these (Rakshas, &c.) at their end, may satiate themselves.

According to Nārāyaṇa, snātak in the first Sūtra would refer to the bath which forms part of the Samāvartana ceremony (see III, 1, 1), so that it would be the Grhyastha, who has taken the Samāvartana bath, to whom the following rules refer.

3. Comp. the similar lists of Āśvalāyana, Grhyā III, 4; Sāmbhava, quoted in my German edition of Sāṅkhāyana, p. 153; and Baudhāyana II, 9 (S. B. E., vol. xiv, pp. 252 seq.). The last seems to be the most modern.

It should be observed that the section of the list contained in this Sūtra, as well as that given below, chap. 10, 3, is divided into the success; I satiate the thought; I satiate belief and insight, and the memory, cows and Brāhmaṇas, movable and immovable things. All beings may satiate themselves!—so far with the sacrificial cord suspended over the left shoulder.

two parts, in the first of which the name of the being to be worshipped is given in the nominative case, with the verb tripyatu, while in the second it stands in the accusative, with the verb tarpayāmi. The first part of this section contains the names of gods and of divine beings, such as the rivers, the mountains, &c.; in the second part are found abstract qualities or notions, such as māti, dhṛtī, sruti. Similarly in chapter 10, 3 the Vedic poets, a few ancient teachers, and wise women, such as Gārgī or Sulabhā, form the first part of the list, and then follow, in the accusative case, the names of such doctors as Sāṅkhāyana, Āśvalāyana, Śālāyana. In Āśvalāyana's Sūtra of the first of our two sections only the first part reoccurs, the second is omitted, while the second section is found there in its entirety, with the same difference of names given in the nominative and accusative cases. The conjectures, however, which I had once based on this difference (see my German edition, pp. 152, 153) as to the distinction of a more ancient part of the list, and of later supplements, are perhaps too hazardous.

6. (The person who has been thus saluted, in reply addressing him with his name,) 'N.N.1' and seizing his hands, pronounces a wish to him.
7. Let him not go to a sacrifice without being chosen (thereeto).
8. And let him beware of (doing) wrong.
9. Let him not go to assemblies of people.
10. If he has come upon (such assemblies), let him not point out (anything evil) against (anybody).
11. He shall not be a reviler, nor slanderous, nor a wanderer from house to house, nor a prattler.
12. He shall not walk alone,
13. Nor naked,
14. Nor with veiled hands.
15. Gods’-houses (he shall walk round) keeping the right side turned to them.

17. Let him not spit.
18. Let him not scratch himself.
19. Let him not look on urine and excrements.
20. Let him sit with veiled head,
21. Not on the bare (ground),
22. If he has only one garment, suspending his sacrificial cord on his ear,
23. Not turning his face to the sun,
24. Nor his rump,
25. In the day-time with his face to the north, at night to the south.
26. He shall not (eject) phlegm into water, nor in the neighbourhood (of water).
27. He shall not climb up a tree.
28. He shall not look down into a well.
29. He shall not go to an execution-place,
30. And in no case to a cemetery.
31. Let him bathe day by day with his clothes on.
32. When he has bathed, let him put on another garment before he is dry.

KHANDA 13.
1. Under (the Nakshatrá) Rohini he shall have the ploughing done.
2. Before it is done, he shall offer at the eastern boundary of his field a Bali to Heaven and Earth.
3. With a verse sacred to Heaven and Earth and with the words, 'Adoration to Heaven and Earth!' (he performs his) worship (to Heaven and Earth).

16. According to Nárâyana we should have to supply, 'while it is raining', which is countenanced by a number of parallel texts, for instance, Ārv.-Grhya III, 9, 6.
4. When the plough is being put into motion first, let a Brāhmaṇa touch the plough reciting this (verse), 'For luck may us the plough-shares' (Rig-veda IV, 57, 8).

5. 'Through the lord of the field'—with (this hymn) (Rig-veda IV, 57), verse by verse, to the different directions (of the sky), from left to right, worship is done.

Khanda 14.

1. When going to cross water, he performs the Svastyayana (ceremony for lucky progress).
2. He sacrifices thrice with his joined hands full of water into the waters, with the words, 'Adoration to the Sea, the child of the reed! Adoration to Varuṇa, the lord of righteousness! Adoration to all rivers!' —
3. Murmuring, 'May Visvakarman, the father of them all, relish the food offered.'
4. Against the stream for flowing (waters); up into the air for standing ones.
5. Should he while crossing apprehend any danger, let him murmur the hymn of Vasishṭha, 'The eldest of which is the sea' (Rig-veda VII, 49); this (will serve to him as) a boat.

Khanda 15.

1. The Sravana (oblation) he offers on the full moon day that falls under (the Nakshatra) Sravishṭās, of the flour of fried barley, or of cooked food,
2. With (the words), 'To Vishnu svāhā! To (the Nakshatra) Sravana svāhā! To the full moon of Sravana svāhā! To the rainy season svāhā!'
3. Having established the (sacred) domestic fire outside, and having mixed together fried grain and the flour of fried barley with butter, he sacrifices—

4. With (the words), ‘To the Lord of the celestial Serpents svâhå! To the celestial Serpents svâhå!’

5. Having placed to the north of the fire a new water-pot on eastward-pointed, fresh Kûra grass,

6. With (the words), ‘May the Lord of the celestial Serpents wash himself! May the celestial Serpents wash themselves!’—he pours water into it.

7. With (the words), ‘May the Lord of the celestial Serpents comb himself! May the celestial Serpents comb themselves!’—he makes movements with a comb.

8. With (the words), ‘May the Lord of the celestial Serpents paint himself! May the celestial Serpents paint themselves!’—he pours out portions of paint.

9. With (the words), ‘May the Lord of the celestial Serpents tie (this) to (himself)! May the celestial Serpents tie (this) to themselves!’—he offers flowers.

10. With (the words), ‘May the Lord of the celestial Serpents clothe himself! May the celestial Serpents clothe themselves!’—he offers a thread.

11. With (the words), ‘May the Lord of the celestial Serpents anoint (his eyelashes)! May the celestial Serpents anoint (their eyelashes)!’—he spirits out (small portions of collyrium) with a young Kûra shoot.

12. With (the words), ‘May the Lord of the celestial Serpents look (at himself)! May the celestial Serpents look (at themselves)!’—he makes them look in a mirror.

15, 7. For this signification of phana, comp. Kûlavagga V, 2, 3.
13. With (the words), 'Lord of the celestial Serpents, this is thy Bali! Celestial Serpents, this is your Bali!'—he makes a Bali-offering.

14. In the same way for the aerial (Serpents).

15. For those dwelling in the directions (of the horizon).

16. For the terrestrial ones

17. (He repeats these Mantras) thrice each time, the first (part) with higher voice each time,

18. The second (part) with lower voice each time.

19. In this way he shall offer day by day with the spoon, in small portions, a Bali of the flour of fried barley with water, down to the Pratyavarohana (or the ceremony of the 'redescent'), at night, keeping silence.

20. And (his wife) shall put (it) down silently.

21. The close of the ceremony is the same as the beginning.

22. With (the verse), 'The good protectress' (Rigveda X, 63, 10), let him ascend the (high) couch.

17, 18 The text has uкалаистам—uкалаистам, and nкалаистам—nкалаистам. Nārāyaṇa (comp. the text of his scholion, p. 155 of the German edition) understands this in a different way; he says that in the water-pot mentioned in the fifth Sūtra two different sthānas are to be distinguished, a higher part of it and a lower (uttarādharatayā). Now when the sacrificer, for instance, as prescribed in Sūtra 6, invites the Lord of the celestial Serpents, and the celestial Serpents to wash themselves, the pouring out of water would have to be performed first thrice for the Lord of the celestial Serpents in the higher place, then thrice for the celestial Serpents in the lower place.

19. On the Pratyavarohana see chap. 17.

22. 'From the Śrāvastī till the Āgraḥāyanī (see chap. 17, 1) one shall not sleep on the ground out of fear of the snakes.' Nārāyaṇa.
KHANDA 16.

1. On the full moon day of Ásvayuga a milk-rice oblation to Indra.
2. Having sacrificed Ágya with (the words), 'To the two Ásvins sváhá! To the two Ásvayug sváhá! To the full moon of Ásvayuga sváhá! To the autumn sváhá! To Pasupati sváhá! To the tawny one sváhá!'
3. He shall sacrifice a mixture of curds and butter with this hymn, 'The cows came hither' (Rig-veda VI, 28), verse by verse.
4. That night they let the calves join their mothers.
5. Then feeding of the Bráhmanas.

KHANDA 17.

1. On the Ágraháyant full moon day he shall re-descend,
2. (Or) under (the Nakshatra) Rohini, or under the Proshṭapadás.
3. In the morning, having taken a handfull of Samt leaves, Madhúka flowers, reeds, Apámárga plants, and of Síršha, Udumbara, Kusa shoots, and jujube fruits, and an earth-clod (taken) out of a furrow,
4. Having put (all that) into a water-pot,

17, 1. The Pratyavaroḥaṇa (i.e. re descent) here described is the ceremony performed at the end of the time during which sleeping on high bedsteads is prescribed (chap. 15, 22). Beginning from the Srávàṇa full moon till the Pratyavaroḥaṇa, the offerings to the Serpents mentioned above have to be repeated every day (chap. 16, 19); the Pratyavaroḥaṇa is the concluding ceremony of these rites devoted to the Serpents.
5. And, after he has quickly repeated the Mahâvyâhritis and the Sâvitrî, having repeatedly immersed (it) therein with this hymn, ‘May he burn away from us pain’ (Rig-veda I, 97), he shall drive away the evil from the persons standing under his protection, from left to right, and pour out (the water) to the north.

6. A Madhuparka is the fee for the sacrifice.

KHANDA 18.

1. ‘May summer, winter and spring, autumn and rainy season be well-ordered to us. May we be under the safe protection of these seasons, and may they last (to us) through a hundred years. Svâhâ!

‘Beat away, O white one, with thy foot, with the fore-foot and with the hind-foot, these seven daughters of Varuna and all that belong to the king’s tribe. Svâhâ!

‘To the white one, the son of Vidârva svâhâ! To Vidârva svâhâ! To Takshaka Vaisâleya svâhâ! To Visâla svâhâ!’—with (these words) he sacrifices (oblations) of Ágya.

2. ‘May a good winter, a good spring, a good summer be bestowed (on us). May the rains be to us happy rains; may the autumns be blessed to us.’

3. With (the verse), ‘Blessing on us, Mitra’ (Rig-veda I, 90, 9), he sweeps (the floor) with a Palâsa branch,

5. Saranyaebhyo grîhebhyâh (read, grîhyebhyâh) sarvebhyâh sakâsât, &c. Nââyana.

18, 1. This chapter continues the description of the Pratyavaranahava begun in the preceding chapter.

Râgabândhavaîh, as our text has, should be corrected into râgabândhavîh; comp. Âsv. II, 3, 3.
4. Sprinkles (it with water) with (the verse), 'From the sea the wave' (Rig-veda IV, 58, 1).
5. And spreads out a layer (of straw) with (the verse), 'Be soft, O earth' (Rig-veda I, 22, 15).
6. They then lie down on their sides, the eldest one to the right hand—
7. With (the words), 'In the Brahman I establish myself, in the Kshatra,' on (their) right (sides);
8. With (the words), 'Among the horses I establish myself, among the cows,' on (their) left (sides);
9. With (the words), 'Among the cattle I establish myself, in prosperity,' on (their) right (sides);
10. With (the words), 'Among offspring I establish myself, in food,' on (their) left (sides).
11. With (the verse), 'Arise, the living' (Rig-veda I, 113, 16), they arise.
12. During that night they lie on that layer.
13. Afterwards where they like.

KHAANDA 19.

1. On the full moon day of Kaitra,
2. (Taking) jujube leaves, and making of meal (images) of couples of animals as it happens.
3. A figure with prominent navel to Indra and Agni.
4. Balls to Rudra.
5. According to custom the Nakshatras and (their ?) images (?). According to custom the Nakshatras and (their ?) images (?).

Here ends the Fourth Adhyāya.

19, 2–5. Several points in the translation of these Sūtras are uncertain. See the extracts from the commentary of Nārāyaṇa, pp. 156 seq. of the German edition.
ADHYÁYA V, KHANDA 1.

1. Now when he intends to set out on a journey, he makes (his sacred) fire enter into himself, (or) into the two kindling sticks, or into (an ordinary) log of wood,

2. Once with (the text), ‘Come, enter into my Prânas,’ twice silently.

3. Or with (the verse), ‘This is thy womb’ (Rigveda III, 29, 10) he warms the two kindling sticks,

4. Or an (ordinary log of) wood.

5. And before sunset the kindling (by attrition),

6. And at the time of the Vaisvadeva sacrifice.

7. Having carried a common fire to a place that has been smeared (with cowdung), which is elevated, and

1. i. The ceremony of Samârohana, by which the duties towards the sacred fire are suspended, by causing the fire to enter into the sacrificer's body, or into the two Arajas, or into another piece of wood, is already mentioned in several passages of the Brâhmaṇa texts; comp. the quotations given by Professor Weber, Indische Studien, IX, 311. Comp besides Ârvâlayana-Srauta-sûtra III, 10; Sânkhâyana-Srauta II, 17. The Samârohana into the sacrificer's own body is done by warming the hands at the sacred fire, see Ârv., loc. cit., Sûtra 6. In the Sânkhâyana-Srauta-sûtra the corresponding rule, which regards there of course the Âhitâgni, runs thus, ‘If he performs the Samârohana, he warms his hands at the Gârhapatya fire, and then touches his Prânas with the words, “Come, enter into my Prânas.”’ On the two other cases, see the Sûtras 3 and 4. Sûtras 2, 3, 5 are taken word for word from the Srauta-sûtra.

2. This Sûtra refers only to the case where he causes the fire to enter into himself.

5. Comp. the commentary on Ârv.-Sraut., loc. cit. 8. He makes the fire redescend from his body or from the Arajâs by performing the Manthana (kindling the fire by attrition of the Arajâs).

7. The Mantra alluded to here is given in the Srauta-sûtra. It which has been sprinkled (with water), he makes (the sacred fire) redescend (from its receptacle, with the formula), 'Redescend!'

8. If the fire goes out, he sacrifices the two Sarvaprayāśātta oblations (oblations for general expiation) and (other oblations) with (the formulas), 'Protect us, Agni, that we may prosper. Svāhā! Protect us that we may obtain all wealth. Svāhā! The sacrifice protect, O resplendent one! Svāhā! Protect everything, O hundredfold wise one. Svāhā!'

9. In the case of a breach of his vow let him fast and sacrifice (an oblation) of Āgya with (the verse), 'Thou, Agni, art the lord of the vow' (Rig-veda VIII, 11, 1).

KHANDA 2.

1. Now about (the consecration of) ponds, wells, and tanks.

2. In the bright fortnight, or on an auspicious Tithi,

3. Having cooked barley-grains with milk,

4. He shall sacrifice with the two (verses), 'Thou

4. He recites over (the garden), 'O tree with thy hundred branches' (Rig-veda III, 8, 11).

5. The fee for the sacrifice is gold.

KHANDA 4.

1. Now if a half-monthly sacrifice has not been performed, one or the other of them, then a mess of rice (is to be offered as an expiation),

2. With (the words), 'To Agni Vaisvânara svâhâ! To Agni Tantumat svâhâ!'

3. In the case of an intermission of the (morning or evening) oblations—

4. (He shall make expiatory oblations), in the evening with (the formula), 'Enlightener of the darkness, adoration! Svâhâ!'

5. In the morning with (the formula), 'Enlightener of the morning, adoration! Svâhâ!'

6. After he has sacrificed as many oblations as there had been sacrifices (left out), the sacrifice (itself goes on) as (stated) above.

KHANDA 5.

1. If a dove or an owl sits down (on his house),

2. Let him sacrifice with (the hymn), 'O gods, the dove' (Rig-veda X, 165), verse by verse.

4, 6. Nârâyana: 'After he has thus taken and sacrificed as many Sruvas full of Âgya as there were sacrifices omitted through his guilt, the morning and evening sacrifices have to be performed as (stated) above (I 3, 10) with oblations of rice or barley.'
3. If he has seen a bad dream or an occurrence boding misfortune,
4. Or when the cawing of a crow is heard in (the dead of) night,
5. And in the case of other prodigies,
6. Let him cook rice-grains with milk,
7. With the milk of a cow that has a calf of the same colour (with her own),
8. But in no case of a black (cow),
9. And let him sacrifice with the night-hymn (Rigveda X, 127), verse by verse.
10. Having eaten the remnants of those oblations with the Mahâvyâhritis,
11. And having recited over his ears (the verse), ‘Blessing with our ears’ (Rig-veda I, 89, 8),
12. And over himself (the verse), ‘May a hundred autumns be before us, ye gods’ (ibid. 9),
13. He shall give something to the Brâhmanas.

KHANDA 6.

1. When a disease has befallen him,
2. Let him offer boiled rice-grains with Gavedhukâ-grass with (the hymn), ‘These (prayers) to Rudra, the strong one, with braided hair’ (Rig-veda I, 114), verse by verse.

KHANDA 7.

1. If (his wife) gives birth to a child, without the Smantonnayana having been performed,
2. (Or if) the Gâatakarmman has not been performed (for the child),

7, 1. On the Smantonnayana, see I, 22.
2. The Gâatakarmman has been described I, 24.
3. He places, when ten days have elapsed since (the delivery), the little child in the mother's lap,

4. And after he has sacrificed with the Mahā-vyāhritis, the sacrifice (that had been omitted, is performed) as (stated) above.

KHANDA 8.

1. If a post puts forth shoots,

2. Let him prepare a mess of cooked food and offer the boiled rice with the two (verses), 'In that way bringing forth deeds' (Srauta-sūtra III, 17, 1), 'Of tawny shape, weighty, a giver of vigour' (Rigveda II, 3, 9).

3. Should the pot for the Pravatā water, the Âgyapot, or any other earthen (vessel) be damaged and leak,

4. He sacrifices the two Sarvaprāyasćitta oblations and recites the three verses, 'He who without' (Rigveda VIII, 1, 12 seq.), over the broken (vessel).

5. Should the two (Kusa blades which are used as) strainers be spoiled before the completion of the sacrifice,

6. Let him sacrifice the Sarvaprāyasćitta and make new ones with (the verse), 'In the water, Agni' (Rigveda VIII, 43, 9).

KHANDA 9.

1. Now (follows) the Sapindkarana.

3. On the ten days, comp. I, 25, 1 and the note there.

as that of the sacrifice after assent has been declared (see above, I, 7, 1).

4. After he has sacrificed seventeen one span long pieces of Palasa wood, he then seizes the Sruva.

5. Fifteen at the full and new moon sacrifices.

6. At the Ashakå ceremony in the middle of the rainy season there may optionally be three (pieces of wood); the sacrifice as at the Pitriyagña.

Khand 11.

1. If an anthill arises in his house, the house should be abandoned.

2. Then, after having fasted three nights (and days), he should perform the great expiation.

Here ends the Fifth Adhyåya.

11, 2. Näråyana understands the ‘great expiation’ as a rite directed to Gancra and to the planets (comp. Yågayavalkya I, 276 seq., 292, &c.) ; that this ceremony was known already to the author of this Sutra seems very doubtful. Another ‘mahåsånti’ is frequently mentioned in the Kausåka-sutra (quoted in Böhtlingk-Roth’s Dictionary); comp. my German edition of Såñosåyana, p. 159.
ADHYĀYA VI, KHANDA 1.

1. Now, after having paid reverence to Brahman, to the Brahmarishi, to (those who descend from) Brahman’s womb, to Indra, Pragāpati, Vasishtha, Vāmadeva, Kahola Kaushitaki, Mahākaushtitaki, Suyagña, Śāṅkhāyana, Āsvalāyana, Aitareya, Mahaitareya, Kātyāyana, Śātyāyana, Sākalya, Babhravya, Bābhrawya, Maudu, Māndāvya, and to all the teachers of the past, we will henceforth explain the rules for the Āranyaka as forming the subject of Svādhyāya (private recitation of a text).

2. The teacher abstains through one day and one night from sexual intercourse and from eating flesh.

3. Raw flesh, a Kandāla, a woman that has lately been confined, or that has her courses, seeing blood or persons whose hands have been cut off: (these persons and things he shall know form) impediments for the study.

4. And of the corpse-like (animals?).

5. Those which enter (their dens?) with the mouth first (?)

6. When he has vomited, or when his beard has been shaved,
7. When he has eaten flesh or partaken of a Srâddha or birth dinner,
8. During the days that immediately follow on (days of) study in the village,
9. Three nights (and days), if (he has been) put out of order,
10. (Or has been violently) seized by others,
11. And during the second half of the days that precede (?) the Parvan days,
12. And if fire-flames, lightning, thunder, (heavy) rains, and great clouds appear,
13. And if a storm (blows) that carries away pebbles, as long as that lasts.

2. During four months after the full moon of Âshâdha let him not study.

2. Especially the Sakvart verses (are concerned by what has been declared). Such are the rules.

KHANDA 2.

3. Let them go to a clean spot in the north-eastern direction, that receives its light from the east.
4. The drawing of water (should be done) before sunrise.

6. Comp. IV, 7, 42. See also Ait Âranyaka V, 3, 9.
7. Comp. IV, 7, 5.
2, 2. It seems to me that this Sûtra should be divided into two (after sakvaya), so that the words iti niyamâh would correspond to iti bhâshikam, chap. 2, 13.
3. Comp. II, 12, 11. Perhaps the Petersburg Dictionary is right in proposing for prâggyotisham the translation, vor Anbruch des Lichtes. Nârâyana says, prâk purastât gyotir yasmin tam ... piadesam.
5. And the entering into the circle with this verse, 'She who smells of salve' (Rig-veda X, 146, 6).

6. The circle should have its entrance to the east or to the north; it should be (praised as) excellent among the people, not too spacious, not too narrow.

7. The final expiation (should extend) to the Vāmadevyā.

8. And the invitation to resume the recitation (is done in the following way).

9. After they have sipped water that stands outside the circle,

10. Let them resume the recitation, having performed the expiation.

11. If the vessel used in the expiation is damaged, sprinkling (with water forms) the expiatory act (to be performed for it).

12. (That) sprinkling, however, (one should perform) holding gold or a bunch of Darbha grass in his hand.

13. So far what pertains to the general rules.

Khanda 3.

1. Now after they have entered the circle—

2. The teacher sits down with his face to the east, the others, according to their rank, (sit down) towards the south, with their faces to the north.

5. The Mandala is a circular space marked by a line of water.

6. I am doubtful whether we should read vā ganāgrīyam and translate as I have done in accordance with the note of Nārāyana, or if the reading should be vā-ganāgrīyam, 'not in the presence of people,' so that ganāgrīya would mean ganānām āgre.

7. On the expiation (sānti) comp. chap. 3, 12.

8, 2, 3. Comp. IV, 8, 2-4.
3. If that is impossible, with their faces to all directions.

4. Let them expect the rising of the sun,

5. And when they behold it in its splendour,

6. Let them with (the words), 'Recite, sir!' seize with their hands, holding the right hand uppermost, the feet of the teacher, which have been washed, with the right (hand) the right (foot), with the left the left,

7. And having then put (the hands) into the vessel used for the expiation, into water in which pieces of Dûrvâ stalks are, let them begin their study, when their hands have ceased to drip.

8. This is the rite. But when they are tired, let one of them bring it about that the vessel used for the expiation be not empty.

9. And all (should do so) at the beginning and the end of (each) Adhyāya.

10. (All) that is done continuously, without interruption.

11. Now the expiation.

12. The syllable Om, the Mahāvyāhrītis, the Sāvitṛ, the Rathantara, the Bṛhat, the Vāmadevya, Bṛhat and Rathantara with repetition and Kakubh-forming.

6. Comp. above, II, 5, 10, &c.

7. The translation of apinvamānaiḥ pāśibhiḥ is conjectural. Nārāyana's explanation of apinvamāna by asamsrīsh/a is inadmissible.

10. Nārāyana explains this Sūtra in the following way. If it is impossible, for any reason, to recite the whole text, only the beginning and the concluding words of each Adhyāya (see Sūtra 9) are to be repeated; and these should be recited without interruption so as to form one continual text.

12. Comp. above, III, 4, 5.
13. These (holy words and verses) are (thus) made to attain (the number of) ten.
14. 'Of decades consists the Virâg'—thus says the Brâhmaṇa.

KHANDA 4.

1. 'Unerring mind, vigorous eye (is) the sun, the noblest of the stars. Inauguration, do no harm to me!'—with (these words) they look at Savitri (i.e. the sun).

13. The Gâyatrī is one verse; the Rathantara and the Brâhat are Pragâthas which are changed in the usual way into Tr̄ikas; the Vâmadevyâ is one Tr̄ika: thus the number of ten is obtained.

4, 1. The formula ‘Adâbdhâma manâh, &c. has to be recited before each of the single Âranyaka texts (the Sakvâr verses, the Mahâvîrata, &c.), to this formula are added, before or after it, as the case may be, other texts specified in the Śûtras 2–8. Of these there can be no doubt about the meaning of Śûtras 7, 8, treating of the introductory formulas of the Sâwhitâ section (Kaush. Âr. VII–VIII) and of the Mantha section (ibid. IX). Before the text adâbdhâma, &c are to be added, in the first case the formula rītam vâdîshyâmi, &c., in the second case two Rikas addressed to Savitri. These formulas and verses have been received into the Âranyaka text and are found there in the order here stated, at the beginning of books VII and IX. The meaning of the words samâhitânâm tu pûrvam (Śûtra 7) having thus been established, I can see no reason why we should not interpret the words sakvârînâm tu pûrvam (Śûtra 3) quite in the same way. Thus the introductory benediction for the recital of the Sakvâr verses would consist, firstly of the verses stated in Śûtra 4, then of the formula adâbdhâma, &c; those verses would have to be repeated again after the Sakvâr verses (end of Śûtra 4). The recitation of the Mahâvîrata (Śûtras 1, 2) and of the Upanishads (Śûtra 5) is preceded by adâbdhâma, &c., and then by the four verses stated in Śûtra 2. The interpretation which Nârâyana gives of this Śûtra is not quite the same as that which I have here proposed; see p. 163 of the German edition.
2. One (verse), 'You both the gladdening one' (Rig Veda X, 131, 4), and the three (verses), 'Blessing to us on the paths' (Rig-Veda X, 63, 15-17) (are to be repeated before the recitation) of the Mahâvrata (chapter).

3. But (at that) of the Sakvart (verses) before (the formula mentioned in the first Sûtra):

4. The three Trîtas, 'To him, the thirsty one' (Rig-veda VI, 42, 1-3), 'The wealthiest (Soma), O wealthy one' (VI, 44, 1-3), 'Him who does no harm to you' (VI, 44, 4-6), (the verse), 'To him, to him the sap of the herb' (VI, 42, 4), (and the verse), 'Verily thou art a hero' (VIII, 81, 28)—thus for the Sakvarî (verses) before and afterwards.

5. Now for the Upanishad (texts)—

6. The same (recitation) as for the Mahâvrata.

7. For the Samhitâs, however, before (the text given in the first Sûtra the formula has to be recited), 'I shall speak right, I shall speak truth (&c.)'—this is the difference (in the case of the Samhitâs).

8. Now for the Mantha the two verses (have to be recited) before (the formula given in the first Sûtra), 'This we entreat of Savitar,' 'That glorious (splendour) of Savitar' (Rig-veda V, 82, 1; III. 62, 10).

4. According to the reading of some MSS. we should have to translate, or (the verse), 'Verily,' &c.

7 On the Samhitâs (Kaush. Âr. VII, VIII) see Max Müller, Rig-veda Prâtisâkhya, pp. 4 seq.; Alt. Âranyaka III (pp. 305 seqq., ed. Bibl. Ind.: Sacred Books of the East, I, pp. 247 seq.)

9 Regarding the description of the Mantha sacrifice (Kaush. Âr. IX) which has to be performed by one who wishes to attain greatness, comp. Satap Brâhmaṇa XIV, 9, 2; Khând. Up. V, 2, 4; Sacred Books of the East, I, p. 75.
9. With (the formula), 'Unerring mind' (see Sūtra 1), then follow the expiatory formulas that belong to the (different) sections.

10. (All) this on one day.

Khanda 5.

Khanda 4, 11. Now if the time for rising has come, they drive away (all) evil,

12. Perform the standing expiation,

13. And look at the sun with (the words), 'From here I take out the brightness(?).'

Khanda 5, 1. 'That (I place) within myself'—with (these words they turn their thoughts to the universal) Self that is placed (within themselves ?)—three times repeated (?).

2. With (the formula), 'May happiness rejoice in me and glory; may happiness rejoice with me and glory;—

3. 'Together with Indra, with the hosts, with power, with glory, with strength I will rise'—he rises up.

11, 12. Nārāyana has the following note: 'The evil which is attached to their body, such as dirt, they drive away, i.e. they remove it by means of their reciting (of the sacred texts), and then they perform the standing expiation which has been declared above, which begins with the syllable Om and with the Mahāvyāhritus' (see chap. 3, 12).

5, 1. Nārāyana says that dadhe is supplied to this Mantra from the preceding Sūtra, and so indeed the Mantra is given in the Aitareya recension. The translation of abhinīhitam trir hitam is merely tentative; see Nārāyana's note, p 165, of the German edition. Perhaps abhinīhitam should be taken in its grammatical value, and the Sūtra should be translated, 'That (I place) into myself (ātmanī)—with these words (they look) at themselves, pronouncing (the word ātmanī) with Abhumidhāna, three times repeated (?).' On abhumidhāna, comp. Professor Max Müller's edition of the Rig-veda Prātisākhya, pp. cxvii seqq.
4. 'May happiness rise to me; may glory rise to me'—when he has risen.

5. 'Hereby I shake off the hater, the rival, the evil one, and the bringer of misfortune'—with (this formula) having shaken the end of the garment,—

0. The hymn, 'Away those to the east' (Rig-veda X, 131), the two (verses), 'And may Indra have mercy upon us' (II, 41, 11, 12), the one (verse), 'Of what we are in fear, O Indra' (VIII, 50, 13)—(when these texts have been murmured), they look with (the verse), 'A ruler indeed, great art thou' (X, 152, 1) to the east; with (the verse), 'The giver of bliss' (X, 152, 2) to the south, turned to the right; with (the verse), 'Away the Rakshas' (X, 152, 3) to the west; with (the verse), 'Destroy, O Indra, our' (X, 152, 4) to the north, turned to the left; with (the verse), 'Away, O Indra' (X, 152, 5) to the sky, turned to the right.

KHANDA 6.

1. Having worshipped the Sun with (the verses), 'Savitri from the west,' 'This eye' (Rig-veda X, 36, 14; VII, 66, 16),

2. They turn away, come back, sit down.

3. With (the words), 'As the water is appeased'—they draw water out of the vessel used for the expiation,

4. Pour it out on the ground,

5. Spread (some) of that (water over the ground) with (the words), 'As the earth (is appeased),'

6, 2. Nārāyana explains vyāvartamānāḥ by parāvartamāna-dharmayuktāḥ

5 Perhaps we should read asyām (scil. pūthivyām) abhi-
6. He (then) smears it on his right shoulder with (the words), 'Thus may peace dwell in me.'
7. In the same way a second time.
8. In the same way a third time,
9. 'Piece by piece thou art produced; piece by piece thou risest up, bring welfare to us, O house!'— with (this text they) take pieces of Dûrvâ stalks (out of the vessel of water), put them on their heads,
10. (And make water-offerings with the formulas),
'May Agni satiate himself; may Vâyu satiate himself; may Sûrya satiate himself; may Vishnu satiate himself, may Pragàpati satiate himself; may Virûpâksha satiate himself; may Sahasrâksha satiate himself; may all beings satiate themselves.'
11. (Then) Sumantu, Gaimini, Vaisampâyana, Paila, and the other teachers (receive their offerings).
12. (Then) every one (worships in the same way) his fathers.
13. With (the text), 'To the sea you' (Sraut. IV, 11, 11) they pour out the water,
14. Murmur the Vâmadevya,
15. And separate according to their pleasure.
16. 'The final benedictory formula runs thus,
'Through the power of wisdom, of Sruti and Smrthi, as handed down by tradition, through (that power) which has its measure in (the Vedic texts) that have been gone through(?), and which is possessed of'

karshant, and translate, 'they draw (lines of that water) on this (earth).'

6. Nâlâyana says that all the students are to do so.
10. Comp. above, IV, 9. On the way in which this Tarpana is to be performed, Nâlâyana refers to the Sûtra II, 7, 5.

undisputed firmness, may peace be with us in welfare. Adoration be to gods, Rishis, Manes, and men! May they whom we have adored, make happy life, beauty, health, peace, incolumity, imperishableness, vigour, splendour, glory, power, holy lustre, renown, age, offspring, cattle, adoration, increase. From wrongly spoken, wrongly used (prayer), from everything that is deficient or excessive, for the good of gods and Rishis, may the Brahman and Truth protect me; may the Brahman and Truth protect me!'

ÂŚVALÂYANA-GRĪHYA-
SŪTRA.
INTRODUCTION

TO THE

ĀSVALĀYANA-GRĪHYA-SŪTRA.

Most of the questions referring to the Grīhya-sūtra of Āsvalāyana will be treated of more conveniently in connection with the different subjects which we shall have to discuss in our General Introduction to the Grīhya-sūtras. Here I wish only to call attention to a well-known passage of Shadbhuvanishya, in which that commentator gives some statements on the works composed by Āsvalāyana and by his teacher Saunaka. As an important point in that passage has, as far as I can see, been misunderstood by several eminent scholars, I may perhaps be allowed here to try and correct that misunderstanding, though the point stands in a less direct connection with the Grīhya-sūtra than with another side of the literary activity of Āsvalāyana.

Shadbhuvanishya, before speaking of Āsvalāyana, makes the following statements with regard to Āsvalāyana’s teacher, Saunaka. ‘There was,’ he says, ‘the Sākala Samhitā (of the Rig-veda), and the Bāshkala Samhitā; following these two Samhitās and the twenty-one Brāhma-vas, adopting principally the Aitareyaka and supplementing it by the other texts, he who was revered by the whole number of great Rishis composed the first Kalpa-sūtra.’ He then goes on to speak of Āsvalāyana—‘Saunaka’s pupil was the venerable Āsvalāyana. He who knew everything he had learnt from that teacher, composed a Sūtra and announced (to Saunaka that he had done so)? Saunaka then destroyed his own Sūtra, and determined that Åsvalåyana's Sûtra should be adopted by the students of that Vedic Sâkhå. Thus, says Shadguru-sishya, there were twelve works of Saunaka by which a correct knowledge of the Rig-veda was preserved, and three works of Åsvalåyana. Saunaka's dâsa grântâs were, the five Anukramanîs, the two Vidhânas, the Bârhaddai-vata, the Piñtisâkhya, and a Smâtâ work. Åsvalåyana, on the other hand, composed the Srauta-sûtra in twelve Adhyâyas, the Grihya in four Adhyâyas, and the fourth Åranyaka. this is Åsvalåyana's great Sûtra composition.

2 This seems to me to be the meaning of sūtram krśtvā nyavedaya;

Here we have an interesting and important statement by which the authorship of a part of the Aitareyâranyaka, which would thus be separated from the rest of that text, is ascribed, not to Mahidåsa Aitareya, but to an author of what may be called the historical period of Vedic antiquity, to Åsvalåyana.

But what is the fourth Åranyaka to which this passage refers? Is it the text which is now set down, for instance, in Dr. Râgendralâla Mitra's edition, as the fourth Åianyaka of the Aitareyinas?

Before we give an answer to this question, attention must be called to other passages referring, as it could seem, to another part, namely, the fifth part of the Åianyaka

Såyana, in his great commentary on the Rig-veda, very frequently quotes the pahkamåranyaka as belonging to Saunaka. Thus in vol. i, p. 112, ed. Max Muller, he says: pahkamåranyaka aushvihatrisëstir iti khañde Saunakena sâtritam surûpâkâritum ûtaya iti ûtany endra sànasim rayim iti dvê iti. There is indeed in the fifth Åianyaka a chapter beginning with the words aushvihit trûkâstih, in which the words quoted by Såyana occur. Similar quotations, in the case is similar to that where a pupil goes on his rounds for alms and announces (nivedâyati) to his teacher what he has received. Prof. Max Muller translates these words differently, according to him they mean that Åsvalåyana 'made a Sûtra and taught it.'

1 Comp Prof. Bühler's article in the Journal As. Soc. of Bungal, 1866, pp. 149 seqq.
2 Dvâdasådhyåyakam sâtram katuhrakam grihya eva ka katuhråranyakaṃ hēti by Åsvalåyanasûtukam which the fifth Āraṇyaka is assigned to Saunaka, are found in Sāyana’s commentary on the Āraṇyaka itself, see, for instance, p. 97, line 19, p. 116, line 3.

Thus it seems that the authorship of both the fourth and the fifth Āraṇyaka was ascribed to teachers belonging to the Sūtra period of Vedic literature, viz. to Saunaka and to Āsvalāyana respectively. And so we find the case stated by both Professor Weber, in his ‘Vorlesungen über indische Literaturgeschichte’, and Dr. Rāgendralāla Mitra, in the Introduction to his edition of the Aitareya Āraṇyaka.

But we must ask ourselves: Are the two books of the Āraṇyaka collection, ascribed to those two authors, really two different books? It is a surprising fact that Shadguruśishya, while speaking of Āsvalāyana’s authorship of the fourth book, and while at the same time intending, as he evidently does, to give a complete list of Saunaka’s compositions, does not mention the fifth Āraṇyaka among the works of that author. In order to account for this omission the conjecture seems to suggest itself that Shadguruśishya, when speaking of the fourth Āraṇyaka as belonging to Āsvalāyana, means the same work which Sāyana sets down as the fifth, and which he ascribes to Saunaka. At first sight this conjecture may seem perhaps rather hazardous or unnatural, however I believe that, if we compare the two texts themselves which are concerned, we shall find it very probable and even evident. What do those two Āraṇyaka books contain? The fourth is very short: it does not fill more than one page in the printed edition. Its contents consist exclusively of the text of the Mahānāmī or Sāvarī verses, which seem to belong to a not less remote

1 and edition, p. 53 Obwohl wir für das vierte Buch des letzten (i.e. of the Aitareya Āraṇyaka) sogar die direkte Nachricht haben, dass es dem Āsvalāyana, dem Schüler eines Saunaka angehört, so wie auch feiner für das fünfte Buch desselben dieser Saunaka selbst als Urheber geglüthen zu haben scheint, nach dem was Colebrooke Misc Ess I, 47 n. darüber berichtet

2 P. 11. If this assumption be admitted, the proper conclusion to be arrived at would also be that the whole of the fifth Book belongs to Saunaka, and the whole of the fourth Book to Āsvalāyana. P. 12. The writings of both Āsvalāyana and Saunaka seem to occur in the Āraṇyaka, etc.
antiquity than the average of the Rig-veda hymns. They can indeed be considered as forming part of the Rig-veda Samhitā, and it is only on account of the peculiar mystical holiness ascribed to these verses, that they were not studied in the village but in the forest, and were consequently received not into the body of the Samhitā itself, but into the Āśāyaka. They are referred to in all Brāhmaṇa texts, and perhaps we can even go so far as to pronounce our opinion that some passages of the Rig-veda hymns themselves allude to the Sakvāi verses:

rikāṃ tvah poshaṃ āstē upuṣṭah gāyati vṛ̥ga gāyati sakvarishu (Rig-veda X, 71, 11).

So much for the fourth Āśāyaka. The fifth contains a description of the Mahāvāṇa ceremony. To the same subject also the first book is devoted, with the difference that the first book is composed in the Brāhmaṇa style, the fifth in the Sūtra style.

Now which of these two books can it be that Shadgurushyā reckons as belonging to the ‘Āśvalāyanasūtraka’? It is impossible that it should be the fourth, for the Mahānāmī verses neve were considered by Indian theologians as the work of a human author; they shared in the apaurusheyatva of the Veda, and to say that they have been composed by Āśvalāyana, would be inconsistent with the most firmly established principles of the literary history of the Veda both as conceived by the Indians and by ourselves. And even if we were to admit that the Mahānāmī verses can have been assigned, by an author like Shadgurushyā, to Āśvalāyana,—and we cannot admit

1 See Sākhāyana-Gṛhya II, 12, 13
2 Thus Sāyuṇa, in his note on V, 1, 1, says. Nanu prathamaṁ vṛ̥gaṁ = pi atha mahāvratam Indro vai Vṛ̥gāyaṁ hatvetyādā mahāvratapravayaṁ bhūhitaṁ, paśśaṁ = pi tasyaivbhūdhāṁ punarbhūtyā sṛ̥vyā. nāyaṁ cōsaṁ, sūtraṁ brahmanam-rūpaṁ tayor vibhedat. paśśamārāyayām = śaśhprakṛtām sūtraṁ, prathamārāyayām tv apaurusheyam brahmanam, ata eva tattvādān pragapadaṇena sahitā vidyayaṁ sṛ̥vyante, paśśame tu na ko py arthaśād = sti. . . . aranyā evaitad adhyeyam ity abhipretyarādyetārā aranyakāṇḍe = mṛtarhāvyādyatāre.
this,—there is no possibility whatever that he can have used the expression 'Āsvalāyanasūtaṇakam' with regard to the Mahānāmśis; to apply the designation of a Sūtra to the Mahānāmśī hymn would be no less absurd than to apply it to any Sūkta whatever of the Rīk-Samhitā. On the other hand, the fifth book of the Āraṇyaka is a Sūta; it is the only part of the whole body of the Āraṇyaka collection which is composed in the Sūtra style. And it treats of a special part of the Rig-veda ritual the rest of which is embodied in its entirety, with the omission only of that very part, in the two great Sūtras of Āsvalāyana. There seems to me, therefore, to be little doubt as to the fifth Āraṇyaka really being the text referred to by Shadgurusishya, though I do not know how to explain his setting down this book as the fourth. And I may add that there is a passage, hitherto, as far as I know, unnoticed, in Sāyana's Sāma-veda commentary, in which that author directly assigns the fifth Āraṇyaka not, as in the Rig-veda commentary, to Saunaka, but to Āsvalāyana. Sāyana there says: yathā bāhvrīkām adhyāpakaḥ mahā-vratapīyayogaprātipādakam Āsvalāyananīrmītam kalpa-sūtīm aranyē dhiyamānāḥ pāṇkāram āraṇyakām itī vedatvāca vyavahāranti.

Instead of asse ting, therefore, that of the two last Āraṇyakas of the Aitarcynas the one is ascribed to Saunaka, the other to Āsvalāyana, we must state the case otherwise: not two Āraṇyakas were, according to Sāyana and Shadgurusishya, composed by those Sūtrakās, but one, viz. the fifth, which forms a sort of supplement to the great body of the Sūtras of that Karana, and which is ascribed either to Saunaka or to Āsvalāyana. Perhaps further research will enable us to decide whether that Sūtra portion of the Āraṇyaka, or we may say quite as well, that Āraṇyaka portion of the Sūtra, belongs to the author of the Srauta-sūtra, or should be considered as a remnant of a more ancient composition, of which the portion studied in the forest has survived, while the portion which was taught in the village was superseded by the more recent Áśvalāyana-sūtra.

There would be still many questions with which an Introduction to Áśvalāyana would have to deal; thus the relation between Áśvalāyana and Saunaka, which we had intended to treat of here with reference to a special point, would have to be further discussed with regard to several other of its bearings, and the results which follow therefrom as to the position of Áśvalāyana in the history of Vedic literature would have to be stated. But we prefer to reserve the discussion of these questions for the General Introduction to the Gṛihya-sūtras.
ÂŚVALÂYANA-GR̄HYA-SŪTRA.

ADHYĀYA I, KANDIKĀ 1.

1. The (rites) based on the spreading (of the three sacred fires) have been declared; we shall declare the Gr̄hya (rites).

2. There are three (kinds of) Pākayagṝnas, the hutas, (i.e. the sacrifices) offered over the fire; over something that is not the fire, the prahutās, and at the feeding of Brāhmaṇas, those offered in the Brahman.

3. And they quote also R̄ikas, ‘He who with a piece of wood or with an oblation, or with knowledge (“veda”).’

1, 1. The spreading (vitāna or, as it is also called, vihāra or vistāra) of the sacred fires is the taking of two of the three sacrificial fires, the Āhavantya fire and the Dakshināgni, out of the Gāhapatya fire (see, for instance, Weber’s Indische Studien, IX, 216 seq.). The rites based on, or connected with the vitāna, are the rites forming the subject of the Srauta ritual, which are to be performed with the three fires.

2. Comp Sānkhāyana-Gr̄hya I, 5, 1; I, 10, 7. The division here is somewhat different from that given by Sānkhāyana, what Sānkhāyana calls ahuta, is here prahuta (“sacrificed up”), the prahutās of Sānkhāyana form here no special category, the prāṛitas of Sānkhāyana are the brahmaṇi hutās of Āsvalāyana. Thus Āsvalāyana has three categories, while Sānkhāyana (and quite in the same way Pāṇāskara I, 4, 1) gives four. Nārāyaṇa mentions as an example of prahuta sacrifices the baliharana prescribed below, I, 2, 3.

3. Rig-veda VIII, 19, 5, ‘The mortal who with a piece of wood, or with an oblation, or with knowledge worships Agni, who with adoration (worships him) offering 11th sacrifices,’ &c.
4. Even he who only puts a piece of wood (on the fire) full of belief, should think, 'Here I offer a sacrifice; adoration to that (deity)!' (The ṛik quoted above then says), 'He who with an oblation'—and, 'He who with knowledge;' even by learning only satisfaction is produced (in the gods).

Seeing this the Rishi has said, 'To him who does not keep away from himself the cows, to him who longs for cows, who dwells in the sky, speak a wonderful word, sweeter than ghee and honey.' Thereby he means, 'This my word, sweeter than ghee and honey, is satisfaction (to the god); may it be sweeter.'

(And another Rishi says), 'To thee, O Agni, by this ṛik we offer an oblation prepared by our heart; may these be oxen, bulls, and cows.' (Thereby he means), 'They are my oxen, bulls, and cows (which I offer to the god), they who study this text, reciting it for themselves (as their Svādhyāya).'

(And further on the ṛik quoted above says), 'He who (worships Agni) with adoration, offering rich sacrifices.' 'Verily also by the performing of adoration (the gods may be worshipped); for the gods are not beyond the performing of adoration; adoration verily is sacrifice'—thus runs a Brāhmaṇa.

4. The words of the ṛik, 'with an oblation,' are here repeated, the Vedic instrumental āhūti being replaced and explained by the regular form āhūtyā.

The following ṛik is taken from the eighth Mandala, 24, 20. The god compared there with a rutting bull is Indra.

The following verse is Rig-veda VI, 16, 47; we may doubt as to the correctness of the explanation given in our text, by which te te is referred to the persons studying the hymns of the Rishi. All these quotations of course are meant to show that the knowledge of the Veda and the performing of nāmas (adoration) is equivalent to a real sacrifice.
KANDIKĀ 2.

1. Now he should make oblations in the evening and in the morning of prepared sacrificial food,

2. To the deities of the Agnihotra, to Soma Vanaspati, to Agni and Soma, to Indra and Agni, to Heaven and Earth, to Dhanvantari, to Indra, to the Visve devās, to Brahman.

3. He says Svāhā, and then he offers the Balis—

4. To those same deities, to the waters, to the herbs and trees, to the house, to the domestic deities, to the deities of the ground (on which the house stands),

5. To Indra and Indra's men, to Yama and Yama's men, to Varuna and Varuna's men, to Soma and Soma's men—these (oblations he makes) to the different quarters (of the horizon, of which those are the presiding deities).

6. To Brahman and Brahman's men in the middle,

2, 1. This is the Vārvadeva sacrifice; comp. Sāṅkhāyana-Grhīṭha II, 14, &c.

2. The deities of the Agnihotra are Sūrya, Agni, and Pragāpati. On Soma Vanaspati see the quotations given in Bohlingk-Roth's Dictionary s. v. vanaspati, 2.

3. I think the division of the Sūtras should be altered, so that svāhēti would belong to Sūtra 2, and the third Sūtra would consist only of the words atha baliḥaraṇam. In this case we should have to translate,

(1) Now he should make oblations, &c.

(2) With the words, 'To the deities of the Agnihotra (i.e. to Agni, to Sūrya, to Pragāpati), to Soma Vanaspati, &c., svāhā!'

(3) Then (follows) the offering of the Balis.

Comp. Sāṅkh.-Grhīṭha II, 14, 4, 5, which passage seems to confirm the view expressed here.

7. To the Visve devâs, to all day-walking beings—thus by day;
8. To the night-walking (beings)—thus at night.
9. To the Rakshas—thus to the north.
10. ‘Svadhâ to the fathers (i.e. Manes)—with these words he should pour out the remnants to the south, with the sacrificial cord suspended over the right shoulder.

Kandikâ 3.

1. Now wherever he intends to perform a sacrifice, let him besmear (with cowdung) a surface of the dimension at least of an arrow on each side; let him draw six lines thereon, one turned to the north, to the west (of the spot on which the fire is to be placed); two (lines) turned to the east, at the two different ends (of the line mentioned first); three (lines) in the middle (of those two); let him sprinkle that (place with water), establish the (sacred) fire (thereon), put (two or three pieces of fuel) on it, wipe (the ground) round (the fire), strew (grass) round (it), to the east, to the south, to the west, to the north, ending (each time) in the north. Then (follows) silently the sprinkling (of water) round (the fire).

2. With two (Kusa blades used as) strainers the purifying of the Âgya (is done).

4. The strewing (of grass) round (the fire) may be done or not done in the Āgya offerings.

5. So also the two Āgya portions (may optionally be sacrificed) in the Pākayagnīs.

6. And the (assistance of a) Brahman (is optional), except at the sacrifice to Dhanvantari and at the sacrifice of the spit-ox (offered to Rudra).

7. Let him sacrifice with (the words), ‘To such and such a deity svāhā!’

8. If there is no rule (as to the deities to whom the sacrifice belongs, they are) Agni, Indra, Pragāpati, the Visve devās, Brahman.

9. (Different Pākayagnīs, when) offered at the same time, should have the same Barhis (sacrificial grass), the same fuel, the same Āgya, and the same (oblation to Agni) Svishākṛt.

Kandikâ 4.

1. During the northern course of the sun, in the time of the increasing moon, under an auspicious Nakshatra the tonsure (of the child's head), the initiation (of a Brahmaśārin), the cutting of the beard, and marriage (should be celebrated).

2. According to some (teachers), marriage (may be celebrated) at any time.

3. Before those (ceremonies) let him sacrifice four Āgya oblations—

4. With the three (verses), 'Agni, thou purifiest life' (Rig-veda IX, 66, 10 seq.), and with (the one verse), 'Pragâpati, no other one than thou' (Rig-veda X, 121, 10).

5. Or with the Vyâhrîtis.

6. According to some (teachers), the one and the other.

7. No such (oblations), according to some (teachers).

3. Let him marry a girl that shows the characteristics of intelligence, beauty, and moral conduct, and who is free from disease.

4. As the characteristics (mentioned in the preceding Sûtra) are difficult to discern, let him make eight lumps (of earth), recite over the lumps the following formula, 'Right has been born first, in the beginning; on the right truth is founded. For what (destiny) this girl is born, that may she attain here. What is true may that be seen,' and let him say to the girl, 'Take one of these.'

5. If she chooses the (lump of earth taken) from a field that yields two crops (in one year), he may know, 'Her offspring will be rich in food.' If from a cow-stable, rich in cattle. If from the earth of a Vedi (altar), rich in holy lustre. If from a pool which does not dry up, rich in everything. If from a gambling-place, addicted to gambling. If from a place where four roads meet, wandering to different directions. If from a barren spot, poor. If from a burial-ground, (she will) bring death to her husband.

4. I prefer the reading of the Bibliotheca Indica edition, countenanced by Nârâyana's commentary, durvîgâeyâni lakshanânti, &c. The lumps are to be taken from the eight places mentioned in Sûtra 5.

5. No doubt the correct reading is not that given by Nârâyana and accepted by Professor Stenzler, dvipavrâginâ, but vipra-vrâginâ, as four of Professor Stenzler's MSS. read (see his Variae Lectiones, p. 49, and the Petersburg Dictionary s.v. vipra-vrâgin).
KANDIKĀ 6.

1. (The father) may give away the girl, having decked her with ornaments, pouring out a libation of water: this is the wedding (called) Brāhma. A son born by her (after a wedding of this kind) brings purification to twelve descendants and to twelve ancestors on both (the husband’s and the wife’s) sides.

2. He may give her, having decked her with ornaments, to an officiating priest, whilst a sacrifice with the three (Srauta) fires is going on: this (is the wedding called) Daiva. (A son) brings purification to ten descendants and to ten ancestors on both sides.

3. They fulfil the law together: this (is the wedding called) Prāgāpatya. (A son) brings purification to eight descendants and to eight ancestors on both sides.

4. He may marry her after having given a bull and a cow (to the girl’s father): this (is the wedding called) Ārsha. (A son) brings purification to seven descendants and to seven ancestors on both sides.

5. He may marry her, after a mutual agreement has been made (between the lover and the damsel): this (is the wedding called) Gāndharva.

6. He may marry her after gladdening (her father) by money: this (is the wedding called) Āsura.

2. What, however, is commonly accepted, that we shall state.

3. Having placed to the west of the fire a millstone, to the north-east (of the fire) a water-pot, he should sacrifice, while she takes hold of him. Standing, with his face turned to the west, while she is sitting and turns her face to the east, he should with (the formula), 'I seize thy hand for the sake of happiness' seize her thumb if he desires that only male children may be born to him;

14, 15. According to those teachers whose opinion is related in Sûtras 6–14, the leading round the fire, the treading on the stone, and the offering of fried grain (with the three parts of the Mantra, Sûtra 13) are repeated thrice, then follows the offering prescribed in Sûtra 14, so that the last two offerings follow immediately on each other. This is not the case, if in the first three instances the order of the different rites is inverted, as stated in Sûtra 15.

In Sûtra 14 Närâyana explains sårpapuva by kona.

20. Joining together their two heads, (the bridegroom? the Ācārya?) sprinkles them (with water) from the water-pot.

21. And she should dwell that night in the house of an old Brāhmāna woman whose husband is alive and whose children are alive.

22. When she sees the polar-star, the star Arundhati, and the seven Rūshis (ursa major), let her break the silence (and say), ‘May my husband live and I get offspring.’

KANDIKĀ 8.

1. If (the newly-married couple) have to make a journey (to their new home), let him cause her to mount the chariot with the (verse), ‘May Pūshan lead thee from here holding thy hand’ (Rig-veda X, 85, 26).

2. With the hemistich, ‘Carrying stones (the river) streams; hold fast each other’ (Rig-veda X, 53, 8) let him cause her to ascend a ship.

3. With the following (hemistich) let him make her descend (from it).

7. At every dwelling-place (on their way) let him look at the lookers on, with (the verse), ‘Good luck brings this woman’ (Rig-veda X, 85, 33).

8. With (the verse), ‘Here may delight fulfil itself to thee through offspring’ (Rig-veda X, 85, 27) he should make her enter the house.

9. Having given its place to the nuptial fire, and having spread to the west of it a bull’s hide with the neck to the east, with the hair outside, he makes oblations, while she is sitting on that (hide) and takes hold of him, with the four (verses), ‘May Pragâpati create offspring to us’ (Rig-veda X, 85, 43 seq.), verse by verse, and with (the verse), ‘May all the gods unite’ (Rig-veda X, 85, 47), he partakes of curds and gives (thereof) to her, or he besmears their two hearts with the rest of the Ágya (of which he has sacrificed).

KANDIKĀ 9.

1. Beginning from the seizing of (the bride's) hand (i.e. from the wedding), he should worship the domestic (fire) himself, or his wife, or also his son, or his daughter, or a pupil.
2. (The fire) should be kept constantly.
3. When it goes out, however, the wife should fast: thus (say) some (teachers).
4. The time for setting it in a blaze and for sacrificing in it has been explained by (the rules given with regard to) the Āgnihotra,
5. And the sacrificial food, except meat.

16. It is doubtful whether this paragraph should be considered as forming part of the quotation from the Sruti. The object of this passage is, in my opinion, to explain why the southern Āgya-bhāga belongs to Soma, who is the presiding deity of the north, and the northern Āgya-bhāga to Agni, the presiding deity of the south-east. Professor Stenzler’s opinion about this paragraph is somewhat different.

KANDIKĀ 11.

1. Now (follows) the ritual of the animal sacrifice.
2. Having prepared to the north of the fire the place for the Sāmitra fire, having given drink (to the animal which he is going to sacrifice), having washed the animal, having placed it to the east (of the fire) with its face to the west, having made oblations with the two Rikas, ‘Agni as our messenger’ (Rig-veda I, 12, 1 seq.), let him touch (the animal) from behind with a fresh branch on which there are leaves, with (the formula), ‘Agreeable to such and such (a deity) I touch thee.’
3. He sprinkles it from before with water in which rice and barley are, with (the formula), ‘Agreeable to such and such (a deity) I sprinkle thee.’
4. Having given (to the animal) to drink of that (water), he should pour out the rest (of it) along its right fore-foot.
5. Having carried fire round (it), performing that act only (without repeating a corresponding Mantra), they lead it to the north.
6. In front of it they carry a fire-brand.

10. To the west of the Sāmitra (fire) he (the Samitri) kills (the animal), the head of which is north; and having placed a grass-blade on his side of the (animal's) navel, (the 'performer') draws out the omentum, cuts off the omentum, seizes it with the two Agnisraptis, sprinkles it with water, warms it at the Sāmitra (fire), takes it before that fire, roasts it, being seated to the south, goes round (the two fires), and sacrifices it.

According to Kātyāyana VI, 6, 8 seq. a grass-blade is placed on the dead animal's body before the navel (agnena nābhim); through that grass-blade he cuts into the body and draws out the omentum.
'That fire' is, according to Nārāyana, not the Sāmitra but the Aupāsana fire. In the same way in the Srauta ritual the warming

KANDIKĀ 12.

1. At a Kāitya sacrifice he should before the Svishākṛit (offering) offer a Bali to the Kāitya.

2. If, however, (the Kāitya) is distant, (he should send his Bali) through a leaf-messenger.

14. ‘A Pañcāvattin cuts off three portions. Having performed the Upastarasa and the Pratyabhūhārāsa (the first and second pouring out of Āgya) he sacrifices (the cut-off portions).’ Nārāyana.

15 On the rites regarding the spit, see Kātyāyana VI, 10, 1 seq., Indische Studien, X, 346.

12, 1. There seems to be no doubt that Professor Stenzler is right in giving to kāitya in this chapter its ordinary meaning of religious shrine (‘Denkmal’). The text shows that the Kāitya sacrifice was not offered like other sacrifices at the sacrificer’s home, but that in some cases the offering would have to be sent, at least symbolically, to distant places. This confirms Professor Stenzler’s translation of kāitya. Nārāyana explains kāitya by kītte bhava, and says, ‘If he makes a vow to a certain deity, saying, “If I obtain such and such a desire, I shall offer to thee an Āgya sacrifice, or a Sthālpāka, or an animal”—and if he then obtains what he had wished for and performs that sacrifice to that deity—this is a kāitya sacrifice.’ I do not know anything that supports this statement as to the meaning of kāitya.

2. ‘He should make of a leaf a messenger and a carrying-pole.’ Nārāyana

It is not clear whether besides this image of a messenger there was also a real messenger who had to carry the Bali to the Kāitya,
3. With the Rik, 'Where thou knowest, O tree' (Rig-veda V, 5, 10), let him make two lumps (of food), put them on a carrying-pole, hand them over to the messenger, and say to him, 'Carry this Bali to that (Kaitya).

4. (He gives him the lump) which is destined for the messenger, with (the words), 'This to thee.'

5. If there is anything dangerous between (them and the Kaitya), (he gives him) some weapon also.

6. If a navigable river is between (them and the Kaitya, he gives him) also something like a raft with (the words), 'Hereby thou shalt cross.'

7. At the Dhanvantari sacrifice let him offer first a Bali to the Purohita, between the Brahman and the fire.

should in the third month of her pregnancy, under (the Nakshatra) Tishya, give to eat (to the wife), after she has fasted, in curds from a cow which has a calf of the same colour (with herself), two beans and one barley grain for each handful of curds.

3. To his question, 'What dost thou drink? What dost thou drink?' she should thrice reply, 'Generation of a male child! Generation of a male child!'

4. Thus three handfuls (of curds).

5. He then inserts into her right nostril, in the shadow of a round apartment, (the sap of) an herb which is not faded,

5. Nārâyana (comp. also the Prayogaratna, folio 40; Åsvalâyanâ-Grîhya-Parîshâ I, 25; MS. Chambers 667) separates this rite from the ceremony described in Sūtras 2–4. He says that Sūtras 2–4—as indeed is evidently the case—refer to the Pumsa-Þana, and in Sūtra 5 begins the Anavalobhana (comp. garbhara-kshaza, Sânkh. I, 21). To me it seems more probable that the text describes one continuous ceremony. There is no difficulty in supposing that of the Anavalobhana, though it is mentioned in Sūtra 1, no description is given in the following Sūtras, the same being the case undoubtedly with regard to the Garbhahambhana, of which a description is found in the Årv.-Parîshâ I, 25.

KANDIKÅ 14.

KANDIKĀ 15.

1. When a son has been born, (the father) should, before other people touch him, give him to eat from gold (i.e. from a golden vessel or with a golden spoon) butter and honey with which he has ground gold (-dust), with (the verse), 'I administer to thee the wisdom ('veda') of honey, of ghee, raised by Savitri the bountiful. Long-living, protected by the gods, live a hundred autumns in this world!'

2. Approaching (his mouth) to (the child's) two ears he murmurs the 'production of intelligence:' 'Intelligence may give to thee god Savitri, intelligence may goddess Sarasvati, intelligence may give to thee the two divine Āryanś, wreathed with lotus.'

3. He touches (the child's) two shoulders with (the verse), 'Be a stone, be an axe, be insuperable gold. Thou indeed art the Veda, called son; so live a hundred autumns'—and with (the verses), 'Indra, give the best treasures' (Rig-veda II, 21, 6), 'Bestow on us, O bountiful one, O speedy one' (Rig-veda III, 36, 10).

KANDIKĀ 17.

1. In the third year the Kāula (i.e. the tonsure of the child's head), or according to the custom of the family.

2. To the north of the fire he places vessels which are filled respectively, with rice, barley, beans, and sesamum seeds;

3. To the west (the boy) for whom the ceremony shall be performed, in his mother's lap, bull-dung in a new vessel, and Śamī leaves are placed.

4. To the south of the mother the father (is seated) holding twenty-one bunches of Kusa grass.

5. Or the Brahman should hold them.

6. To the west of (the boy) for whom the ceremony is to be performed, (the father) stations himself and pours cold and warm water together with (the words), 'With warm water, O Vāyu, come hither!'

7. Taking of that (water), (and) fresh butter, or (some) drops of curds, he three times moistens (the boy's) head, from the left to the right, with (the formula), 'May Aditi cut thy hair; may the waters moisten thee for vigour!'

9. (With the words,) 'Axe! do no harm to him!' he presses a copper razor (on the Kusa blades),

10. And cuts (the hair) with (the verse), 'The razor with which in the beginning Savitri the knowing one has shaved (the beard) of king Soma and of Varuna, with that, ye Brâhmans, shave now his (hair), that he may be blessed with long life, with old age.'

11. Each time that he has cut, he gives (the hairs) with their points to the east, together with Samti leaves, to the mother. She puts them down on the bull-dung.

12. 'With what Dhâtri has shaven (the head) of Brâhaspati, Agni and Indra, for the sake of long life, with that I shave thy (head) for the sake of long life, of glory, and of welfare'—thus a second time.

13. 'By what he may at night further see the sun, and see it long, with that I shave thy (head) for the sake of long life, of glory, and of welfare'—thus a third time.

14. With all (the indicated) Mantras a fourth time.

15. Thus three times on the left side (of the head).

KANDIKĀ 19.

1. In the eighth year let him initiate a Brahmana,
2. Or in the eighth year after the conception;
3. In the eleventh a Kshatriya;
4. In the twelfth a Vaisya;
5. Until the sixteenth (year) the time has not passed for a Brāhmaṇa;
6. Until the twenty-second for a Kshatriya;
7. Until the twenty-fourth for a Vaisya.
8. After that (time has passed), they become pati-tasāvitriṭka (i.e. they have lost their right of learning the Śāvitrī).

9. No one should initiate such men, nor teach them, nor perform sacrifices for them, nor have intercourse with them.

10. (Let him initiate) the youth who is adorned and whose (hair on the) head is arranged, who wears a (new) garment that has not yet been washed, or an antelope-skin, if he is a Brāhmaṇa, the skin of a spotted deer, if a Kshatriya, a goat’s skin, if a Vaisya.

11. If they put on garments, they should put on dyed (garments): the Brāhmaṇa a reddish yellow one, the Kshatriya a light red one, the Vaisya a yellow one.

12. Their girdles are: that of a Brāhmaṇa made of Muṅga grass, that of a Kshatriya a bow-string, that of a Vaisya woollen.

9. See below, chap 22, 22.
10. By the ‘arranging of the hair’ the cutting of the hair is implied, as is seen from chap. 22, 22.
13. Their staffs are, that of a Brāhmaṇa of Palāra wood, that of a Kshatriya of Udumbara wood, that of a Vaiśya of Bilva wood.

2. While (the student) takes hold of him, the teacher sacrifices and then stations himself to the north of the fire, with his face turned to the east.

3. To the east (of the fire) with his face to the west the other one.

4. (The teacher then) fills the two hollows of (his own and the student's) joined hands with water, and with the verse, 'That we choose of Savitri' (Rigveda V, 82, 1) he makes with the full (hollow of his own hands the water) flow down on the full (hollow of) his, (i.e. the student's hands.) Having (thus) poured (the water over his hands) he should with his (own) hand seize his (i.e. the student's) hand together with the thumb, with (the formula), 'By the impulse of the god Savitri, with the arms of the two Aśvins, with Pūshan's hands I seize thy hand, N.N. I'

5. With (the words), 'Savitri has seized thy hand, N.N. I' a second time.

6. With (the words), 'Agni is thy teacher, N.N. I' a third time.

7. He should cause him to look at the sun while the teacher says, 'God Savitri, this is thy Brahmākārin; protect him; may he not die.'

20, 3. He offers the oblations prescribed above, chap. 1, 4 seq.
8. (And further the teacher says), 'Whose Brahmakārin art thou? The breath's Brahmakārin art thou. Who does initiate thee, and whom (does he initiate)? To whom shall I give thee in charge?'

9. With the half verse, 'A youth, well attired, dressed came hither' (Rig-veda III, 8, 4) he should cause him to turn round from the left to the right.

10. Reaching with his two hands over his (i.e. the student's) shoulders (the teacher) should touch the place of his heart with the following (half verse).

11. Having wiped the ground round the fire, the student should put on a piece of wood silently. 'Silence indeed is what belongs to Pragāpati. The student becomes belonging to Pragāpati'—this is understood (in the Sruti).

KANDIKĀ 21.

1. Some (do this) with a Mantra. 'To Agni I have brought a piece of wood, to the great Gātavedas. Through that piece of wood increase thou, O Agni; through the Brahman (may) we (increase). Svāhā!'

Nārāyana here has the following remarks, which I can scarcely believe to express the real meaning of this Sūtra: 'Here the wiping of the ground round the fire is out of place, because the Samskāras for the fire have already been performed. As to that, it should be observed that the wiping is mentioned here in order that, when fuel is put on the fire in the evening and in the morning, the sprinkling of water and the wiping may be performed. But on this occasion (at the Upanayana) the student does not perform the wiping, &c., and silently puts a piece of wood on that fire.'
touched the fire, he three times wipes off his' face with (the words), 'With splendour I anoint myself'

3. 'For with splendour does he anoint himself'—this is understood (in the Shruti).

4. 'On me may Agni bestow insight, on me offspring, on me splendour.
   'On me may Indra bestow insight, on me offspring, on me strength (indriya).
   'On me may Sūrya bestow insight, on me offspring, on me radiance.
   'What thy splendour is, Agni, may I thereby become resplendent.
   'What thy vigour is, Agni, may I thereby become vigorous.
   'What thy consuming power is, Agni, may I thereby obtain consuming power'—with (these formulas) he should approach the fire, bend his knee, embrace (the teacher's feet), and say to him, 'Recite, sir! The Sāvitṛ, sir, recite!'

5. Seizing with his (i.e. the student's) garment and with (his own) hands (the student's) hands (the teacher) recites the Sāvitṛ, (firstly) Pāda by Pāda, (then) hemistich by hemistich, (and finally) the whole (verse).

6. He should make him recite (the Sāvitṛ) as far as he is able.

7. On the place of his (i.e. the student's) heart (the teacher) lays his hand with the fingers upwards, with (the formula), 'Into my will I take thy heart; after my mind shall thy mind follow; in my word thou shalt rejoice with all thy will; may Bṛhaspati join thee to me.'
KANDIKĀ 22.

1. Having tied the girdle round him and given him the staff, he should impose the (observances of the) Brahmākārya on him—

2. (With the words), 'A Brahmākārin thou art. Eat water. Do the service. Do not sleep in the day-time. Devoted to the teacher study the Veda.'

3. Twelve years lasts the Brahmākārya for (each) Veda, or until he has learnt it.

4. Let him beg (food) in the evening and in the morning.

5. Let him put fuel on (the fire) in the evening and in the morning.

6. Let him beg first of a man who will not refuse,

7. Or of a woman who will not refuse.

8. (In begging he should use the words), 'Sir, give food!'

9. Or, '(Sir, give) Anupravaśantya (food).'

10. That (which he has received) he should announce to his teacher.

11. He should stand the rest of the day.

12. After sunset (the student) should cook the Brāhmaṇaudana (or boiled rice with which the Brāhmaṇas are to be fed) for the Anupravaśantya sacrifice (the sacrifice to be performed after a part of the Veda has been studied), and should announce to the teacher (that it is ready).

As thou, O glorious one, art glorious, thus, O glorious one, lead me to glory. As thou art the preserver of the treasure of sacrifice for the gods, thus may I become the preserver of the treasure of the Veda for men.'

22. Thereby, beginning with his having the hair cut, and ending with the giving in charge, the imposing of observances has been declared.

23. Thus for one who has not been initiated before.

24. Now as regards one who has been initiated before:

25. The cutting of the hair is optional,
26. And the 'production of intelligence.'
27. On the giving in charge there are no express rules (in this case);

6. This has been said in the two Rîkams, 'He whom the officiating priests, performing (the sacrifice) in many ways' (Rig-veda VIII, 58, 1. 2).

7. He chooses the Hotri first.

8. With (the formula), 'Agni is my Hotri; he is my Hotri; I choose thee N. N. as my Hotri' (he chooses) the Hotri.

4. The Ahîna sacrifices are those which last more than one day, but not more than twelve days. (Indische Studien, IX, 373; X, 356.) The priests officiating at such sacrifices are the sixteen stated in the Srauta-sûtra IV, 1, 6. 7 Those besides the sixteen, though they are chosen (saty atm varas) for taking part in the sacred performances, have not the rank of rîtvigas (officiating priests); such are the Sadasya, the Samitri, and the Kamasadhvaryava (schol. Srautas. loc. cit.). See Max Müller's History of A. S. L., pp. 450, 469 seq. As to the Sadasya, however, there was some difference of opinion (see the next Sûtra).

5. On the office of the Sadasya, see Indische Studien, X, 136, 144.

6. The two Rîkams quoted here belong to the tenth among the Vâlakhâlya hymns, a hymn omitted in many of the Rig-veda MSS. They give no special confirmation to the rules stated in our text, but contain only a general allusion to the unity of the sacrifice, which the various priests perform in many various ways.

7. 'If the four (chief) priests have to be chosen, the choosing of the Brâhmaṇa stands first in order (see above, Sûtra 3); if all (the sixteen), then the choosing of the Hotri stands first in order.' Nârâyana.

16. Having murmured (this formula), the Hotrī declares his assent (in the words), 'Agni is thy Hotrī; he is thy Hotrī; thy human Hotrī am I.'

17. 'Kandramas (the moon) is thy Brahman; he is thy Brahman (&c.)'—thus the Brahman.

20. The functions of an officiating priest are not to be exercised, if abandoned (by another priest), or at an Ahīna sacrifice with small sacrificial fee, or for a person that is sick, or suffering, or affected with consumption, or decried among the people in his village, or of despised extraction. for such persons (the functions of a Ritvīg should not be exercised).

21. He (who is chosen as a Ritvīg) should ask the Somapraṇavāka, ‘What sacrifice is it? Who are performing a sacrifice for him; consequently the formula given here is only to be used by priests who are elected for a Soma sacrifice. Stenzler translates, ‘So spricht er, wenn er das Opfer durch sie vollziehen lassen will.' But this would be yakṣhya-

māsa, not yāgayishyan

20. The tradition takes niḍādaṅkshīvasya as in apposition to ahīnasya, and I have translated accordingly. But I cannot help thinking that the two words should be separated, so that we should have to translate, ‘or at an Ahīna, or for a person that gives small sacrificial fee.’ Thus the Brahmaṇa quoted by Āpastamba (see the commentary on the Pañcatilasīma Brahmaṇa, vol. i, p. 6, ed. Bibl. Indica) gives the following questions which the Ritvīg to be chosen should ask, ‘Is it no Ahīna sacrifice? Is the Ritvīg office not abandoned by others? Is the sacrificial fee plentiful?’ It is a very singular fact, that on the one hand the assistance of a number of Ritvīgas was unanimously declared necessary for the performance of an Ahīna sacrifice, while on the other hand it was considered objectionable, at least among some of the Vedic schools, to officiate at such a sacrifice. See Weber’s Indische Studien, X, 150, 151.

On ānudeśyaḥbhīrastā Nārāyaṇasaysa, sadesinābhisāstrasyavam eke, anye tu śṛddhe pratiśhiddhasyety āhū. It seems to me that ānudeśya (or rather ānudeśya?) in Sāṅkhāyana-Sraut. 8. With (the verse), 'I am the highest one among my people, as the sun among the thunderbolts. Here I tread on him whosoever infests me'—he should sit down on the seat (made of) northward-pointed (grass).

9. Or (he should do so) after he has trodden on it.

10. He should make (his host) wash his feet.

11. The right foot he should stretch out first to a Brāhmaṇa,

12. The left to a Sūdra.

13. When his feet have been washed, he receives the Arghya water in the hollow of his joined hands and then sips the water destined thereto, with (the formula), 'Thou art the first layer for Ambrosia.'

14. He looks at the Madhuparka when it is brought to him, with (the formula), 'I look at thee with Mitra's eye.'

15. He accepts it with his joined hands with (the formula), 'By the impulse of the god Savitṛi, with the arms of the two Aśvins, with the hands of Pūshan I accept thee.' He then takes it into his left hand, looks at it with the three verses, 'Honey the winds to the righteous one' (Rig-veda I, 90, 6 seqq.), stirs it about three times from left to right with the fourth finger and the thumb, and wipes (his fingers) with (the formula), 'May the Vasus eat thee with the Gāyatrī metre'—to the east;

With a Śamī branch or an Udumbara branch he sprinkles it (with water), going thrice round it, so that his right side is turned towards it, reciting the Santātiya hymn.

In the interstices between the bamboo staffs he should have the (single) rooms constructed.

Into the pits in which the posts are to stand, he should have an Avakā, i.e. (the water-plant called) Sīpāla put down; then fire will not befall him: thus it is understood (in the Śruti).

Having put (that plant) into the pit in which the middle-post is to stand, he should spread (on it) eastward-pointed and northward-pointed Kusa grass and should sprinkle (on that grass) water into which rice and barley have been thrown, with (the words), 'To the steady one, the earth-demon, svāhā!'

He then should, when (the middle-post) is being erected, recite over it (the two verses), 'Stand here, fixed in the ground, prosperous long-

KANDIKĀ 9.

1. (Over) the bamboo staff, when it is put on (the middle-post, he recites the hemistich),

2. 'Rightly ascend the post, O staff, bestowing on us long life henceforward.'

3. On four stones, on which Dūrvā grass has been spread, he should establish the water-barrel with (the words), 'Arise on the earth'—

4. Or with (the verse), 'The Araṅgara sounds, three times bound with the strap. It praises the welfare; may it drive away ill'

5. He then should pour water into it with (the verse), 'Hither may king Varuna come with the plentiful (waters); at this place may he stay contented; bringing welfare, dropping ghee may they lie down together with Mitra.'

6. He then 'appeases' it (in the following way).

7. He puts gold into water into which rice and barley have been thrown, and (with that water) he sprinkles it three times, going round it with his right side turned towards it, with the Santāṭhya hymn.

9. In the middle of the house he should cook a mess of food, sacrifice (therefrom) with the four verses, ‘Vástoshpati, accept us’ (Rig-veda VII, 54, 1 seqq.), verse by verse, should prepare food, should give to the Bráhmans to eat, and should cause them to say, ‘Lucky is the ground! Lucky is the ground!’

KANDIKĀ 10.

1. It has been declared how he should enter the house (when returning from a journey).

2. The house, when he enters it, should be provided with seed-corn.

3. He should have his field ploughed under the Nakshatras Uttarāḥ Proshṭadapās, (Uttarāḥ) Phālgunyas, or Rohini.

4. In order that the wind may blow to him from the field, he should offer oblations with the hymn, ‘Through the lord of the field’ (Rig-veda IV, 57), verse by verse, or he should murmur (that hymn).

5. He should speak over the cows when they go away, the two verses, ‘May refreshing wind blow over the cows’ (Rig-veda X, 169, 1 seq.).

6. When they come back, (he should recite the following verses,) of honey and ghee, be milk-givers to us; (may they be) many in our stable, rich in ghee.

'Come hither to me, giving refreshment, bringing vigour and strength. Giving inexhaustible milk, rest in my stable that I may become the highest one'—

And, 'They who have raised their body up to the gods'—the rest of the hymn (Rig-veda X, 169, 3. 4).

7. Some recite (instead of the texts stated in Sûtra 6) the Âgâvtya hymn.

8. He should approach their herds, if the cows do not belong to his Guru, with (the words), 'Prospering are ye; excellent are ye, beautiful, dear. May I become dear to you. May you see bliss in me.'

End of the Second Adhyâya.

7. The hymn commencing & gâvo agman (hither came the cows) is Rig-veda VI, 28.

8. Perhaps the last words (which are repeated twice in order to mark the end of the Adhyâya) should be written sa m mayi gânîfhdhvam, 'live with me in harmony together.'
Adhyāya III, Kandikā 1.

1. Now (follow) the five sacrifices.

2. The sacrifice to the Gods, the sacrifice to the Beings, the sacrifice to the Fathers, the sacrifice to Brahman, the sacrifice to men.

3. Here now, if he makes oblations over the (sacred) fire, this is the sacrifice to the Gods.
   If he makes Bali offerings, this is the sacrifice to the Beings.
   If he gives (Pinda offerings) to the Fathers, this is the sacrifice to the Fathers.
   If he studies (Vedic) texts, this is the sacrifice to Brahman.
   If he gives to men, this is the sacrifice to men.

4. These (five kinds of) sacrifices he should perform every day.

Kandikā 2.

1. Now the rules how one should recite (the Vedic texts) for one's self.

2. He should go out of the village to the east or to the north, bathe in water, sip water on a clean spot, clad with the sacrificial cord; he should spread out, his garment being not wet, a great quantity of Darbha grass, the tufts of which are directed towards the east, and should sit down thereon with his face turned to the east, making a lap, putting together his hands in which he holds purifiers (i.e. Kusa blades), so that the right hand lies uppermost.

1, i seqq. Comp. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XI, 5, 6, i seqq.
It is understood (in the Sruti), 'This is what Darbha grass is. it is the essence of waters and herbs. He thus makes the Brahman provided with essence.'

Looking at the point where heaven and earth touch each other, or shutting his eyes, or in whatever way he may deem himself apt (for reciting the Veda), thus adapting himself he should recite (the sacred texts) for himself.

3. The Vyāhṛitis preceded by (the syllable) Om (are pronounced first).

4. He (then) repeats the Śāvitrī (Rig-veda III, 62, 10), (firstly) Pāda by Pāda, (then) hemistich by hemistich, thirdly the whole.

KANDIKĀ 3.

1. He then should recite for himself (the following texts, viz.) the Rikas, the Yagus, the Sāmans, the Atharvan and Āṅgiras hymns, the Brāhmaṇas, the Kalpa (Sūtras), the Gāthās, the (texts in honour of kings and heroes, called) Nārāsams, the Itihāsas and Purāṇas.

2. In that he recites the Rikas, he thereby satiates the gods with oblations of milk—in that (he recites) the Yagus; with oblations of ghee—the Sāmans, with oblations of honey—the Atharvan and Āṅgiras hymns, with oblations of Soma—the Brāhmaṇas, Kalpas, Gāthās, Nārāsams, Itihāsas and Purāṇas, with oblations of ambrosia.

3, 1. On this and the following paragraphs comp. chiefly Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XI, 5, 6. Other enumerations, contained in the Veda itself, of the texts that were considered as forming the Veda or as attached to the body of the Veda, are found in the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XIV, 5, 4, 10 (Sacred Books, XV, 111), and in the Kāṇḍogya Upanishad VII, 1 (Sacred Books, I, 109).
3. In that he recites the Rikas, rivers of milk flow, as a funeral oblation, to his Fathers. In that (he recites) the Yagus, rivers of ghee—the Sâmans, rivers of honey—the Atharvan and Ângiras hymns, rivers of Soma—the Brâhmaunas, Kalpas, Gâthâs, Nârâsamsis, Itihâsas and Purânas, rivers of ambrosia.

4. After he has recited (those texts) as far as he thinks fit, he should finish with the following (verse), ‘Adoration to Brahman! Adoration be to Agni! Adoration to the Earth! Adoration to the Herbs! Adoration to the Voice! Adoration to the Lord of the Voice! Adoration I bring to great Vishnu!’

KANDIKÂ 4.

1. He satiates the deities: ‘Pragâpati, Brahman, the Vedas, the gods, the Rishis, all metres, the word Om, the word Vashas, the Vyâhrâritis, the Sâvitri, the sacrifices, Heaven and Earth, the air, days and nights, the numbers, the Siddhas, the oceans, the rivers, the mountains, the fields, herbs, trees, Gandharvas and Apsaras, the snakes, the birds, the cows, the Sâdhyas, the Vipras, the Yakshas, the Rakshas, the beings that have these (Rakshas, &c.) at their end.’

3. (Then) with the sacrificial cord suspended over the right shoulder.

4. 'Sumantu, Gaimini, Vaisampayana, Paila, the Sutras, the Bhashyas, the Bharata, the Mahabhарат, the teachers of law, Gantini, Bhave, Gargya, Gau-tama, Sakyaya, Babhryya, Mandavya, Mandukeya, Gargi Vakaknavi, Vadvav Pratithey, Sulabhava Maitreyi, Kahola Kaushitaka, Mahakaushitaka, Pangiya, Mahapangiya, Suyagita Sanakhayana, Airareya, Mahairareya, the Sakala (text), the Bashkala (text), Sugatavaktra, Audavahi, Mahadavahi, Savgami, Saunaka, Asvalayana—and whatsoever other teachers there are, may they all satiate themselves.'

5. After he has satiated the Fathers man by man, and has returned to his house, what he gives (then), that is the sacrificial fee.

6. And it is also understood (in the Sruti), 'May he be standing, walking, sitting, or lying, (the texts belonging to) whatsoever sacrifice he repeats, that sacrifice indeed he has offered.'

7. It is understood (in the Sruti), 'Regarding this (Svadhyaya) there are two cases in which the study (of the sacred texts) is forbidden: when he is impure himself, and when the place is.'

4. The names from Kahola Kaushitaki down to Asvalayana stand in the accusative; tarpayam, 'I satiate N. N.' is to be supplied.

5. Narayana: 'He satiates his father, grandfather, and great-grandfather, and goes to his house. What he then gives, for instance, food offered to guests, or given as alms (to religious beggars), is considered as the sacrificial fee for the Brahmayaga.'

KANDIKĀ 5.

1. Now (follows) the Adhyāyopākarana (i.e. the ceremony by which the annual course of study is opened);

2. When the herbs appear, (when the moon stands in conjunction) with Sṛavāna, in the Sṛavāna month,

3. Or on the fifth (Tīthi of that month), under (the Nakshatra) Hasta.

4. Having sacrificed the two Âgya portions, he should offer Âgya oblations (to the following deities, viz.) Sāvitṛ, Brahman, Belief, Insight, Wisdom, Memory, Sadasaspati, Anumati, the metres, and the Rishis.

5. He then sacrifices grains with curds (with the following texts):

6. ‘I praise Agni the Purohita’—this one verse (Rig-veda I, 1, 1),

7. ‘The Kushumbhaka (mongoose ?) has said it’—‘If thou criest, O bird, announce luck to us’—‘Sung by Gamadagni’—‘In thy abode the whole world rests’

5, 2, 3 Perhaps the division of these Sūtras should be altered, so that sṛavānasya would belong to Sūtra 2. In this case we should have to translate, ‘2. When the herbs appear, (on a day on which the moon stands in conjunction) with Sṛavāna. 3. Or on the fifth (Tīthi) of the Sṛavāna month, under (the Nakshatra) Hasta.’ Comp. sṛavānasya paṅkamīm, Pār. 8. 'United is your will' (Rig-veda X, 191, 4)—this one verse,

9. 'That blessing and bliss we choose'—this one verse.

10. When he intends to study (the Veda together with pupils), he should, while the pupils take hold of him, sacrifice to those deities, and sacrifice to (Agni) Svishṭakṛiti, and partake of the grains with curds; then (follows) the 'cleaning':

11. Sitting down to the west of the fire on Darbha grass, the tufts of which are directed towards the east, he should put Darbha blades into a water-pot, and making a Brahmatāgali (i.e. joining his hands as a sign of veneration for the Brahman), he should murmur (the following texts):

12. The Vyāhṛtīs preceded by (the syllable) Om (stand first); (these) and the Sāvitrī he should repeat three times and then recite the beginning of the Veda.

9. This is the last verse of the Rāk-Samhitā in the Bāshkala Sākhā. See my note on Sānkhyāṇa IV, 6, 9.

10. The expression, 'Those deities' would, according to Nārāyana, refer not only to the deities stated in Sūtra 4, but also to the deities of the first and last verses of the Mandalas (Sūtras 6 seqq.). On the grains with curds, comp. Sūtra 5. The technical sense of the 'cleaning' is explained in the Srauta-sūtra I, 8, 2; comp. Hillebrandt, Das altindische Neu- und Vollmondsopfer, p. 130, note 1. The sacrificer covers his joined hands with the Kusa grass spread out round the fire, and has water sprinkled on them.

13. In the same way at the Utsarga (i.e. at the

5. If he has seen a bad dream, he should worship the sun with the two verses, 'To-day, god Savitri' (Rig-veda V, 82, 4, 5), and with the five verses, 'What bad dreams there are among the cows' (Rig-veda VIII, 47, 14 seqq.).

8. If he has gone to a wife to whom he ought not to go, or if he has performed a sacrifice for a person for whom he ought not to do so, or has eaten forbidden food, or accepted what he ought not to accept, or pushed against a piled-up (fire altar) or against a sacrificial post, he should sacrifice two Āgya oblations with (the verses),

'May my faculties return into me, may life return, may prosperity return; may my goods return to me, may the divine power return into me Svāhā!

'These fires that are stationed on the (altars called) Dhishyās, may they be here in good order, each on its right place. (Agni) Vaisvānara, grown strong, the standard of immortality, may he govern my mind in my heart. Svāhā!'

10. Or murmur (the same two verses without any oblation).

KANDIKĀ 7.

1. If the sun sets while he is sleeping without being sick, he should spend the rest of the night keeping silence, without sitting down, and should worship the sun (when it rises) with the five (verses), 'The light, O sun, by which thou destroyest darkness (Rig-veda X, 37, 4 seq.).

2. If (the sun) rises (while he is sleeping without being sick), being fatigued without having done any work, or having done work that is not becoming, he should keep silence, &c., as before, and perform his worship (to the sun) with the following four (verses, Rig-veda X, 37, 9 seq.).

water, he should perform the Sandhyā (or twilight devotion), observing silence.

4. In the evening he should, turning his face to the north-west, to the region between the chief (west) point and the intermediate (north-western) point (of the horizon), murmur the Sāvitrī, (beginning) when the sun is half set, until the stars appear.

5. In the same way in the morning—

6. Standing, with his face turned to the east, until the disk (of the sun) appears.

7. If a dove flies against his house or towards it, he should sacrifice with (the hymn), 'O gods, the dove' (Rig-veda X, 165), verse by verse, or should murmur (that hymn).

8. 'We have thee, O Lord of the path' (Rig-veda VI, 53)—if he is going out for doing some business.

9. 'Bring us together, Pūshan, with a knowing one' (Rig-veda VI, 54)—if he wishes to find something lost, or if he has strayed.

10. 'Journey over the ways, Pūshan' (Rig-veda I, 42)—if he is going out on a long or dangerous way.

Kandikā 8,

1. Now when returning (home from his teacher) he should get the following things, viz. a jewel (to be tied round the neck), two ear-rings, a pair of garments, a parasol, a pair of shoes, a staff, a wreath, (pounded seed of the Karṇīga fruit) for rubbing with, ointment, eye salve, a turban; (all that) for himself and for the teacher.

9. Mūlha may either mean, 'having lost his way,' or 'bewildered in his mind.' Nārāyana prefers the latter explanation ('pragāhinaś').
2. If he cannot get it for both, only for the teacher.
3. He then should get a piece of wood of a tree which is sacrificially pure, in a north-eastern direction—
4. Sappy (wood) if he wishes for the enjoyment of food, or for prosperity, or for splendour; dry (wood), if for holy lustre,
5. (Wood) which is both (sappy and dry, in its different parts), if (he wishes) for both.
6. Having put the piece of wood on high, and having given a cow and food to the Brâhmanas, he should perform the ceremony of shaving the beard.
7. He should alter the texts so that they refer to himself.
8. With Ekaklitaka (he should perform the rubbing).
9. Having washed himself with lukewarm water, and having put on two (new) garments which have not yet been washed, with (the verse), 'Garments with fat splendour you put on, (Mitra and Varuna)

(the words), 'The sharpness of the stone art thou; protect my eye.'

he rubs himself therewith.
art thou; protect my ear'—he should tie on the two ear-rings.

11. After having salved his two hands with ointment, a Brähmana should salve his head first,
12. A Rāganya his two arms,
13. A Vaisya the belly,
14. A woman her secret parts,
15. Persons who gain their livelihood by running, their thighs.
16. With (the formula), 'Free from pain art thou, free from pain may I become'—he should put on the wreath.
17. Not (such a wreath) which is called mālā.
18. If they call it mālā, he should cause them to call it srag.
19. With (the formula), 'The standing-places of the gods are you; protect me from all sides'—he steps into the shoes, and with (the formula), 'The heaven's covering art thou'—he takes the parasol.
20. With (the formula), 'Reed thou art; from the tree thou descendest; protect me from all sides'—(he takes) a staff of reed.
21. Having with the hymn 'Giving life' tied the jewel to his neck and arranged the turban (on his head), he should standing put the piece of wood (on the fire).

21. On the hymn beginning with the words 'Giving life,' see Prof. Stenzler's note on this Sūtra. Its first verse is identical with Vāgasaneyi Samhitā XXXIV, 50 (comp. also Sānkhyāna-Grhya III, 1, 7), and so are most of its verses found in that Samhitā or in the Atharva-veda; the whole of it occurs among the Rig-veda Khilas (vol. vi, p. 25, 2-12).
KANDIKĀ 9.

1. (He says), 'Memory and reproach and knowledge, faith, and wisdom as the fifth, what is sacrificed, and what is given, and what is studied, and what is done, truth, learning, vow—

'The vow which belongs to Agni together with Indra, with Pragāpari, with the Rishis, with the royal ones among the Rishis, with the Fathers, with the royal ones among the Fathers, with the human beings, with the royal ones among the human beings, with shine, over-shine, after-shine, counter-shine, with gods and men, with Gandharvas and Apsaras, with wild animals and domestic animals,—the vow, belonging to my own self, dwelling in my own self, that is my universal vow. Hereby, O Agni, I become addicted to the universal vow. Svāhā!'

2. With (the hymn), 'Mine, Agni, be vigour' (Rig-veda X, 128, 1), verse by verse, he should put pieces of wood (on the fire).

3. He should pass that night at a place where they will do honour to him.

9, 1. 'My memory and my non-memory, that is my double vow'—in this way the twelve (parts of which the first section of the Mantra consists) should be recited.' Nārāyana. I think the commentator is wrong here, and that section should rather be recited as it is given in the text without any alteration; it forms a regular Sūkta. Agneḥ instead of Agne is a conjecture of Prof. Stenzler, which I have adopted.

2. According to Nārāyana the hymn should be recited including the Khila, so that ten pieces of wood are offered. Now the hymn consists of nine verses; there can be, consequently, only one Khaliha verse, which is, I suppose, the first verse of the Khila quoted above, p. 228.

4. When, after having finished his (task of) learning, he has offered something to the teacher, or has received his permission, he should take a bath (which signifies the end of his studentship).

5. He (i.e. the Snātaka) has to keep the following observances:

6. He shall not bathe in the night-time; he shall not bathe naked; he shall not lie down naked; he shall not look at a naked woman, except during sexual intercourse; he shall not run during rain; he shall not climb up a tree; he shall not descend into a well; he shall not swim with his arms across a river; he shall not expose himself to danger. 'A great being indeed is a Snātaka'—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

KANDIKĀ 10.

1. If (a student) wishes to be dismissed (by his teacher), he should pronounce before the teacher his (i.e. the teacher's?) name—

2. (And should say), 'Here we will dwell, sir!'

4. Nārāyana: He makes an offer to the teacher in the words, 'What is it that I can do for you?'—and what the teacher tells him, that he does.

10, 1. Nārāyana refers this rule to a student who has performed the Samāvartana and wishes to go away. But a comparison of Śāṅkhāyana-Gṛhya II, 18 seems to make it probable that the ceremony described here has nothing to do with the Samāvartana. I take this chapter rather for a description of the way in which a student has to take leave of his teacher when setting out on a journey. 'His name' is the teacher's name, according to Nārāyana.

2. Śāṅkhāyana II, 18, 1. Śāṅkh. has aham vatsyāmi; Āṣvalāyana, idam vatsyāmaḥ. The commentator says that instead of idam the Āṣrama is to be named which the student chooses to enter upon, for instance, 'Devadatta, we will dwell in the state of a householder, sir!'
3. With a loud voice (the words) following after the name.

4. 'Of inhalation and exhalation'—(this he says) with a low voice,

5. And (the verse), 'Come hither, Indra, with thy lovely-sounding, fallow-coloured (horses)' (Rig-veda III, 45, i).

6. The aged one then murmurs, 'To inhalation and exhalation I, the wide-extended one resort with thee. To the god Savitṛṣi I give thee in charge'—and the verse.

7. When he has finished (that verse), and has muttered, 'Om! Forwards! Blessing!' and recited (over the student the hymn), 'The great bliss of the three' (Rig-veda X, 185)—(he should dismiss him).

8. On one who has been thus dismissed, danger comes from no side—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

9. If he hears (on his way) disagreeable voices of birds, he should murmur the two hymns, 'Shrieking, manifesting his being' (Rig-veda II, 42, 43), and (the verse), 'The divine voice have the gods created' (Rig-veda VIII, 100, 11).

10. 'Praise the renowned youth who sits on the war-chariot' (Rig-veda II, 33, 11)—if (he hears disagreeable voices) of deer.

11. From the direction, or from the (being) from which he expects danger, towards that direction he should throw a fire-brand, burning on both sides, or having twirled about a churning-stick from the right to the left, with (the words), 'Safety be to me, Mitra

6. I have translated, as Prof. Stenzler has also done, according to Sāṅkhāyana’s reading, prāśāpānā ... tvayā. The 'aged one' is the teacher, the verse that which is quoted in Sūtra 5.
and Varuna; encounter the foes and burn them up with your flame. May they find none who knows them and no support; divided by discord may they go to death—

12. He turns the churning-stick downwards with (the verse), 'The combined wealth of both, heaped together' (Rig-veda X, 84, 7).

KANDIKĀ 11.

1. If unknown danger from all sides (menaces him), he should sacrifice eight Āgya oblations with (the formulas),

'Prthivī (the earth) is covered; she is covered by Agni. By her, the covered one, the covering one, I ward off the danger of which I am in fear. Svāhā!

'Antariksha (the air) is covered; it is covered by Vāyu. By it, the covered, the covering, I ward off the danger of which I am in fear. Svāhā!

'Dvāus (the heaven) is covered; she is covered by Āditya (the sun). By her, &c.

'The quarters (of the horizon) are covered; they are covered by Kandramas (the moon). By them, &c.

'The waters are covered; they are covered by Varuna. By them, &c.

'The creatures are covered; they are covered by Prāna (the breath). By them, &c.

'The Vedas are covered; they are covered by the metres. By them, &c.

'All is covered; it is covered by Brahman. By it, &c. Svāhā!'
Then, stationing himself towards the north-east, he murmurs the Svasti-Âtreya and, 'Of what we are in fear, Indra' (Rig-veda VIII. 61, 13 seqq.), down to the end of the hymn.

KANDIKÂ 12.

1. When a battle is beginning, (the royal Purohita) should cause the king to put on his armour (in the following way).

2. (The Purohita) stations himself to the west of (the king's) chariot with (the hymn ?), 'I have brought thee hither, be here' (Rig-veda X. 173).

3. With (the verse), 'Like a thunder-cloud is his countenance' (Rig-veda VI. 75, 1), he should tender the coat of mail to him.

4. With the following (verse) the bow.

5. The following (verse) he should cause him to repeat.

6. He should murmur himself the fourth.

7. With the fifth he should tender the quiver to him.

8. When (the king) starts, the sixth.

9. The seventh (he recites) over the horses.

10. The eighth he should cause (the king) to repeat while looking at the arrows;

2. The Svasti-Âtreya is the part of the hymn V. 51, which very frequently contains the word svasti (vv. 11-15). There is a Khila appended to that hymn (Rig-veda, vol. iii. p. 30), which, according to Nârâyana, is also to be murmured on this occasion.

12. a According to Nârâyana the Pratiṣka here signifies not the verse, but the whole hymn, though a whole Pāda is given (comp. Srauta-sūtra I. 1, 17).
11. (The verse), 'Like a serpent it encircles the arm with its windings' (Rig-veda VI, 75, 14), when he ties to his arm the leather (by which the arm is protected against the bow-string).

12. He then mounts up to (the king on his chariot), while he is driving, and causes him to repeat the Abhīvarta hymn (Rig-veda X, 174) and the two verses, 'He who, Mitra and Varuṇa' (Rig-veda VIII, 101, 3 seq.).

13. He then should look at him with the Apratiratha, Sása, and Sauparna hymns.

14. The Sauparna is (the hymn), 'May the streams of honey and ghee flow forwards.'

15. (The king) should drive (in his chariot successively) to all quarters (of the horizon)

16. He should commence the battle in the line of battle invented by Āditya or by Usanas.

17. He should touch the drum with the three verses, 'Fill earth and heaven with thy roar' (Rig-veda VI, 47, 29 seqq.).

18. With (the verse), 'Shot off fall down' (Rig-veda VI, 75, 16), he should shoot off the arrows.

12. The Abhīvarta hymn begins with the word abhīvartenā, and is ascribed to Abhīvarta Āngrasa

13. The Apratiratha hymn is Rig-veda X, 103 (ascribed to Apratiratha Aindra), the Sása, X, 152 (ascribed to Sása Bhāradvāga). On the Sauparna, see the next Sūtra.

14. This hymn is not found in any Vedic Samhitā, as far as I know, nor does it occur in the Suparnādhyāya. I have followed Prof Stenzler's conjecture pra dhārā yantu instead of pradhārayantu, which is confirmed by Sāyana's note on Aitareya Brāhmaṇa VI, 25, 7; VIII, 10, 4 (pp. 365, 399, ed. Anfrecht).

17, 18. According to Nārāyana the subject is the king.
19. 'Where the arrows fly' (I. 1. v. 17)—this (verse) he should murmur while they are fighting.

20. Or he should teach (the king the texts mentioned). Or he should teach (the king).

End of the Third Adhyâya.

19. Here the subject is the Purohitâ.
ADHYÅVA IV, KANDIKÅ 1.

1. If disease befalls one who has set up the (sacred Srauta) fires, he should leave his home (and go away) to the eastern, or northern, or north-eastern direction.

2. 'The sacred fires are fond of the village'—thus it is said.

3. Longing for it, desirous of returning to the village they might restore him to health—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

4. Being restored to health, he should offer a Soma sacrifice, or an animal sacrifice, or an ordinary sacrifice, and take his dwelling (again in the village).

5. Or without such a sacrifice.

6. If he dies, one should have a piece of ground dug up to the south-east or to the south-west—

7. At a place which is inclined towards the south or towards the south-east.

8. According to some (teachers), inclined towards south-west.

9. (The piece of ground dug up should be) of the length of a man with upraised arms,

10. Of the breadth of one Vyåma (fathom),

12. The cemetery should be free from all sides.
13. It should be fertile in herbs.
14. But plants with thorns and with milky juice, &c., as stated above.
15. From which the waters flow off to all sides: this is a characteristic required for the cemetery (smasâna) where the body is to be burned.
16. ‘They cut off (from the dead body) the hair, the beard, the hairs of the body, and the nails’—this has been stated above.
17. (They should provide) plenty of sacrificial grass and of butter.
18. They here pour clarified butter into curds.
19. This is the ‘sprinkled butter’ used for the Fathers (i.e. Manes).

KANDIKÂ 2.

1. (The relations of the dead person) now carry (his sacred) fires and (his) sacrificial vessels in that direction.

12. Nârâyana: By the word smasâna (cemetery) two different smasânas are designated here, because below (Sûtra 15) a distinction is added (to the word smasâna), in the words, ‘This is a characteristic required for the smasâna where the body is to be burned.’ Thus the place where the body is burned, and the place where the gathered bones are deposited, both are called smasâna.

15. See the note on Sûtra 12.
16. See the Srauta-sûtra VI, 10, 2.

2. After them aged persons forming an odd number, men and women not going together, (carry) the dead body.

3. Some (say) that (the dead body should be carried) in a cart with a seat, drawn by cows.

4. (Some prescribe) a she-animal for covering (the dead body with its limbs):

5. A cow,

6. Or a she-goat of one colour.

7. Some (take) a black one.

8. They tie (a ropc) to its left fore-foot and lead it behind (the dead body).

9. Then follow the relations (of the dead person), wearing their sacrificial cords below (round their body), with the hair-locks untied, the older ones first, the younger ones last.

10. When they have thus arrived at the place, the performer (of the rites) walks three times round the spot with his left side turned towards it, and with a Sami branch sprinkles water on it, with (the verse), 'Go away, withdraw, and depart from here' (Rig-veda X, 14, 9).

11. To the south-east, on an elevated corner (of that place), he places the Āhavantya fire,

12. To the north-west the Gārhapatya fire,

13. To the south-west the Dakshiṇa fire.

14. After that a person that knows (how to do it), piles up between the fires a pile of fuel.

10. Kartodakena (i.e. kartā udakena) is evidently the right reading, not gartodakena 12, 13. The words, 'on an elevated corner' (Sūtra xi) have to be supplied.

17. And a bow for a Kshatriya.

18. Her brother-in-law, being a representative of her husband, or a pupil (of her husband), or an aged servant, should cause her to rise (from that place) with (the verse), ‘Arise, O wife, to the world of life’ (Rig-veda X, 18, 8).

19. The performer (of the rites) should murmur (that verse), if a Sūdra (makes her rise from the pile).

20. With (the verse), ‘Taking the bow out of the hand of the deceased’ (Rig-veda X, 18, 9), (he takes away) the bow.

21. It has been stated (what is to be done) in case a Sūdra (should perform this act).

construction, to the dead person, comp. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XII, ~ 5, 2, 7.

16. The wife is made to lie down on the pile.

18 Possibly the words devaraḥ and patisthāntyaḥ refer to two different persons, so that we should have to translate, ‘Her brother-in-law, (or some other) representative of her husband, &c.’

19. This refers to the case of the aged servant. The word for which we have put Sūdra here and in Sūtra 21, is vṛṣhala.

22. See Sūtra 19.
KANDIKA 8.

1. He should then put the following (sacrificial) implements (on the dead body).
2. Into the right hand the (spoon called) Guhû.
3. Into the left the (other spoon called) Upabhrit.
4. On his right side the (wooden sacrificial sword called) Sphya, on his left (side) the Agnihotrahavant (i.e. the ladle with which the Agnihotra oblations are sacrificed).
5. On his chest the (big sacrificial ladle called) Dhruvâ. On his head the dishes. On his teeth the pressing-stones.
6. On the two sides of his nose the two (smaller sacrificial ladles called) Sruvas.

10. On his belly the (vessel called) Pâtrî,
11. And the cup into which the cut-off portions (of the sacrificial food) are put.
12. On his secret parts the (staff called) Samyâ.
13. On his thighs the two kindling woods.

19. And the implements made of copper, iron, and earthenware.
20. Taking out the omentum of the she-animal he should cover therewith the head and the mouth (of the dead person) with the verse, 'Put on the armour (which will protect thee) against Agni, by (that which comes from) the cows' (Rig-veda X, 16, 7).
21. Taking out the kidneys (of the animal) he should lay them into the hands (of the dead body) with the verse, 'Escape the two hounds, the sons of Saramā' (Rig-veda X, 14, 10), the right (kidney) into the right (hand), the left into the left.
22. The heart (of the animal he puts) on the heart (of the deceased).

19. The statement in Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XII, 5, 2, 14 is somewhat different.
23. Nārāyana states that these lumps are not put, as one would be inclined to believe, on the heart, but into the hands of the deceased. Sūtra 24 shows that this interpretation is correct.
24. (Only) "if there are no kidneys, according to some (teachers).

25. Having distributed the whole (animal), limb by limb (placing its different limbs on the corresponding limbs of the deceased), and having covered it with its hide, he recites, when the Praśita water is carried forward, (the verse), 'Agni, do not overturn this cup' (Rig-veda X, 16, 8).

26. Bending his left knee he should sacrifice Āgya oblations into the Dakśina fire with (the formulas), 'To Agni svāhā! To Kāma svāhā! To the world svāhā! To Anumati svāhā!'

27. A fifth (oblation) on the chest of the deceased with (the formula), 'From this one verily thou hast been born. May he now be born out of thee, N. N. ! To the heaven-world svāhā!'

3. If the Gārhapatya fire reaches (the body) first, he should know, 'It has reached him in the air-world. He will live there in prosperity, and so will this one, i.e. his son, in this world.'

24. I. e. if there is no Anustānī animal, which is considered as optional (see chap. 2, 4).

27. He who is born out of the deceased, is Agni. See Satapatha Brāhmaṇa II, 3, 3, 5; and also XII, 5, 2, 15.

4, 2. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XII, 5, 2, 10.

4. If the Dakshina fire reaches (the body) first, he should know, 'It has reached him in the world of men. He will live there in prosperity, and so will this one, i.e. his son, in this world.'

5. If (the three fires) reach (the body) in the same moment, they say that this signifies the highest luck.

6. While (the body) is burning, he recites over it the same texts, 'Go on, go on, on the ancient paths' (Rig-veda X, 14, 7).

7. Being burnt by a person who knows this, he goes to the heaven-world together with the smoke (of the funeral pile)—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

8. To the north-east of the Āhavanīya fire he should have a knee-deep pit dug and should have an Avakā, i.e. (the water-plant called) Śīpāla put down into it. From that (pit) he (i.e. the deceased) goes out and together with the smoke he goes up to the heaven-world—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

KANDIKÂ 6.

1. They who have lost a Guru by death, or are afflicted by other misfortune, should perform on the new-moon day an expiatory ceremony.

2. Before sunrise they should carry their fire

7. Nârâyana explains pavâna by sûrpa. He says that the 'performer' (karte) repeats this and the following texts.

10. 'They should give a Srâddha to the deceased exclusively, according to the Ekoddhâ rite.' Nârâyana.

6, 2. According to Nârâyana the fire means here not the sacred domestic fire, but a common kitchen fire. I doubt whether the

3. Having thrown that (fire) down at a place where four roads meet or somewhere else, they walk round it three times, turning their left sides towards it, beating their left thighs with their left hands.

4. They then should return home without looking back, bathe in water, have their hair, their beards the hair of their bodies, and their nails cut, and furnish themselves with new jars, pots, vessels for rinsing the mouth, wreathed with garlands of Sāmī flowers, with fuel of Sāmī wood, with two pieces of Sāmī wood for kindling fire, and with branches to be laid round the fire, with bull's dung and a bull's hide, fresh butter, a stone, and as many bunches of Kusa grass as there are young women (in the house).

5. At the time of the Agni(-hotra) he should kindle fire with the hemistich, 'Here may this other Gātavedas' (Rig-veda X, 16, 9).

commentator is right. The ceremonies described in the following Sūtras seem to point rather to a renewal of the sacred Grhyā fire, the old one having proved unlucky to the sacrificer. In the same way, in the Srauta ritual, a sacrificer who, after having performed the Adhāna, has bad luck, performs the Punarādheya.

3. Comp. Kātyāyana-Srauta-sūtra V, 10, 15

5 The text has agraivelāyām, which Nārāyana explains by agrihotraviharaṇakāle aparāhne. He states that the fire should be produced by attention of two new kindling woods (arasi), mentioned in Sūtra 4. The fire thus kindled is to be used he says, as a kitchen-fire. Herein he seems to me to have misunderstood the meaning of the ceremony, see the note on Sūtra 2. The hemistich quoted in this Sūtra (which is the second half of the same verse of which the first half is prescribed in Sūtra 2) clearly points to the sacred quality of the fire in question; it runs thus, 'Here may this other Gātavedas carry the offerings to the gods, the knowing one.'
6. Keeping that (fire) burning, they sit till the silence of the night, repeating the tales of the aged, and getting stories of auspicious contents, Itihásas and Purânas, told to them.

7. When all sounds have ceased, or when (the others) have gone to the house or the resting-place, (the performer of the ceremony) should pour out an uninterrupted stream of water, beginning at the south side of the door, with (the verse), ‘Spinning the thread follow the light of the aerial space’ (Rig-veda X, 53, 6), (going round the house), ending at the north side of the door.

8. Having then given its place to the fire, and having spread to the west of it a bull’s hide with the neck to the east, with the hair outside, he should cause the people belonging to the house to step on that (hide) with (the verse), ‘Arise to long life, choosing old age’ (Rig-veda X, 18, 6).

9. With (the verse), ‘This I lay round the living’ (Rig-veda X, 18, 4), he should lay branches round (the fire).

10. After having with (the words), ‘A mountain (i.e. a stone) they shall place between themselves and death,’ placed a stone to the north of the fire, and having sacrificed with the four (verses), ‘Go hence, O death, on another way’ (Rig-veda X, 18,

7. The person who pours out the water is, as Nárāyana says, the kartri, i.e. the performer of the whole ceremony. The word cannot be translated, as Prof. Stenzler does, der Bestatter, no funeral ceremonies being here treated of.

8. See above, I, 8, 9. Here Nárāyana sees that the fire is the sacred one. He says, atharabdo-śmin kále-gnyantaram aupa-sanam upasamādadhya dé iṣṭāpanārtham.

1–4), verse by verse, he should look at his people with (the verse), 'As the days follow each other' (ibid. 5).

11. The young women (belonging to the house) should, with each hand separately, with their thumbs and fourth fingers, with young Darbha blades, salve their eyes with fresh butter, and throw (the Darbha blades) away, turning their faces away.

12. (The performer of the ceremony) should look at them, while they are salving themselves, with (the verse), 'These women, being no widows, having noble husbands' (Rig-veda X, 18, 7).

13. With (the verse), 'Carrying stones, (the river) streams forward; take hold of each other' (Rig-veda X, 53, 8)—the performer (of the ceremony) first should touch the stone.

14. After that, stationing himself to the north-east, while (the others) go round with the fire, with bull's dung, and with an uninterrupted stream of water, repeating the three verses, 'O waters, ye are wholesome' (Rig-veda X, 9, 1 seqq.), he should murmur the verse, 'These have led round the cow' (Rig-veda X, 155, 5).

15. A tawny-coloured bull should he lead round—thus they say.

16. They then sit down at a place where they intend to tarry, having put on garments that have not yet been washed.

17. (There) they sit, avoiding to sleep, till sunrise.

18. After sunrise, having murmured the hymns sacred to the sun and the auspicious hymns, having prepared food, having made oblations with (the hymn), 'May he drive evil away from us with his shine' (Rig-veda I, 97), verse by verse, having given to the Brāhmaṇas to eat, he should cause (them) to pronounce auspicious words.

19. A cow, a cup of metal, and a garment that has not yet been washed, constitute the sacrificial fee

KANDIKA 7.

1. Now at a Srāddha ceremony, at that which is celebrated on the Parvan day, or for the attainment of special wishes, or at the Ābhyudayika Srāddha (i.e. the Srāddha celebrated when some good luck has happened), or at the Ekoddhāra Srāddha (the Srāddha directed to a single dead person)—

2. He causes Brāhmaṇas who are endowed with learning, moral character, and correct conduct, or with one of these (characteristics), who have been invited in time, who have taken a bath, washed their feet, and sipped water, to sit down, as representatives of the Fathers, with their faces turned to the north, one for each one of the Fathers, or two for each, or three for each.

3. The larger their number is, the greater is the reward (which the sacrificer is entitled to expect).

4. But in no case one (Brāhmaṇa) for all (the fathers).

7, 1. Comp. on the Srāddha ceremonies in general the note on Sānkhyāya-Grhya IV, 1, 1, and the quotations given there. The Pārvava Srāddha, which is celebrated on the new-moon day, is treated of by Sānkhyāya IV, 1, the Ābhyudayika Srāddha, IV, 4, the Ekoddhāra Srāddha, IV, 2.
5. Optionally (he may invite only one Brâhmaṇa) except at the first (Srâddha).
6. By (the exposition of) the Pinda sacrifice (the corresponding rules) have been declared (for the Srâddha ceremonies also).
7. Having given water (to the Brâhmaṇas),
8. Having given to them double-folded Darbha blades, and a seat,
9. Having (again) given water (to them),
10. Having poured water into three vessels of metal, of stone, and of earthen-ware, or (into three vessels) made of the same substance, over which he has put Darbha grass,
11. And having recited over (that water the verse), 'For luck and help the divine waters' (Rig-veda X, 9, 4), he pours sesamum seeds into it with (the formula), 'Sesamum art thou; Soma is thy deity; at the Gosava sacrifice thou hast been created by 5 Anâdye. Of the different interpretations of this word which Nârâyaṇa gives, it may suffice here to quote two. The first Srâddha may either mean the Pârvâna Srâddha, because this stands first among the different kinds of Srâddha ceremonies enumerated in Sûtra 1; or it may mean the Sapindaṃkârama (see Śâṅkhâyana IV, 3), for this is the first occasion on which a dead person receives Srâddha oblations together with two others of the Family.

6. The sacrifice to the Manes, as forming part of the Srauta ritual, is explained in the Srauta-sûtra II, 6 seq.
8. Yâgñavalkya I, 229.
9 Yâgñavalkya I, 230. The reading of several words of the Mantua is doubtful, and the parallel texts, as Prof. Stenzler has not failed to observe, differ; especially the words pratnavadvibhâ prattabā seem to me to be corrupt. The word pratnavat is only known to the Petersburg Dictionary as having the meaning, 'containing the word pratna,' which will not do here. Thus, I think that the reading pratnam adbhâ prâktaḥ should be adopted; the translation would be, 'Anciently thou hast been mixed with water.'
the gods. By the ancients thou hast been offered. Through the funeral oblation render the Fathers and these worlds propitious to us. Svadhå! Adoration!

12. (The different rites are performed) from the right to the left.

13. With (the part) of the other (i.e. left) hand between the thumb (and the fore-finger), because he wears the sacrificial cord over his left shoulder, or with the right hand which he seizes with the left (he offers the Arghya water to the Fathers with the words), ‘Father, this is thy Arghya. Grandfather, this is thy Arghya. Great-grandfather, this is thy Arghya’—having first offered (ordinary) water (to the Fathers).

14. When he is going to hand over that (Arghya water to the Brähmanas who represent the Fathers, he says once each time), ‘Svadhå! The Arghya water’!

15. Over (the Arghya water) which has been

13. The part of the hand above the thumb is called the ‘Tîrtha belonging to the Manes;’ see, for instance, Baudhāyana’s Dhaima-sūtra I, 8, 16. The sacrificer is here understood to wear his sacrificial cord suspended over the left shoulder (he is ‘yâghopavîtin’). But as the oblation here treated of is directed to the Manes, it is required that he should be prâśînâvîtin. Now he is considered as prâśînâvîtin, according to Nārāyana, not only if the cord is suspended over his right shoulder (which is the ordinary meaning of prâśînâvîtin), but also if the hand with which he performs the rites, and the shoulder over which he wears the sacred cord, are either both right or both left. Thus here, acting with the left-hand and wearing the cord over the left shoulder, he becomes prâśînâvîtin.

The last word (appārvam) is separated by Nārāyana from the rest, so that it forms a separate Sūtra.

15. The sacrificer gives the water to the Brähmanas, and these poured out, he should recite the verse, 'The celestial waters which have been produced on the earth, the aerial waters and the waters which are terrestrial, the gold-coloured ones, apt for sacrifice, may these waters bring us luck and be kind to us.' Pouring together what has been left (in the three Arghya vessels) he moistens his face with that water, if he desires that a son should be born to him.

16. 'He should not take up the first vessel, into which the Arghya water for the Fathers has been poured. Hidden the Fathers dwell therein: thus Saunaka has said.'

17. In that moment the gifts of perfumes, garlands, incense, lights, and clothes are offered (to the Brāhmaṇas).

18. Having taken some food (of the Sthālpāka prepared for the Pindapitriyaagña), and having be-smeared it with ghee, he asks (the Brāhmaṇas) for their permission by saying, 'I shall offer it in the fire,' or, 'I will sacrifice my offering in the fire,' or, 'I will offer it in the fire.'

19. The permission (is given in the words), 'It may be offered,' or, 'Sacrifice thy offering,' or, 'Offer it.'

20. He then sacrifices in the fire as stated above,

=pour it out. Instead of prīthivī sambabhūvaḥ (prīthivī being intended as a locative; see Lanman, Noun-inflection in the Veda, p. 389) we should read, no doubt, as the parallel texts have, pāyasā sambabhūvaḥ: 'The celestial waters which have united themselves with milk.'

16. This is a Sloka.
17. Manu III, 209; Yāgñavalkya I, 231.
20. The oblations alluded to in this Sūtra are prescribed in the Srauta-sūtra, II, 6, 12. They are directed to Soma pitṛ-mat and to Agni kavyavāhana.
21. Or, if they give their permission, in the hands (of the Brāhmaṇas)

22. 'The mouth of the gods verily is the fire, the mouth of the Fathers is the hand'—thus says the Brāhmaṇa.

23. If in the hands, he assigns to them other food, after they have sipped water.

24. The food (is put together) with the food.

25. It is said, 'What is given away and offered, that brings prosperity.'

26. When he sees that they are satiated, he should recite (the verses) containing the word mādhū, and (the verse), 'They have eaten, they have enjoyed themselves' (Rig-veda I, 82, 2).

27. Having asked them, 'Relished?' and having taken the food, whatever food he has used, together with the Sthālīpāka, in order to make lumps thereof, he should offer the rest (to the Brāhmaṇas).

28. After they have either accepted (that rest of food), or left it (to him), and have finished eating, he should, before they have sipped water, put down the lumps for the Fathers.

21. According to Manu (III, 212) this is done only in case there is no fire. Possibly abhyanugāyām belongs to Sūtra 20, so that we should have to translate, 'He then sacrifices... if they give their permission... Or in the hands.'

24. 'The food which is left from the oblations he puts with the food (Sūtra 23) which is to be eaten by the Brāhmaṇas, and has been put into the vessels.' Nārāyana.

25. Is śrīshṭam to be understood in the sense of visrīshṭam? Nārāyana explains it by prabhūtām.

26. The verses containing the word mādhū are Rig-veda I, 90, 6–8.

27. On the question, 'Relished?' compare Stākhāyana-Gṛhya IV, 2, 5. For several kinds of Stāḍḍha ceremonies a Sthālīpāka is prescribed, for others it is not; for the Stāḍḍhas of the last kind the words 'Together with the Sthālīpāka' are not valid.
29. After they have sipped water, according to some (teachers).

30. Having strewn the food on the ground and suspended the sacrificial cord over his left shoulder, he should dismiss the Brāhmaṇas, (saying to them), 'Say Om! Svadhā!'

31. Or, 'So be it! Svadhā!'

KANDIKĀ 8.

1. Now the spit-ox (sacrificed to Rudra).
2. In autumn or in spring, under the (Nakshatra) Ārdrā.
3. The best of his herd,
4. (An ox) which is neither leprous nor speckled;
5. One with black spots, according to some,
6. If he likes, a black one, if its colour inclines to copper-colour.
7. He sprinkles it with water, into which he has thrown rice and barley,
8. From head to tail,
9. With (the formula), ‘Grow up, agreeable to Rudra the great god.’
10. He should let it grow up. When it has cut its teeth, or when it has become a bull—
11. To a quarter (of the horizon) which is sacrificially pure,
12. At a place which cannot be seen from the village,

30. They reply, 'Om! Svadhā!'
8, 1. According to Nārāyana, the 'spit-ox' sacrifice is so called because it is offered to Rudra the spit-wearer.
10. This Sūtra should rather be divided into two.
11. I.e. to the east or the north.
13. After midnight,
15. Having caused a Brahman who is versed in learning and knows the practice (of this sacrifice), to sit down, having driven a fresh branch with leaves into the ground as a sacrificial post, (having taken) two creeping plants or two Kusa ropes as two girdles, and having wound the one round the sacrificial post, and tied the other round the middle of the animal’s head, he binds it to the sacrificial post or to the girdle (which he had tied to that post) with (the formula), ‘Agreeable to him to whom adoration (is brought), I bind thee.’

16. The sprinkling with water and what follows is the same as at the animal sacrifice.

17. We shall state what is different.

18. Let him sacrifice the omentum with the Pātrī or with a leaf—thus it is understood (in the Śruti)—

19. With (the formulas), ‘To Hara, Mrīḍa, Sarva, Śiva, Bhava, Mahādeva, Ugra, Bhima, Paśupati, Rudra, Saṅkara, Īṣāna svāhā!’

20. Or with the last six (parts of that formula),

21. Or with (the formula), ‘To Rudra svāhā!’

22. Let him make Bali offerings towards the four quarters (of the horizon), to each on four rings of Kusa net-work, with (the formulas), ‘The hosts, Rudra, which thou hast towards the eastern direction,

Round the middle of the head means, between the two hoins. Nārāyana.

16. See above, I, 11.

22. This Bali offering is performed, according to Nārāyana, before the Svishākṛt oblation of the chief sacrifice. On kuraśūna the commentator has the note, ‘Darbhastambais trnasāk kālapavad (or rather, as Prof. Stenzler writes, katakavad) grahitvā sarvesham agram grahitvā, cikrtya grahitām kurasūnā uñyante.’
to them this (offering is brought). Adoration to thee! Do no harm to me!' In this way the assigning (of the offerings is performed) according to the different quarters (of the horizon).

23. With the following four hymns he should worship the four quarters, viz. 'What shall we to Rudra,' 'These prayers to Rudra,' 'To thee, O father,' 'These songs to Rudra with the strong bow' (Rig-veda I, 43, 114; II, 33; VII, 46).

24. (This) worship to the quarters (of the horizon) (is performed) at all sacrifices to Rudra.

25. The husks and chaff (of the rice), the tail, the skin, the head, the feet (of the sacrificial animal) he should throw into the fire.

26. He should turn the skin to some use, according to Sâmwatya.

27. To the north of the fire, on rows of Darbha grass, or on rings of Kusa net-work, he should pour out the blood (of the sacrificial animal) with (the formula), 'Hissing ones! Noisy ones! Searching ones! Seizing ones! Serpents! What here belongs to you, take that.'

28. Then, turning to the north, (he assigns it) to the serpents (in the words), 'Hissing ones! Noisy ones! Searching ones! Seizing ones! Serpents! What here belongs to you, take that.'

Then the serpents take whatever has flowed down there of blood or of the contents of stomach and entrails.

29. All names, all hosts, all exaltations belong

26. Perhaps Sâmwatya is a mis-spelling of the name of the well-known Grîhya teacher Sâmbavya.

27. Darbhavîtâ is explained in the commentary by darbhărâgi.
to him,—to a sacrificer who knows that, he gives joy.

30. Even to a man who only with words sets forth (some part) of that (ceremony), he will do no harm; thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

31. He should not partake of that (sacrifice).

32. They should not take anything belonging to it into the village. For this god will do harm to (human) creatures.

33. He should keep away his people from the vicinity (of the place where he has sacrificed).

34. On an express injunction, however, he should partake (of that sacrificial food), for it will bring luck.

35. This spit-ox sacrifice procures wealth, (open) space, purity, sons, cattle, long life, splendour.

36. After he has sacrificed, he should let loose another (animal).

37. He should not be without such an animal.

38. Then he will not be without cattle—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

39. Muttering the Santâtiya hymn, he should go to his house.

40. If disease befalls his cattle, he should sacrifice to that same god in the midst of his cow-stable—

41. A mess of cooked food, which he sacrifices in its entirety.

32. Instead of abhimârukâ we ought to read abhimânuka. See Aitareya Brâhmaṇa III, 34, and the Petersburg Dictionary s. v. abhimânuka.

36. He should dêstine another young animal in the way stated above (Sâstras 7 seqq.) to a new Stilagava sacrifice.

42. Having thrown the sacrificial grass and the Âgya into the fire, he should lead his cows through the smoke.

43. Murmuring the Santâttya hymn, he should go in the midst of his cattle.

44. Adoration to Saunaka! Adoration to Saunaka!

End of the Fourth Adhyâya.

PÂRASKARA-GRHYA-SÛTRA.
INTRODUCTION

TO THE

PÂRASKARA-GRîHYA-SÛTRA

The Grîhya-sûtra of Pâraskara, which belongs to the White Yagur-veda and forms an appendix to Kâtyâyana's Srauta-sûtra, has been edited, with a German translation, by the scholar who was the first to make a Grîhya text accessible to Orientalists and to begin to grapple with the first and most serious difficulties that beset its interpretation, and who has continued since to do more than anyone else towards elucidating that important branch of Vedic literature. It would be very unbecoming in any one engaged in the study of Grîhya texts, not to acknowledge most warmly the debt of gratitude which he owes to Professor Stenzler. At the same time the respect due to the veteran editor and interpreter of Åśvalâyana and Pâraskara not only allows, but requires that one who proposes to himself the same task at which Prof. Stenzler has worked with so much learning, should state as clearly as possible what that distinguished scholar has left for others to do, and why one who prepares an English translation of Pâraskara has a very different task from merely translating into English the German translation of Prof. Stenzler.

If I may venture to express in one word the difference between Prof. Stenzler's method, as I understand it, for getting at the meaning of a doubtful or obscure passage, and the method which I have endeavoured to follow, I should say that with Prof. Stenzler the first step and,
I believe, in many cases also the last step is to ask how Gayarâma and Râmakrishna understand the passage in question, while I hold that we ought rather to make ourselves independent from those commentators in the sense in which Prof Max Muller once expressed himself, 'not that I ever despise the traditional interpretation which the commentators have preserved to us, but because I think that, after having examined it, we have a right to judge for ourselves.' There exists a commentary on the Pâraskara-Grihya which far surpasses in trustworthiness Gayarâma's Saggaravallabha and Râmakrishna's Samskâra-ghanapati, and which is not composed by an author who, as says Goethe,

— im Auslegen ist munter;
Legt er nicht aus, so legt er unter.

But the leaves of that commentary are scattered through a good many volumes. Here we find a few lines of it in the Satapatha Brâhmaṇa or in Kâtyâyana's Sûtra-sûtra; there Sânkhyâyana or Âsvalâyana has preserved a word or a sentence that belongs to it, or the law-books of Manu or Yâgñavalkya help us to understand a difficult or doubtful aphorism of our text. In one word: the only true commentary on a work like Pâraskara's Grihya is that which the ancient literature itself furnishes. No one will say that in Prof Stenzler's translation and notes this commentary has not been consulted. But it has been consulted perhaps not quite as much as it ought to have been, and Râmakrishna and Gayarâma have been consulted too much. They have been consulted and followed in many instances, where a continued consideration of what can be the meaning of a word and what can not, and of what the parallel texts say with regard to the subject in question, would have shown that those commentators, instead of interpreting Pâraskara's meaning, rather on him vague opinions of their own.

Perhaps it will not be out of place here to point our criticism, lest it should be deemed unjust, by a few remarks on a single passage of Pāraskara in which the difference of Prof. Stenzler's way of translating and of our own becomes manifest. Of the numerous passages which could be selected for this purpose, I choose Sūtra I, 2, 5, belonging to the description of the setting up of the sacred domestic fire. The text of that Sūtra runs thus:

5. aranipradānam eke.

Prof. Stenzler translates as follows:

'Einige sagen, es musste durch Reibholzer erzeugtes Feuer sein.'

The two Sūtras which precede give a description of that ceremony from which evidently the opinion of the 'eke' mentioned in this Sūtra differs, or to which they find it necessary to add something. Those Sūtras run thus:

3. After he has fetched fire from the house of a Vaisya who is rich in cattle—

4. All ceremonies are performed as at the cooking of the kātushprāṣya food.

It seems evident that the Ākāryas to whom the opinion spoken of in Sūtra 5 belongs, add, or perhaps substitute, to the fetching of the fire which is to be worshipped as the sacrificer's domestic fire, from a rich Vaisya's house, another rite in which an arāṣṭi, i.e. a stick for kindling the fire by attrition, is made use of in some way or other.

Now if this may be accepted as a vague expression of the general purport of the Sūtra, what is the literal meaning of the words? 'Some (teachers),' it says, '(prescribe) the pradāna of the kindling stick (or, of the kindling sticks).'

What does pradāna mean? Gayārāma says,

'prasābdha upasabdārthe. arāṣṭupādānanakam eka ākāryā ikāhanti.'

1 The food which is eaten by the four chief officiating priests of the Srauta ritual. For these priests a mess of food is prepared at the ceremony of the ṣākhāna of the Srauta fires.
That is: 'The word pra stands in the sense of the word upa. Some teachers desire that it (i.e. the fire) should have the kindling sticks as its physical basis.'

Thus, if Gaya-râma is right, Prof. Stenzler's translation would be justified. But can we acquiesce indeed in simply accepting the commentator's opinion? Pradâna is pradâna and not upadâna, as praddâti is not upadatte. Praddâti means 'he hands over;' and pradâna 'the handing over.' This is an established fact, and an interpreter of a Vedic text should not allow himself to be induced by a statement like that of Gaya-râma about the preposition pra standing in the sense of upa, to abate one iota of it. Thus we are obliged, until passages have been discovered which modify our knowledge of what pradâna means—but such passages most certainly will never be discovered—to translate:

5. Some (teachers say that) the handing over of the kindling sticks (takes place).

We should give that translation even if we were not able to find an explanation for it. It appears that Prof. Stenzler, as far as we can judge from his note, has not even thought of the possibility of disregarding the authority of Gaya-râma and Râmâkrisna, or of looking through the parallel texts to see whether they do not throw light on what that 'handing over of the kindling sticks' signifies. The text to be consulted first is of course Kâtyâyana's Srauta-sûtra. As the Srauta ritual contains a description of an âchâna which is in some way the prototype of the corresponding Grihya ceremony, we may possibly expect to discover, in the course of that description, the statements regarding the arani-pradâna for which we are searching. Now Kâtyâyana, having described the setting up of the fire in the gârhapatyâgâra, states that at sunset the sacrificer and his wife sit down to the west of the fire which has just been established, and then the Adhvaryu hands over to them the two kindling sticks\(^1\). The Paddhati, in describing that act, goes into further details. The Adhvaryu hands over to the sacrificer the two Arāzis, which, as required by custom, are wrapped up in new clothes. The wife takes the adhārāraṇī from his hand and puts it on her lap; the sacrificer puts the uttarāraṇī on his lap, and they do homage to them with flowers, saffron, sandal wood, &c.; then, after the performance of some other ceremonies, they put the two Arāzis away on a chair or bench. The two Arāzis have to be kept by the sacrificer; if they are lost or burnt or destroyed in any other way, other Arāzis must be procured, and by their attrition a new fire must be kindled\(^2\).

Āpastamba likewise mentions, in his description of the Agnyādhāna\(^3\), the handing over of the two Arāzis, and indicates a Mantra which the Adhvaryu recites in giving them to the sacrificer, and two other Mantras with the one of which the sacrificer receives them, while he recites the other over the Arāzis, after having taken them into his hands.

Finally we may quote here, as bearing witness to the custom of the Arāzipradāna, a passage taken from Nārāyana’s commentary on the Sāṅkhāyana-grīhya. Though the decisive words in that passage rest only on the authority of the commentator and not of the Sūtrakāra himself, they deserve to be taken notice of, as they are not subject to the suspicion that they could be influenced by a misunderstanding of that very Sūtra of Pāraskara of which we are treating. Nārāyana says, in his explanation of Sāṅkhāyana I, 1, 10\(^4\): ‘To the west of the fire the sacrificer, and southwards (of him) the wife sits down. The handing over of the kindling sticks does not take place. For it is a fire fetched (from a Vaisya’s house, &c.) which is inaugurated here. Then the commentator goes on to quote a Sloka:

‘The handing over of the Arajus which the Adhvaryu sometimes performs,
‘Is not in accordance with the opinion of Suyagña; he does not approve of kindling the fire by attrition.’

Thus, I think, no doubt can remain as to the real meaning of Pāraskara’s Sūtra. It means what its words signify and what is in accordance with Kātyāyana and Āpastamba, and it does not mean what the commentators most gratuitously would make it mean.

Perhaps I have dwelt here too long on the interpretation of a few words which are of no peculiar interest in themselves. But I venture to hope that the discussion on these words will serve as a specimen, by which the fundamental difference of two methods of handling our texts may be discerned. Let us never forget how much we owe to the scholars who have followed the first of these methods, but for ourselves let us choose the second.

It seems to me that Professor Stenzler is not quite right in giving to the opening words of the text athâta k, which he translates 'nun also,' the explanation: 'das heisst, nach Beendigung des Srauta-sūtra von Kâtyâyana.' I think rather it can be shown that atâ k does not contain a reference to something preceding; thus the Srauta-sūtra, which forms the first part of the whole Sūtra collection, is opened in the same way by the words athâto-dhikârā k.

2. The description of the standard form of domestic sacrifice opens with an enumeration of the five so-called bhūsamaskāra (parisamuhya, &c.). On the samûhâna (for parisamuhya is derived water, having sprinkled (with that water the sacrificial implements) according to what is needed, having poured out (the Ågya or sacrificial butter into the pot), and having put the sacrificial butter on the fire, he should (lustrate the butter by) moving a fire-brand round it.

3. Having warmed the (sacrificial spoon called) Sruva, having wiped it, having besprinkled it (with water), and warmed it again, he should put it down.

4. Having taken the Ågya from the fire, having purified it, having looked at it, and (having purified) the Prokshant water as above, having taken up the Kusa blades with which he is to take hold (of the Ågya pot) by its under surface, having put pieces of wood on (the fire), and having sprinkled (water round it), he should sacrifice.

5. This is the rite wherever a sacrifice is performed.

Satapatha Brahmana XI, 5, 6, 1: 'There are five great sacrifices which are great Sattras, viz. the sacrifice to living beings, the sacrifice to men, the sacrifice to the Manes, the sacrifice to the gods, the Brahmayagna.' As the Grīhya ceremonies are included here under the category of mahāyagñas or great sacrifices, they require, according to the teachers whose opinion is stated in Sūtra 5, a form of the Agnyādhanā (setting up of the sacred fire) analogous to the Agnyādhanā of the Srauta ritual, and containing, like that Ādhanā, the act of the Aranyapradāna or handing over of the kindling woods (Sūtra 5).
7. The deities of the Agnyādheya, or of the Srauta ceremony corresponding to the Grīhya rite here treated of, are Agni pava-māna, Agni pāvaka, Agni suki, Aditi. On the Āgyabhāgas, see Sānkhyayana I, 9, 7, &c.

Samh. XII, 12); 'Be both to us' (ibid. V, 3)—with (these verses he sacrifices) eight (oblations) before (the oblations of cooked food).

9. Thus he sacrifices also afterwards, after he has made oblations of the mess of cooked food to the deities of the Agnyādheya.

It was a real anointing of the bridegroom and of the bride, that took place, and we cannot accept Professor Stenzler's translation (based on Gayārāma's note: samaśgāyatī pasasparə saṃmukhīkarotī), by which the proper signification of samaśgāyatī is effaced: Dann heisst (der Vater der Baut) sie beide zusammentreten. 9, 1. The expression which I have translated 'beginning from the wedding' is upayamanaprabhriti. The Indian commentators and Professor Stenzler explain the term upayamana as implying a reference to the Sutra I, 1, 4, upayamanan kusan adaya ('having taken up the Kusa blades with which he is to take hold of the lower surface of the Agya pot'). 'The worshipping of the domestic fire,' says Stenzler, following the native authorities, 'consists in the rites which have been prescribed above (I, 1, 4), beginning from the word upayamana, i.e. in the taking up of the Kusa blades, the putting of wood on the fire, the sprinkling and sacrificing. As the rites preceding that word, such as the preparation of the sacrificial spoon (I, 1, 3), are hereby excluded, the oblations are offered with the hand.' It would be easy to show that the upayamanakh kusakh have nothing at all to do with the regular morning and evening oblations of which these Sutras treat. The comparison of Arvalayana-Gryhya I, 9, 1 (see also Manu III, 67, &c.) leaves no doubt that upayamana is to be understood here as derived from upayakshati in its very frequent meaning of marrying. I have translated the Sutra accordingly.

be worshipped) with (oblations of) curds, (rice) grains, or fried grains.

3. (He sacrifices) in the evening with (the formulas), 'To Agni svāhā! To Pragâpati svāhā!'

4. In the morning with (the formulas), 'To Sûrya svāhā! To Pragâpati svāhā!'

5. 'Men are both Mitra and Varuna; men are both the Aśvins; men are Indra and Sûrya. May a man be born in me! Again svāhā!'—with (this verse) a wife who desires to conceive, (should offer) the first (oblation).

KANDIKĀ 10.

1. If (in the chariot) of a king the axle breaks, or something that is bound loosens itself, or the chariot is overturned, or if another accident happens, or (if one of these same things occurs) when a bride is carried home, he establishes the same fire, prepares Āgya, and sacrifices (two Āgya oblations) separately with the two Mantras, 'Here is joy' (Vāg. Samh. VIII, 51 a).

2. Having got ready another chariot, he (i.e. the Purohitā or the bridegroom) should make the king or the woman sit down thereon with (the formula), 'In royal power' down to the word, 'in sacrifice'

5. Comp. Sānkhyāyana-Grhīya I, 17, 9, where the reading and the construction slightly differ. The words punaḥ svāhā at the end of the Mantra seem to be corrupt; the frequent repetition of pumāṁsam and pumāṇ through the whole verse suggests the correction pumāṁsa svāhā, or pumbhyāḥ svāhā, 'to the man svāhā!' or 'to the men svāhā!'

10, 1. 'The same fire' is the senāgni (the fire belonging to the army) in the case of the king, the nuptial fire in the second case. The two Mantras are the two parts of Vāg. Samh. VIII, 51 a.
(Vâg. Samh. XX, 10), and with the (verse), 'I have seized thee' (ibid. XII, 11).

3. The two beasts that draw the chariot, constitute the sacrificial fee.
4. (This is) the penance.
5. Then (follows) feeding of the Brâhmaṇas.

KANDIKÂ 11.

1. In the fourth night (after the wedding), towards morning, (the husband) establishes the fire within (the house), assigns his seat, to the south (of it), to the Brahman, places a pot of water to the north, cooks a mess of sacrificial food, sacrifices the two Āgya portions, and makes (other) Āgya oblations with (the following Mantras):

2. 'Agni! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brâhmaṇa, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings death to her husband, that extirpate in her. Svâhâ!

'Vâyu! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brâhmaṇa, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings death to her children, that extirpate in her. Svâhâ!

'Sûrya! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brâhmaṇa, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings death to cattle, that extirpate in her. Svâhâ!

'Kânda! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brâhmaṇa, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings death to horses, that extirpate in her. Svâhâ!'
of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings destruction to the house, that extirpate in her. Svāhā!

'Gandharva! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brāhmaṇa, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings destruction to fame, that extirpate in her. Svāhā!'

3. He sacrifices of the mess of cooked food with (the words), 'To Pragāpati svāhā!'

4. Each time after he has sacrificed, he pours the remainder of the oblations into the water-pot, and out of that (pot) he besprinkles her on her head with (the words), 'The evil substance which dwells in thee that brings death to thy husband, death to thy children, death to cattle, destruction to the house, destruction to fame, that I change into one that brings death to thy paramour. Thus live with me to old age, N.N. I'

5. He then makes her eat the mess of cooked food with (the words), 'I add breath to thy breath, bones to thy bones, flesh to thy flesh, skin to thy skin.'

6. Therefore one should not wish for sport with the wife of a Srotriya who knows this; for the other one is a person who knows this (and is thereby enabled to destroy a lover of his wife).

7. After he has led her to his house, he should cohabit with her after each of her monthly periods,

8. Or as he likes, because it has been said, 'May we have intercourse as we like, until a child is born.'

4. The water-pot is that mentioned in Śūtra 1.

8. Tātritṛya Samhitā II, 6, 1, 5.
9. He then touches her heart, (reaching) over her right shoulder, with (the verse), 'O thou whose hair is well parted! Thy heart that dwells in heaven, in the moon, that I know; may it know me. May we see a hundred autumns; may we live a hundred autumns; may we hear a hundred autumns.'

10. In the same way afterwards.

KÁNDIKÁ 12.

1. At the beginning of each half-month he cooks a mess of sacrificial food, sacrifices to the deities of the festivals of the new and full moon (as stated in the Srauta ritual), and then sacrifices to the following deities: to Brahma, to Pragápati, to the Visve devás, and to Heaven and Earth.

2. To the Visve devás a Bali is offered, to the domestic deities, and to Âkása (i.e. the Ether).

3. From the Vaisvadeva food he makes oblations in the fire with (the formulas), 'To Agni svâhâ! To Pragápati svâhâ! To the Visve devás svâhâ! To Agni Svishâkṣrit svâhâ!'

4. Outside (the house) the wife offers the Bali with (the formulas), 'Adoration to the wife! Adoration to the man! To every time of life, adoration! To the white one with the black teeth, the lord of the bad women, adoration!'

'They who allure my offspring, dwelling in the village or in the forest, to them be adoration; I offer a Bali to them. Be welfare to me! May they give me offspring."

5. The remainder he washes out with water. Then (follows) feeding of the Brāhmaṇas.

KANDIKĀ 13

1. If she does not conceive, he should, after having fasted, under (the Nakshatra) Pushya, lay down (in his house) the root of a white-blooming Simhī plant, and on the fourth day, after (his wife) has bathed, he should in the night-time crush it in water and insert it into her right nostril with (the verse), 'This herb is protecting, overcoming, and powerful. May I, the son of this great (mother), obtain the name of a father!'

KANDIKĀ 14.

1. Now the Pumsavana (i.e. the ceremony to secure the birth of a male child),

2. Before (the child in his mother's womb) moves, in the second or third month (of pregnancy).

3. On a day on which the moon stands in conjunction with a Nakshatra (that has a name) of masculine gender, on that day, after having caused (his wife) to fast, to bathe, and to put on two garments which have not yet been washed, and after having in the night-time crushed in water descending roots and shoots of a Nyagrodha tree, he inserts (that into her right nostril) as above, with the two (verses), 13, 1. I have translated according to the reading of a similar Mantra found in the Atharva-veda (VII, 2, 6), which no doubt is correct, sahasvatī instead of sarasvatī.

14, 3. The words 'as above' refer to chap. 13, 1.
'The gold-child' (Vāg. Samh. XIII, 4) and 'Formed of water' (ibid. XXXI, 17);
4. A Kusa needle and a Soma stalk, according to some (teachers).
5. And he puts gall of a tortoise on her lap.
   If he desires, 'May (the son) become valiant,' he recites over him (i.e. over the embryo), modifying the rite (?), 'The Suparna art thou' (Vāg. Samh. XII, 4), (the Yagus) before (the formulas called) 'steps of Vishnu.'

KANDIKÂ 15.

1. Now the Simantonnayana (or parting of the pregnant wife's hair).
2. (It is performed) like the Pumsavana;
3. In her first pregnancy, in the sixth or eighth month.
4. After he has cooked a mess of sacrificial food, containing sesamum and Mudga beans, and has sacrificed to Prāgāpati, he parts for the wife, who is seated to the west of the fire on a soft chair, her hair upwards (i.e. beginning from the front) with a bunch containing an even number of unripe Udumbara

5. The commentators state that kūrmapitta (gall of tortoise) means 'a dish with water.' I place no confidence in this statement, though I cannot show at present what its origin is. I am not sure about the translation of vikṛtya (or vikṛtya?). But it seems impossible to me that it should be the name of the metre Vikṛti.
'Steps of Vishnu' is a name for the Yagus following in the Samhitâ on the one prescribed in this Sūtra. It begins, 'Vishnu's step art thou, &c.' (Vāg. Samh. XII, 5).

15, 2. I.e. the Nakshatra under which the ceremony is performed, should be of male gender; the wife is to fast, &c. (see chap. 14, 3).

fruits, and with three bunches of Darbha grass, with a porcupine's quill that has three white spots, with a stick of Vrataara wood, and with a full spindle, with the words, 'Bhûr bhuvah svabh.'

5. Or (he parts the hair once) with each of the (three) Mahâvyâhâritis.

6. He ties (the Udumbara fruits, &c.) to a string of three twisted threads with (the words), 'Rich in sap is this tree; like the tree, rich in sap, be thou fruitful.'

7. (The husband) then says to two lute-players, 'Sing ye the king, or if anybody else is still more valiant.'

8. Here some also prescribe a certain stanza (to be sung by the lute-players): 'Soma alone is our king. May these human tribes dwell on thy banks, O (river) whose dominion is unbroken, N.N.!'—here he names the name of the river near which they dwell.

9. Then (follows) feeding of the Brâhmanas.

KANDIKÂ 16.

1. Sosheyantim adbhir abhyukshaty egatu dasamâsya iti (Vâg. Samh. VIII, 28) prâg yasyai ta iti (ibid. 29).

4. (The medhāganana is performed in the following way:) With his fourth finger and with (an instrument of) gold he gives (to the child) honey and ghee, or ghee (alone), to eat with (the formulas), 'Bhūḥ I put into thee; bhuvah I put into thee; svah I put into thee. Bhūṛ bhuvah svah everything I put into thee.'

5. He then performs the āyushya.

6. Near his navel or his right ear he murmurs: 'Agni is long-lived; through the trees he is long-lived. By that long life I make thee long-lived.

'Soma is long-lived; through the herbs he is, &c.

'The Brahman is long-lived; through the Brāhmaṇas it is, &c.

'The gods are long-lived; through ambrosia (amṛita) they are, &c.

'The Rishis are long-lived; through their observances they are, &c.

'The Fathers are long-lived; through the Śvadhā obligations (or obligations made to the Manes) they are, &c.

'Sacrifice is long-lived; through sacrificial fee it is, &c.

13. The one to the west, 'Down-breathing!'

14. The one to the north, 'Out-breathing!'

15. The fifth one, looking upwards, should say, 'On-breathing!'

16. Or (the father) may do that himself, going round (his child), if he can find no (Brâhmanas).

17. He recites over the place at which (the child) is born: 'I know, O earth, thy heart that dwells in heaven, in the moon. That I know; may it know me. May we see a hundred autumns; may we live a hundred autumns; may we hear a hundred autumns.'

18. He then touches him with (the verse), 'Be a stone, be an axe, be imperishable gold. Thou indeed art the Self called son; thus live a hundred autumns.'

19. He then recites over his mother (the verse), 'Thou art Ida, the daughter of Mitra and Varuna; thou strong woman hast born a strong son. Be thou blessed with strong children, thou who hast blessed us with a strong son.'

20. He then washes her right breast, and gives it to the child with (the verse), 'This breast' (Vâg. Samh. XVII, 87);

21. The left (breast) with (the verse), 'Thy breast which' (ibid. XXXVIII, 5)—with these two (verses).

22. He puts down a pot of water near her head with (the verse), 'O waters, you watch with the gods. As you watch with the gods, thus watch over this mother who is confined, and her child.'

23. Having established near the door the fire that has been kept from (the wife's) confinement, he throws into that fire at the time of the morning and evening twilight, until (the mother) gets up (from childbirth), mustard seeds mixed with rice chaff (pronouncing the following names of demons and goblins): 'May Sanda and Marka, Upavîra, Saundikeya, Ulûkhalâ, Malimluka, Dronâsa, Kyavana vanish hence. Svâhâ!

'May Âlikhat, Animisha, Kimvadanta, Upasruti, Haryaksha, Kumbhin, Satru, Pâtrapâzi, Nrimarsi, Hantrlmukha, Sarshapårusa, Kyavana vanish hence. Svâhâ!'

24. If (the demon bringing disease) Kumâra attacks the boy, the father covers him with a net

24. Kârâkura seems to me, and this is also Professor Stenzler's or with an upper garment; takes him on his lap, and murmurs: 'Kûrkura, Sukûrkura, Kûrkura, who holds fast children. Ket! ket! doggy! let him loose. Reverence be to thee, the Sîsara, barker, bender.

'That is true that the gods have given a boon to thee. Hast thou then chosen even this boy?

'Ket! ket! doggy! let him loose. Reverence be to thee, the Sîsara, barker, bender.'

'That is true that (the divine she-dog) Saramâ is thy mother, Sîsara thy father, the black and the speckled (two dogs of Yama) thy brothers.

'Ket! ket! doggy! let him loose. Reverence be to thee, the Sîsara, barker, bender.'

KANDIKĀ 18.

1. When he returns from a journey, he approaches his house in the manner stated above.

2. When he sees his son, he murmurs, 'From limb by limb thou art produced; out of the heart thou art born. Thou indeed art the Self called son; so live a hundred autumns!'

3. He then kisses his head with (the words), 'With the himkāra (the mystical syllable hiṁ) of Pragāpati, which gives thousandfold life, I kiss thee, N. N.! Live a hundred autumns!'—

4. And three times with (the words), 'With the himkāra of the cows.'

5. In his right ear he murmurs, 'Bestow on us, O bountiful, onward-pressing Indra, plentiful, rich treasures. Give us a hundred autumns to live; give us many heroës, strong-jawed Indra;'

6. In the left ear, 'Indra, bestow on us the best treasures, insight of mind, happiness, increase of wealth, health of our bodies, sweetness of speech, and that our days may be good days.'

KANDIKĀ 19.

1. In the sixth month the Annaprāsana (or first feeding with solid food).

2. Having cooked a mess of sacrificial food, and sacrificed the two Ṭgyabhāgas, he offers two Ṭgya oblations, (the first with the verse,) 'The gods have generated the goddess Speech; manifold animals speak her forth. May she, the sweet-sounding, the cow that (for milk) gives sap and juice to us, Speech, the highly-praised one, come to us. Svāhā!'

3. And the second (oblation) with (the verse), 'May vigour us to-day' (Vâg. Samhitâ XVIII, 33).

4. He then sacrifices (four oblations) of cooked food with (the formulas), 'Through up-breathing may I enjoy food. Svāhā!
   'Through down-breathing may I enjoy smells. Svāhā!
   'Through my eye may I enjoy visible things. Svāhā!
   'Through my ear may I enjoy renown. Svāhā!'

5. After he has eaten (himself), he should set apart food of all kinds, and of all-different sorts of flavour, and should give it to him (i.e. to his son) to eat,

3. A Vaisya, when he is twelve years old.

4. Or according as it is considered auspicious by all (the different families).

5. He should feed the Brāhmaṇas. And they lead him (i.e. the boy who is to be initiated) on, with his head shaven all round, and decked with ornaments.

6. (The teacher) makes him place himself to the west of the fire and say, 'I have come hither for the sake of studentship (brahmaśārya). And, 'I will be a student (brahmaśārin).

7. He then makes him put on a garment with (the verse), 'In the way in which Br̄haspati put the garment of immortality on Indra, thus I put (this garment) on thee, for the sake of long life, of old age, of strength, of splendour.'

8. He ties round him the girdle with (the verse which the youth recites), 'Here has come to me, keeping away evil words, purifying my kind as a purifier, clothing herself, by (the power of) inhalation and exhalation, with strength, this sisterly goddess, this blessed girdle.'

9. Or, 'A youth, well attired, dressed, came hither. He, being born, becomes glorious. Wise sages extol him, devout ones, turning their minds to the gods.'

10. Or silently.

11. He gives him the staff.

8. The commentators differ as to whether the Āśārya or the youth should recite the verse. The comparison of Sāṅkhâyana II, 2, 1 would rather tend to show that it is the teacher, but Gobhila II, 10 says expressly: athinam triṁ pradakśhinam mūlam gamekhalam pariharān vāṣāyatīyam duruktāt paribādhamānētir rahasya gop-trītī vā.

9. Rig-veda III, 8, 4. The verse is originally addressed to Agni.
12. (The student) accepts it with (the verse), 'My staff which fell down to the ground in the open air, that I take up again for the sake of long life, of holiness, of holy lustre.'

13. According to some (teachers he accepts the staff) in the way prescribed for the inauguration, because it is said, 'He enters upon a long Sattra (or sacrificial period).'

14. (The teacher) then with his joined hands fills (the student's) joined hands with water with the three (verses), 'Ye waters are' (Vâg. Samh. XI, 5c' seqq.).

15. He then makes him look at the sun with (the verse), 'That eye' (Vâg. Samh. XXXVI, 24).

16. He then touches his heart, (reaching) over his right shoulder, with (the words), 'Into my will I take thy heart, &c.'

17. He then seizes (the student's) right hand and says, 'What is thy name?'

18. He replies, 'I am N. N., sir!

19. He then says to him, 'Whose pupil (brahma-kârin) art thou?'

20. After (the student) has said, 'Yours!'—(the

13. Satapatha Brâhmaṇa XI, 3, 3, 2: 'He enters upon a long Sattra, who enters upon Brahmaṇārya.' The student, when being initiated, ought to behave, consequently, in the same way as those who receive the inauguration (dikshâ) for a long Sattra. This is the meaning of this Sûtra. The rules regarding the staff handed over by the Adhvaryu to the Yagamâna at the dikshâ ceremony are given by Kâtyâyana, Srauta-sûtra VII, 4, 1-4

15. See above, I, 8, 7.

17 seqq. Comp. Satapatha Brâhmaṇa XI, 5, 4, 1 seqq.

20. The words 'I am thy teacher' are omitted in one of Professor Stenzler's MSS. and in his translation. But they are given in the parallel passage of the Satapatha Brâhmaṇa. The teacher replies,) 'Indra's pupil art thou; Agni is thy teacher; I am thy teacher, N. N. 1'

21. He then gives him in charge to living beings with (the formulas), 'To Pragâpate I give thee in charge. To the god Savitri I give thee in charge. To the waters, the herbs I give thee in charge. To Heaven and Earth I give thee in charge. To the Visve devâs I give thee in charge. To all beings I give thee in charge for the sake of freedom from harm.'

KANDIKÂ 3.

1. Having walked round the fire with his right side turned towards it, he sits down.

2. Taking hold (of the student), he sacrifices the Agya oblations, and after having partaken (of the remains of the sacrificial food) he instructs him, 'A student art thou. Take water. Do the service. Do not sleep in the day-time. Keep silence. Put fuel on (the fire). Take water.'

3. He then recites the Savitri to him, who is seated to the north of the fire, with his face to the west, sitting near the teacher, and looks (at the teacher), while (the teacher) looks at him;

4. Some say, to (the student) who is standing or seated to the south (of the fire);

5. Pâda by Pâda, (then) hemistich by hemistich; and the third time the whole (verse), reciting it together (with the student);

parallel passage in Sânkhâyana (Grhya II, 3, 1) also runs thus: Agnir âkâryas tava, asâv, aham aobhau.

3, 1 seqq. Comp. the corresponding section of the Satapatha Brâhmana XI, 6, 4, 6 seqq.

6. After one year, or after six months, or after twenty-four days, or after twelve days, or after six days, or after three days.

7. To a Brâhmaṇa, however, he should recite a (Sâvîrî) verse in the Gâyatrî metre immediately. For it is said in the Sruti, 'To Agni indeed belongs the Brâhmaṇa.'

8. A Trishûbha verse to a Râganya,

9. A Gâgati to a Vaisya,

10. Or a Gâyatrî to (persons of) all (castes).

KANDIKĀ 4.

1. Now the putting on of fuel.

2. He wipes with his hand (the ground) round the fire with (the formula), 'Agni, glorious one, make me glorious. As thou, glorious Agni, art glorious, thus, O glorious one, bring me to glory. As thou, Agni, art the preserver of the treasure of sacrifice for the gods, thus may I become the preserver of the treasure of the Veda for men.'

3. Having sprinkled (water) round the fire from left to right, he stands up and puts a piece of wood on (the fire)-with (the texts),

'To Agni I have brought a piece of wood, to the great Gâtavedas. As thou, Agni, art inflamed by wood, thus I am inflamed by life, insight, vigour, offspring, cattle, holy lustre.

'May my teacher be the father of living sons; may I be full of insight, not forgetful (of what I have learned); may I become full of glory, of splendour, of holy lustre, an enjoyer of food. Svâhâ!'
4. In the same way (he puts on) a second (piece of wood); and thus a third.

5. Or (each piece) with (the verse), 'Thine is this' (Vâg. Samh. II, 14).

6. Or (he uses) both (this verse and the formulas given in Sûtra 3).

7. The wiping and sprinkling (of water) round (the fire are repeated) as above.

8. Having warmed his two hands, he wipes his mouth with (the formulas):

'Agni, thou art the protector of bodies. Protect my body. Agni, thou art the giver of life. Give me life. Agni, thou art the giver of vigour. Give me vigour.

'Agni, what is deficient in my body, that restore to fulness.

'May the god Savitri bestow insight on me, may the goddess Sarasvatî, may the two divine Āsvins, wreathed with lotus, (bestow) insight (on me).'

KANDIKÂ 5.

1. Here (follows the student's) going the rounds for alms.

2. A Brâhmana should beg, addressing (the woman from whom he begs alms) with the word 'Lady' put at the beginning (of his request),

3. A Râganya, with the word 'Lady' inserted in the middle,

4. A Vaisya, with the word 'Lady' put at the end.

5. (He should beg) from three women who will not refuse;

7. See above, Sûtras 2, 3.

5, 2–4. Comp. Âpastamba I, 3, 28 seqq. (S. B. E., II, p. 12); Manu II, 49, &c. The Brâhmana says, 'Lady, give alms;' the Kshatriya, 'Give, lady, alms;' the Vaisya, 'Give alms, lady.'

5. Ârvalâyana-Grîhya I, 22, 7.
6. From six, twelve, or an indefinite number.
7. From his own mother first, according to some (teachers).
8. Having announced the alms received to his teacher, he should stand, keeping silence, through the rest of the day, according to some.
9. Having fetched fire-wood out of the forest without damaging (trees), he should put them on that fire as above, and should abandon his silence.
10. He should sleep on the ground and eat no pungent or saline food.
11. Wearing the staff, worshipping the fire, being obedient to his Guru, going the rounds for alms—(these are the standing duties of students).
12. He should avoid honey or flesh, bathing (for pleasure), sitting on high seats, going to women, falsehood, and taking what is not given to him.
13. Let him live forty-eight years as a student for the (four) Vedas,
14. Or twelve years for each Veda,
15. Or until he has learnt it.
16. The garment (of a student) should be made of hemp, flax, or wool (accordingly as he is a Brāhmaṇa, a Kshatriya, or a Vaisya).
17. The upper garment of a Brāhmaṇa should be an antelope-skin.
18. That of a Rāganya the skin of a spotted deer;

3. Āśvalāyana I. 1. §§ 10, 11.
9. The meaning is, he should not break off branches; but only gather such as have fallen off. The words ‘as above’ refer to chap. 4.

19. That of a Vaisya a goat's or cow's skin.
20. Or if (the prescribed sort of garment) is not to be had, a cow's hide (should be worn) by all, because to that belongs the first place (among all kinds of garments).
21. The girdle of a Brâhmaça should be of Muṣgga grass,
22. That of a Kshatriya should be a bowstring,
23. That of a Vaisya, made of Mûryâ (i.e. Sanseveria Roxburghiana).
24. If there is no Muṣgga (or the other articles prescribed in §§ 22, 23, the girdles should be made) of Kusa grass, of the plant Asmântaka, or of Balbaga grass (respectively).
25. The staff of a Brâhmaça is of Palâsa wood,
26. That of a Râganya of Bîlva wood,
27. That of a Vaisya of Udumbara wood.
28. Or all (sorts of staffs may be used) by all.
29. If the teacher calls him, he shall rise and then answer.
30. If (the teacher calls him) while he is lying down, (he should answer) sitting; if sitting, standing; if standing, walking up (to the teacher); if walking up, running up.
31. If he behaves thus, his fame when he has become a Snâtaka (i.e. when he has taken the bath at the end of his studentship) will be (such that people will say of him), 'To-day he stays there; to-day he stays there.'
32. There are three (kinds of) Snâtakas: a Vidyâsnâtaka (i.e. a Snâtaka by knowledge), a Vratasnâtaka (i. e. a Snâtaka by the completion of his vows), and a Vidyâ-vrata-snâtaka (i. e. a Snâtaka both by knowledge and by the completion of his vows).

33. He who performs the Samâvantana ceremony, after having finished the study of the Veda, but before the time of his vows has expired, is a Vidyâ-snâtaka.

34. He who performs the Samâvantana, after his vows have expired, but before he has finished the study of the Veda, is a Vrata-snâtaka.

35. He who performs the Samâvantana, after having finished both, is a Vidyâ-vrata-snâtaka.

36. Until the sixteenth year the time (for being initiated) has not passed for a Brâhmaṇa.

37. Until the twenty-second for a Râganya,

38. Until the twenty-fourth for a Vaisya.

39. After that (time has passed), they become patitasâvitrite (or persons who have lost the right of learning the Sâvitri).

40. No one should initiate such men, nor teach them, nor perform sacrifices for them, nor have intercourse with them.

41. The general rule here alluded to is, according to the commentators, that given by Kâtyâyana, Sûtra-sûtra XXV, 1, 12. 13. There it is stated which expiatory oblations have to precede, when a rite that has not been performed, or that has been incorrectly performed, is to be performed for good.

42. Those who have not been initiated in due time, may act as from the sacrament (of initiation) and from being taught the Veda.

43. Of such persons those who desire to receive the sacrament, may perform the sacrifice of Vrātyastoma and then study the Veda, if they like. For (of persons who have done that) it is said, ‘Intercourse with them is permitted.’

KANDIKA 6.

1. When he has finished the Veda, he should take the bath (by which he becomes a Snātaka);

2. Or when (he has gone through) a studentship of forty-eight years;

3. Or also after (a studentship) of twelve years, according to some (teachers).

4. (Let him take the bath only) if his Guru has given his permission.

5. Rules (regarding the performance of sacrifices), (texts) to be used (at the sacrifices according to those rules), and reasoning (on the meaning of the rites and texts): that is the Veda.

6. Some say (that the Veda should be studied) with its six Āṅgas; stated in Sūtra 41. But if the omission has been perpetuated through three generations, the descendant of such persons is subject to the rules stated in Sūtras 42 and 43.

43. Kātyāyana, after having given the rules on the Vrātyastoma sacrifice (see Weber, Indische Literaturgeschichte, and edition, pp. 73 seq.), says: ‘Intercourse with them (who have performed that sacrifice) is permitted’ (Sraut. XXII, 4, 28).

5. To the Air and to Vāyu, if the Yagur-veda,

6. To the Heaven and to the Sun, if the Sāma-veda,

7. To the quarters (of the horizon) and to the Moon, if the Atharva-veda;

12. All should repeat (that verse after him).

13. After each oblation they should each time put on the fire three pieces of Udumbāra wood, fresh branches with leaves, anointed with ghee, reciting the Sāvitrī.

14. And the students (should put wood on the fire) in the manner stated above.

15. With (the verse), 'Luck may bring us' (Vāg. Samh. IX, 16) they should eat the fried grains without chewing them.

16. With the verse, 'Of Dadhikrāvan' (Vāg. Samh. XXIII, 32) they should eat curds.

17. As many pupils as he wishes to obtain, so many sesame grains should he sacrifice with a dice-board, with the Sāvitrī or with the Anuvāka, 'Bright-resplending' (Vāg. Samh. XVII, 80 seqq.).

14. See above, chap. 4.

17. Ākarmaphalakena. Rāmakṛśna states that this is a board of Udumbāra wood, of the length of an arm, and of the shape of a serpent. (See Professor Stenzler’s note.)

18. The following Sūtras clearly show that this rule is intended for students of the Yagyur-veda only.
19. The beginnings of the sections belonging to the (different) Rishis, if they are Bahunrikas (i.e. if they study the Rg-veda),
20. The Parvans, if they are Khandogas (i.e. if they study the Sâma-veda),
21. The Sûktas, if they are Atharvans.
22. All murmur: 'May it be ours in common; may it bless us in common; may this Brahman be powerful with us together. Indra knows that through which, and in which way, no hatred may spring up amongst us.'
23. Through a period of three nights they should not study (the Veda).
24. And they should not cut the hair of their bodies and their nails.
25. Some say (that this should not be done) till the Utsarga (i.e. the concluding ceremony of the annual course of study).

KANDIKA 11.

1. If (a strong) wind is blowing, and on the new-moon day there is an entire interruption of study.
2. If one has partaken of a Srâddha dinner, if a meteor falls, or distant thundering is heard, or if the earth quakes, or if fiery apparitions are seen, and when a new season begins, (the study shall be interrupted) until the same time next day.
3. If the Utsarga ceremony has been performed.

11, 1. 'Entire interruption' means, according to the commentators, that not only the study of the Veda itself, but also that of the Vedângas, or even all sorts of worldly instruction are forbidden.
3. I have left the words sarvarûpe a untranslated. Evidently if clouds appear, . . . ., (it shall be interrupted) through a period of three nights or till twilight has thrice passed.

4. After he has eaten, until he has (washed and) dried his hands; while being in water; at nighttime; at the time of the morning and evening twilight; while a dead body or a Kandala is in the village.

5. While running, while seeing a person of bad fame or who has lost his caste, if a miraculous or happy event happens, as long as (that which occasions the interruption of study) endures.

6. If hoar-frost (lies on the ground), if a musical instrument is heard, or the cry of a person in pain, at the border of the village, in a burial ground, or if a dog, an ass, an owl, a jackal, or a Såman song is heard, or if a learned person approaches, as long as (that occasion) endures.

7. If his Guru has died, let him go down into water (for offering water-oblations) and interrupt (the study) for ten nights.

8. If one who has performed with him the Tánunapra ceremony, or a fellow-pupil (has died), for three nights.

9. If one who is not his fellow-pupil, (has died,) for one night.

sarvarūpa is identical with the doubtful word savarūpa which twice occurs in the Sānkhyāya-grihya. See the discussion on that word in the note on Sānkhyāya II, 12, 10.

8. The Tánunapra is an invocation directed to Tanunaptra (i.e. the wind) by which the officiating priests and the Yagamāna at a Soma 4. crucice pledge their faith to do no harm to each other. See Indische Studien, X, 362.
10. After having studied five months and a half, they should celebrate the Utsarga,
11. Or six months and a half.
12. They then mutter this Rik : 'Ye two young sages! The relation which has expired among us, the friendship we dissolve, (turning away) from the condition of friendship.'
13. After having remained together through a period of three nights, they separate.

KANDIKĀ 12.

1. In (the month) Pausha, under (the Nakshatra) Rohiṣṭ, or at the middle Ashākā let them celebrate the conclusion of the study (of the Veda).
2. Let them go to the brink of water and make water oblations to the gods, the metres, the Vedas, the Rishis, the ancient teachers, the Gandharvas, the other teachers, the year with its divisions, and to their own ancestors and teachers.
3. After having four times quickly recited the Sāvitrī, they should say, 'We have finished.'
4. Interruption (of the study) and (continuation of the) teaching as stated above.

12. The reading of the Mantra is doubtful. I think it should stand as Professor Stenzler has printed it, except that I should propose to correct yuvā into yuvānā (comp. Āśvalāyana-Srauta VI, 12, 12). It is probable that the gods addressed are the two Arvins, who are called kavī and yuvānā in several passages of the Vedas.

12, 1. See Āśvalāyana-Gṛihya III, 5, 20; Sānkhyāyana-Gṛihya IV, 6. On the three Ashākās, see below, III, 3, 1.
4. Sānkhyāyana-Gṛihya IV, 5, 17, where the same expression kṣhapāna for interruptions of the study is used. The words 'as above' refer to chap. 10, 23, 24.
13. On an auspicious day the harnessing to the plough. Or under (the Nakshatra) Gyeshtlå, (because that rite is) sacred to Indra.

2. To Indra, Parganya, the two Arsvins, the Maruts, Udalåkåsyapa, Svåtikårî, Såtå, and Anumati, he offers curds, rice grains, perfumes, and fried grains, and then makes the bullocks eat honey and ghee.

3. He should put them to the plough with (the verse), 'They harness to the ploughs' (Våg. Samh.
XII, 67).

4. With (the verse), 'For luck may us the ploughshares' (Våg. Samh. XII, 69) let him plough or touch the plough-share.

5. Or (he may) not (do so), because (that verse) has been prescribed for (the erection of) the Agni (altar), and the act of sowing stands in connection (with it).

6. After the front-bullock has been sprinkled (with water), they then should plough unploughed ground.

13, 1. Indra is the presiding deity over the constellation Gyeshtlå; see Sånhåyana-Gråhya I, 26, 16, &c.

2. The names of the genius Udalåkåsyapa and of the female genius Svåtikårî occur, as far as I know, only here. Båhtlingk-Roth propose to read Sphåtiåkårî ('the goddess who gives abundance').

5. At the Agni-åyana ceremony furrows are drawn with the plough on the Agni-kşetra with the verses Våg. Samh. XII, 69-72.
Afterwards grains of different kinds are sown. See Kåtyåyana XVII, 2, 12; 3, 8; Indische Studien, XIII, 244 seq. Thus in the Srauta ritual the verse Våg. Samh. XII, 69 stands in a connection which does not conform to the occasion for which it would be used here.
7. He should make oblations of cooked sacrificial food to the same deities as above, when sowing both rice and barley, and at the sacrifice to Sītā.
8. Then (follows) feeding of the Brāhmaṇas.

KANDIKĀ 14.

1. Now (follows) the Sravaṇa ceremony,
2. On the full-moon day of the Sravaṇa month.
3. He cooks a mess of sacrificial food, fried grains, and a cake in one dish, pounds the greater part of the grains, sacrifices the two Āgya portions, and two (other) Āgya oblations (with the following verses):
4. 'Beat away, O white one, with thy foot, with the fore-foot and with the hind-foot, these seven [children] of Varuna and all (daughters) of the king's tribe. Svāhā!
5. 'Within the dominion of the white one, the Serpent has seen nobody. To the white one, the son of Vidarva, adoration! Svāhā!'
6. He makes oblations of the mess of cooked sacrificial food to Vishnu, to Sravaṇa, to the full moon of Sravaṇa, and to the rainy season,
7. (And oblations) of the grains with (the verse), 'Accompanied with grains' (Vāg. Samh. XX, 29).

7. 'As above' refers to Śūtra 2. On the Sītā-yagña, see below, chap. 17.
  14, 1 seqq. Comp. Sānkhyāyaṇa IV, 5; Āśvalāyaṇa II, 1; Gobhila III, 7.
  4. Āśvalāyaṇa II, 3, 3; Sānkhyāyaṇa IV, 18, 1. For Vārunaiḥ and rāgabāndhavaiḥ I read Vārunīḥ, rāgabāndhavīḥ. Prajāḥ is an interpolation.
  5. Āśvalāyaṇa, loc. cit. One is rather tempted to correct ahir dāmaṣa kaṭāṇa, but Rāmakṛṣṇa's Paddhati on Sānkhyāyaṇa gives the reading dāmaṣa, as the Pāraskara MSS. do.
8. He sacrifices flour, over which ghee has been poured, to the serpents (with the following Mantras):

9. 'To the lord of the serpents belonging to Agni, of the yellowish, terrestrial ones, svāhā!

'To the lord of the white serpents belonging to Vāyu, of the aerial ones, svāhā!

'To the lord of the overpowering serpents belonging to Sūrya, of the celestial ones, svāhā!

10. The (cake) in one dish he offers entirely (without leaving a remainder for the sacrificer) with (the formula), 'To the firm one, the son of the Earth, svāhā!'

11. After he has eaten (of the sacrificial food), he throws a portion of the flour into a basket, goes out, besmears an elevated spot outside the hall (with cowdung), says, while a fire-brand is held (before him), 'Do not step between (myself and the fire),' and without speaking (anything except the Mantras), he causes the serpents to wash themselves, (pouring out water for them, with the formulas:)

12. 'Lord of the serpents belonging to Agni, of the yellowish, terrestrial ones, wash thyself!

'Lord of the white serpents belonging to Vāyu, of the aerial ones, wash thyself!

'Lord of the overpowering serpents belonging to Sūrya, of the celestial ones, wash thyself!'

13. Each time after the washing has been done, he offers to the serpents a Bali of flour, picking out

11. The ceremony with the fire-brand seems to stand in connection with the rule given by Ārvalāyana, II, 1, 13, that before the sacrificer has 'given himself in charge' to the serpents, nobody is allowed to step between him and the Bali destined for the serpents. Comp. also below, Śūtra 23.

13. I have translated upaghātam by 'picking out.' On the full (portions of it) with (the spoon called) Darvī (with the formulas):

14. 'Lord of the serpents belonging to Agni, of the yellowish, terrestrial ones, this is thy Bali!

'Lord of the white serpents belonging to Vāyu, of the aerial ones, this is thy Bali!

'Lord of the overpowering serpents belonging to Sūrya, of the celestial ones, this is thy Bali!'

15. After he has made them wash themselves as above, he combs them with combs (with the formulas):

16. 'Lord of the serpents belonging to Agni, of the yellowish, terrestrial ones, comb thyself!

'Lord of the white serpents belonging to Vāyu, of the aerial ones, comb thyself!

'Lord of the overpowering serpents belonging to Sūrya, of the celestial ones, comb thyself!'

17. (He offers) collyrium, ointment, and garlands with (the same formulas), putting at their end, respectively, the words, 'Salve thy eyes!' 'Anoint thyself!' 'Put on garlands!'

18. The remainder of the flour he pours out on the elevated spot (mentioned in Sūtra 11), pours water on it out of a water-pot, and worships the technical meaning of the term, which implies the omission of the upāstaraṇa and abhīghāraṇa, see Bloomfield's note on Grīhyā-saṃgraha I, 111 (Zeitschrift der deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, XXXV, 568).

15. The words 'as above' refer to Sūtra 11. Pralikhāti, which I have translated 'he combs them,' is the same act for which Sāṅkhāyana (IV, 15, 7) says, phāṣena keśaḥḍayati. I think Professor Stenzler is wrong in translating: Er scharrt (das Mehl) mit Kāmmen zusammen. Gāyatrīya says: pralakhanam ka kraivesa pratimantiam balikādaḥyānam kanktakaḥ. tāni ka vaikankatayāni prāderamātrāny ekatodantāni kāshṭhāni bhavanti.
serpents with the three (verses), 'Adoration be to the serpents' (Vâg. Samh. XIII, 6 seqq.).

19. At that distance in which he wishes the serpents not to approach (the house), he should three times walk round the house, sprinkling an uninterrupted stream of water round it, with the two (verses), 'Beat away, O white one, with thy foot' (Sûtras 4 and 5).

20. He gives away the (spoon called) Darvî (Sûtra 13) and the basket (Sûtra 11), having washed and warmed them.

21. Near the door (of the house) they clean themselves with the three (verses), 'O waters, ye are' (Vâg. Samh. XI, 50 seqq.).

22. Having put away that remainder of flour in a hidden place, he should from that time daily till the Âgrahâyaṇâ, after sunset, when he has performed the service to the fire, offer to the serpents a Bali of flour, picking out (portions of it) with the Darvî (spoon).

23. When he is offering (the Bali), let no one step between (the sacrificer and the Bali).

24. With the Darvî (spoon) he rinses his mouth. Having washed it, he puts it away.

20. According to the commentators he gives these things to the man who holds the fire-brand (Sûtra 11).

22. The Âgrahâyaṇâ is the full-moon day of Mârgaśîra, on which the Pratyavârahana ceremony is celebrated. See below, III, 2; Weber, die vedischen Nachrichten von den Naxatra, II, 332. The expression darvyopaṇaghâtâyam is the same that has occurred above in Sûtra 13.

23. Comp. Âsvâlayana-Grîhya II, 1, 13, and see above, Sûtra 11.

24. Prakshâlya seems to me to refer to the Darvî; see Sûtra 20.
25. They eat the (rice) grains which must not form one coherent mass.
26. Then (follows) the feeding of the Brāhmaṇas.

KANDIKĀ 15.

1. On the full-moon day of Praushṭapada the sacrifice to Indra.

2. Having cooked milk-rice for Indra and cakes, and having put cakes round (the fire), he sacrifices the two Āgya portions and Āgya oblations to Indra, to Indrānti, to Āga Ekapad, to Ahi Budhnya, and to the Proshṭapadās.

3. After he has eaten (his portion of the sacrificial food), he offers a Bali to the Maruts. For the Sruti says, 'The Maruts eat what is not-sacrificed.'

4. (This Bali he offers) in Āsvattha leaves, because it is said, 'The Maruts stood in the Āsvattha tree.'

15, 2. After these Āgya oblations follows the chief oblation of the whole sacrifice, the oblation of milk-rice to Indra. In one of Professor Stenzler's MSS. there is a special Sūtra inserted after Sūtra 2, 'Of the cooked food he makes an oblation with (the formula), "To Indra svāhā."' I do not, however, think it right to receive this Sūtra into the text, as the other MSS do not support it, and the commentators did not find it in the text which they read.

3. Professor Stenzler's translation, 'Die Maruts essen kein Opfer,' seems to me not quite exact. I should prefer to say, 'Die Maruts essen Nicht-Opfer.' This passage, taken from Satapatha Brāhmaṇa IV, 5, 2, 16, is quoted as supporting the rule that a Bali offering should be made to the Maruts; for in the technical language the term ahuta is applied to Bali offerings (Śāṅkhāyana-Grhaṇya I, 10, 7, huto-gnihotrahomena, ahuto balikarmaṇa).

4. When Indra called them to his help against Vṛtra. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa IV, 3, 3, 6.

6. And with the (Mantra called) Vimukha,

7. (This Mantra he repeats only) in his mind.

8. For the Sruti says, 'These are their names.'

9. He murmurs, 'To Indra the divine' (Vāg. Samh. XVII, 86).

10. Then (follows) the feeding of the Brāhmaṇas.

KANDIKĀ 16.

1. On the full-moon day of Āsvayuga the (offerings of) Prishātakas (are made).

2. Having cooked milk-rice for Indra he sacrifices it, mixed with curds, honey, and ghee, to Indra, Indrānt, the two Āsvins, the full moon of Āsvayuga, and to the autumn.

3. After he has eaten (his portion of the sacrificial food), he sacrifices with his joined hands a Prishātaka prepared with curds, with the words, 'May what is deficient be made full to me; may what is full not decay to me. Svāhā!'

4. The inmates of the house look at the mixture of curds, honey, and ghee, with the Anuvāka,

KANDIKĀ 17.

1. Now (follows) the sacrifice to Sītâ.
2. Wherever he sacrifices, be it (on a field) of rice or of barley, of that grain he should prepare a mess of cooked food.
3. One who has sacrificed may, if he likes, prepare elsewhere also a mess of cooked food, either of rice or of barley.
4. (There should be) no doubt (as to whether rice or barley is to be taken), as a rule thereon has been stated above.
5. If it is impossible (to take one of the two species of corn), (that) is excluded.
6. To the east or to the north of the field, on a

5. Śāṅkhāyana IV, 16, 4.
17, 1. The goddess Sītâ is, as her name indicates, the rustic deity of the furrow.
3. Perhaps the meaning is that a person who has already once performed the Sītâ-yāgna on the field, is allowed, when repeating the sacrifice another time, to celebrate it elsewhere, and to choose at his will between rice and barley.
4. A rule has been given in the Srauta-sūtra (Kâtya. I, 9, 1: 'Rice or barley, if a Havis [is prescribed]') which shows that it is indifferent whether rice or barley is taken. Thus the sacrificer is free to elect the one or the other. At least this is the traditional meaning of this Sûtra. But possibly we had better understand it otherwise. The sacrificer should offer, according to Sûtra 3, rice or barley. Whether he has to take the one or the other, there can be no doubt, as the rule given above (Sûtra 2) shows that rice should be cooked, if the ceremony is performed for a rice-field, and barley, if for a barley-field.
clean spot that has been ploughed, so that the crop be not damaged,

7. Or in the village, because (there) both (rice and barley) are united, and because no obstacle is there.

8. Where he intends to cook (the sacrificial food), he establishes the fire on a place that has been smeared (with cowdung), which is elevated, and which has been sprinkled (with water), strews (round the fire) Darbha grass mixed with (stalks of) that (sort of corn to which the sacrifice refers), sacrifices the two Âgya portions and Âgya oblations (with the following Mantras):

9. ‘For whom earth and heaven, the intermediate points and the chief points (of the horizon) are veiled with light, that Indra I invoke here. May his weapons be friendly towards us. Svâhâ!

‘Whatsoever it be that I wish for at this sacrifice, O killer of Vrîtra, may all that be fulfilled to me, and may I live a hundred autumns. Svâhâ!

‘May success, prosperity, earth, rain, eminence, excellence, luck here protect the creatures. Svâhâ!

‘In whose substance dwells the prosperity of all Vedic and worldly works, Indra’s wife Sitâ I invoke. May she not abandon me in whatever work I do. Svâhâ!

‘Her, who rich in horses, rich in cows, rich in delight indefatigably supports living beings, Urvarâ (i.e. the field) who is wreathed with threshing-floors, I invoke at this sacrifice, the firm One. May she not abandon me.” Svâhâ!’

10. He makes oblations of the cooked sacrificial food to Sitâ, Yagâ (the goddess of sacrifice), Samâ (the goddess of zealous devotion), Bhûti (the goddess of welfare).
11. Some say that the giving (of the sacrificial food to the deities) accompanies the Mantras.

12. But this is excluded, as the Sruti says, 'The giving (of the oblation to the deity) accompanies the word Svāhā.'

13. On the Kusa grass which is left over from the strewing (of grass round the fire), he offers a Bali to the protecting demons of the furrow with (the Mantra), 'They who are sitting towards the east with strong bows and quivers, may they protect thee from the east, and be vigilant and not abandon thee. To them I bring adoration, and I offer this Bali to them.'

14. Then to the south with (the Mantra), 'They who are sitting towards the south, not winking the eyes, wearing armour, may they protect thee from the south, and be vigilant and not abandon thee. To them I bring adoration, and I offer this Bali to them.'

15. Then to the west with (the Mantra), 'The powerful ones, the excellent ones, prosperity, earth, Pārshu, Sunamkuri, may they protect thee from the west, and be vigilant and not abandon thee. To them I bring adoration, and I offer this Bali to them.'

16. Then to the north with (the Mantra), 'The fearful ones, like to Vāyu in speed, may they protect

12. The quotation has not been as yet identified in the Sruti itself, but the words quoted are found in Kātyā-Sraut. I, 2, 7.

14. Some words in the beginning of the Mantra are lost. We should probably write: atha dakshinataḥ ye dakshinato-nimishāḥ... varminasāte, &c. Of course it is impossible to say which is the word that is wanting before (or perhaps after) varminasāt.

15. Pārshu, which means 'heal,' stands here, of course, as the name of a protecting demon.

used at this sacrifice), and with the remainder of Āgya, he distributes Balis as above.

oblations, because such is the custom.

manas.

KÂnda III, Kandikâ 1.

1. (Now shall be explained) the partaking of the first-fruits (of the harvest), of a person who has not set up the (sacred Srauta) fires.

2. He cooks a mess of fresh sacrificial food, sacrifices the two Ágya portions, and two Ágya oblations, (with the formulas),

'To the hundredfold armed, hundredfold valiant, hundredfold blissful one, the vanquisher of enemies—he who may create a hundred autumns for us, Indra,—may he lead us across (the gulf of) misfortune. Svâhâ!

'The four paths that go between heaven and earth, trodden by the gods—of these (paths) lead us to that which may bring us freedom from decay and decline, O all ye gods. Svâhâ!'

3. Having made oblations of the mess of cooked food to the Ágrayana deities, he makes another oblation to (Agni) Svishţakrît with (the verse), 'Agni, make this (sacrifice) full, that it may be well offered. And may the god destroy all hostile powers. Come hither, showing us a good path. Bestow on us long life, full of splendour and free from decay. Svâhâ!'

7. Then (follows) the feeding of the Brâhmanas.

KANDIKA 2.

1. On the full-moon day of Mârgastraha the Ágrahâyânt ceremony (is performed).

2. He cooks a mess of sacrificial food, sacrifices two Ágya oblations as at the Sravanâ sacrifice, and other oblations with (the following verses):

'The night whom men welcome like a cow that comes to them, (the night) which is the consort of the year, may that (night) be auspicious to us. Svâhå!'

2. The first verses in which the Ágrahâyânt night is called the consort of the year, or the image of the year, occur elsewhere with reference to the Ekâshâkå night. See Atharva-veda III, 10; Taitt.
The night which is the image of the year, that we worship. May I reach old age, imparting strength to my offspring. Svāhā!

To the Samvatsara, to the Parivatsara, to the Idāvatsara, to the Idvatsara, to the Vatsara bring ye great adoration. May we, undecayed, unbeaten, long enjoy the favour of these (years) which are worthy of sacrifices. Svāhā!

May summer, winter and spring, the rains be friendly, and may autumn be free of danger to us. In the safe protection of these seasons may we dwell, (and) may (they) last (to us) through a hundred years. Svāhā!

3. He makes oblation of the cooked food to Soma, to (the Nakshatra) Mṛigasiras, to the full moon of Mārgastrsha, and to the winter.

4. After he has eaten (of the sacrificial food), he throws the remainder of the flour into a basket, (and then follow the same rites that have been stated above) from (the sacrificer's) going out down to their cleaning themselves.

5. After the cleaning he says, 'The Bali offering is finished.'

6. After they have spread out to the west of the fire a layer (of straw) and a garment that has

4. See above, II, 14, 11–21 (not 19–21 as indicated by Professor Stenzler).

6. 'Redescending' means that they do not sleep any longer on high bedsteads, which they did from the Srāvantī day till the Āgrahāvantī, on account of the danger from the snakes, but on the ground. See the notes on Śāṅkh-Grhya IV, 15, 22; 17, 1.
not yet been washed, they 'redescend,' having bathed, wearing garments which have not yet been washed: the master (of the house) southward, his wife to the north (of her husband, and then the other persons belonging to the house) so that each younger one lies more to the north.

7. Having caused the Brahman to sit down southward, and having placed to the north a water-pot, a Sami branch, an earth-clod taken out of a furrow, and a stone, he murmurs, looking at the fire: 'This Agni is most valiant, he is most blessed, the best giver of a thousand boons, highly powerful. May he establish us both in the highest place.'

8. To the west of the fire he joins his hands (and holds them) towards the east.

9. With the three (verses), 'The divine ship' (Vāg. Samh. XXI, 6–8) they ascend the layer (of straw).

10. He addresses the Brahman: 'Brahman, we will redescend.'

11. The Brahman having given his permission, they redescend with (the words), 'Life, fame, glory, strength, enjoyment of food, offspring!'

12. Those who have received the initiation murmur, 'May a good winter, a good spring, a good summer be bestowed on us. Blessed may be to us the rains, may the autumns be blessed to us.'

13. With (the verse), 'Be soft to us, O earth' (Vāg. Samh. XXXV, 21), they lie down on their right sides, their heads turned towards the east.

10, 11. See the note on § 6.
12. On upāna, which means a person for whom the Upanayana has been performed, see my note, Sāṅkhāyana-Grīhya II, 1, 1.
14. They arise with (the verse), 'Up! with life, with blessed life. Up! with Parganya's eye, with the seven spaces of the earth.'

15. This (they repeat) two other times, with the Brahman's permission.

16. Let them sleep on the ground four months (after the Pratyavarohana), or as long as they like.

KANDIKĀ 3.

1. After the Āgrahāyaṇī (full moon follow) the three As̱̱ṭakās.

2. (The As̱̱ṭakā is) sacred to Indra, to the Viṣve devās, to Pragāpati, and to the Fathers.

3. (The oblations are made) with cakes, flesh, and vegetables, according to the order (of the three As̱̱ṭakās).

4. The first As̱̱ṭakā (is celebrated) on the eighth day of the fortnight.

5. Having cooked a mess of sacrificial food and having sacrificed the two Āgya portions, he sacrifices Āgya oblations with (the texts):

(a) 'Thirty sisters go to the appointed place,' putting on the same badge. They spread out the seasons, the knowing sages; having the metres in their midst they walk around, the brilliant ones. Svâhå!

(b) 'The shining one clothes herself with clouds, with the ways of the sun, the divine night: manifold animals which are born, look about in this mother's lap. Svâhå!

(c) 'The Ekâśâkâ, devoting herself to austerities, has given birth to a child, to the majesty of Indra. Through him the gods have conquered the hostile tribes; he became the killer of the Asuras through his (divine) powers. Svâhå!

(d) 'You have made me who am not the younger (sister), the younger; speaking the truth I desire this: may I be in his (i.e. the sacrificer's?) favour, as you are; may none of you supplant the other in her work.

(e) 'In my favour dwelt the omniscient one; he has found a firm standing; he has got a footing. May I be in his (i.e. the sacrificer's?) favour, as you are; may none of you supplant the other in her work.

(f) 'On the five dawns follows the fivefold milking; on the cow with the five names, the five seasons. The five regions (of the sky) are estab-

(d) Probably one Ashākâ addresses the others, her sisters, as Gayārāma explains this verse.

(f) The explanation by which the 'fivefold milking' is referred to what is called in Taitt. Brâhmaṇa II, 2, 9, 'the milkings of Prâgâpati,' seems to me more than doubtful, for 'the milkings lished through the fifteenfold (Stoma); with one common face (they look over) the one world. Svâhâ!

(g) 'She who shone forth as the first, is the child of truth. One (of them) bears the majesty of the waters; one wanders in the courses of the sun; one (in those) of the heat; Savitri shall govern one. Svâhâ!

(h) 'She who shone forth as the first has become a cow in Yama’s realm. Give us milk, thou who art rich in milk, year by year. Svâhâ!

(i) 'She, the owner of bright bulls, has come to us with clouds and with light, she who has all shapes, the motley one, whose banner is fire. Carrying on the common work, leading us to old age, come to us thou who art exempt from old age, Ushas! Svâhâ!

(k) 'The consort of the seasons, the first one has come to us, the leader of days, the producer of offspring. Being one, thou shinest manifold, Ushas. Being free from old age, thou leadest to old age everything else. Svâhâ!'

6. He makes offerings of the mess of cooked food with (the verses):

'May the earth be peaceful, the air friendly to us;
may the heavens give us bliss and safety. May the points (of the horizon), the intermediate points, the upper points give us bliss, and may day and night create long life for us. Svāhā!

'May the waters, the rays protect us from all sides; may the creator, may the ocean turn away evil. The present and the future, may all be safe for me. Protected by Brahman, may I be well guarded. Svāhā!

'May all Ādityas and the divine Vasus, may the Rudras and Maruts be our protectors. May Pragāpati, the highest lord, bestow on us vigour, offspring, immortality, long life. Svāhā!'

7. And with (the formula), 'To the Ashtakā Svāhā!'

8. The middle Ashtakā (is celebrated) with (the sacrifice of) a cow.

9. He sacrifices the omentum of that (cow) with (the verse), 'Carry the omentum, O Gātavedas, to the fathers' (Vāg. Samh. XXXV, 20).

10. On the day following each (Ashtakā), the Anvashtakā day, (he brings a sacrifice) with the left ribs and the left thigh, in an enclosure, according to (the ritual of) the Pindapitrīyāgāṇa.

11. Also to the female (ancestors he makes Pinda offerings) and pours (for them) strong liquor and water oblations into pits, and (offers) collyrium, salves, and garlands.

12. (He may also make oblations), if he likes, to the teacher and to the pupils who have no children.
13. And in the middle of the rainy season (there is) a fourth Ashvakā on which vegetables are offered.

KANDIKĀ 4.

1. Now the building of the house.
2. Let him have his house built on an auspicious day.
3. Into the pits (in which the posts shall be erected) he pours an oblation with (the words), 'To the steady one, the earth-demon, svāhā!
4. He erects the post.

'This navel of the world I set up, a stream of wealth, promoting wealth. Here I erect a firm house; may it stand in peace, dropping ghee.

'Rich in horses and cows, rich in delight be set up, for the sake of great happiness. To thee may the young calf cry, to thee the lowing cows, the milk-cows.

'To thee (may) the young child (go), to thee the calf with its companions, to thee the cup of Parisrut, to thee (may they go) with pots of curds.

13. I have stated in the note on Sānkhyāyaṇa III, 13, 1 my reasons for believing that the true reading of this Sūtra is not maḍhīyavarshe (in the middle of the rainy season), but māghyavarshe (the festival celebrated during the rainy season under the Nakshatra Maghās). There are no express rules given with regard to the third Ashvakā, but I think we should understand this Sūtra as involving a statement on that Ashvakā: (The third Ashvakā) and the fourth, on the Māghyavarsha day, are Sākāshakās (Ashvakās on which vegetables are offered). Sānkhyāyaṇa (Gṛhyā III, 13, 1) declares that the ritual of the fourth Ashvakā is identical with that of the second.

4. S. Āśvalāyana-Gṛhyā II, 8, 15.
4. On gagadaśaḥ saha (in the third verse) see my note on Sānkhyāyaṇa-Gṛhyā III, 2, 9.
The consort of Peace, the great one, beautifully attired—bestow on us, O blessed one, wealth and manly power, which may be rich in horses and cows, full of sap like a tree's leaf. May our wealth increase here, clothing itself with prospering'—with (these four Mantras) he approaches the four (posts).

5. Having established the fire inside (the house), having made the Brahman sit down towards the south, having placed a water-pot to the north, and cooked a mess of sacrificial food, he goes out (of the house), and standing near the door, he addresses the Brahman, 'Brahman, I enter (the house)'

6. When the Brahman has given his consent, he enters with (the formula), 'To right I advance, to luck I advance!'

7. Having prepared Ḡṛya and sacrificed two Ḡṛya oblations with (the two parts of the Mantra), 'Here is joy' (Vāg. Samh. VI,II, 51 a), he sacrifices other oblations with (the verses):

(a) 'Vâstoshpati! Receive us (into thy protection); give us good entering and drive away from us evil. For what we ask thee, with that favour us: be a saviour to us, to men and animals. Svâhâ!

(b) 'Vâstoshpati! Be our furtherer; make our wealth increase in cows and horses, O Indu (i.e. Soma). Free from decay may we dwell in thy friendship; give us thy favour, as a father to his sons. Svâhâ!

(c) 'Vâstoshpati! Let us be in a fellowship with thee, which may be valiant, joyful, and well proceeding. Protect our wishes when we rest and when we do our work. Protect us always, ye (gods), and give us welfare. Svāhā!

(d) 'Driving away calamity, Vāstosbhpati, assuming all shapes, be a kind friend to us. Svāhā!'

8. He makes offerings of the mess of cooked food (with the following Mantras):

(a) 'Agni, Indra, Brñhaspati, the Visve devås I invoke, Sarasvatî and Vågî. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhā!

(b) 'To all the divine hosts of serpents, to the Himavat, the Sudarsana (mountain), and the Vasus, Rudras, Ådityas, Ísåna with his companions, to all these I apply. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhå!

(c) 'To forenoon and afternoon both together with noon, to evening and midnight, to the goddess of dawn with her wide path, to all these I apply. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhå!

(d) 'To the Creator and the Changer, to Visvakarman, to the herbs and trees, to all these I apply. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhå!

(e) 'To Dhåtrî and Vidhåtrî, and to the Lord of treasures together with them, to all these I apply. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhå!

(f) 'As a lucky, a happy (place), give me this dwelling-place, Brahman and Pragåpati, and all deities. Svāhå!'

9. After he has partaken (of the sacrificial food), let him put into a brass vessel the different things which he has brought together, Udumbara leaves with strong liquor, green turf, cowdung, curds, honey, ghee, Kusa grass, and barley, and let him besprinkle the seats and shrines (for the images of the gods).

10. He touches (the wall and the posts) at their eastern juncture with (the words), 'May luck and glory protect thee at thy eastern juncture.'

11. He touches (them) at their southern juncture with (the words), 'May sacrifice and sacrificial fee protect thee at thy southern juncture.'

12. He touches (them) at their western juncture with (the words), 'May food and the Brâhmaṇa protect thee at thy western juncture.'

13. He touches (them) at their northern juncture with (the words), 'May vigour and delight protect thee at thy northern juncture.'

14. He then goes out (of the house) and worships the quarters (of the horizon, the east) with (the formulas), 'May Ketā (i.e. will?) and Suketā (i.e. good-will?) protect me from the east.

'Agni is Ketā; the Sun is Suketā; to them I apply; to them be adoration; may they protect me from the east.'

15. Then to the south: 'May that which protects and that which guards, protect me from the south.

'The Day is that which protects; the Night is that which guards; to them I apply; to them be adoration; may they protect me from the south.'

16. Then to the west: 'May the shining one and the waking one protect me from the west.

'Food is the shining one; Breath is the waking one; to them I apply; to them be adoration; may they protect me from the west.'

17. Then to the north: 'May the sleepless one and the not-slumbering one protect me from the north.'
'The Moon is the sleepless one; the Wind is the not-slumbering one; to them I apply; to them be adoration; may they protect me from the north.'

18. When (the house) is finished, he enters it with (the formulas),

'Law, the chief post! Fortune, the pinnacle! Day and night, the two door-boards!

'Indra's house is wealthy, protecting; that I enter with my children, with my cattle, with everything that is mine.

'Hither is called the whole number (of relatives), the friends whose coming is good. Thus (I enter) thee, O house! May our dwellings be full of inviolable heroes from all sides!'

19. Then (follows) feeding of the Brâhmanas.

KÂNDIKÂ 5.

1. Now (follows) the putting up of the water-barrel.

2. To the north-east he digs a pit like (the pit for) a sacrificial post, strews into it Kusa grass, fried grains, fruits of the soap-tree, and other auspicious things, and therein he establishes the water-barrel with (the words), 'The sea art thou.'

3. He pours water into it with (the verse), 'Ye

Sadhusaṁvṛtâḥ (if the reading is correct) seems to me to be the nom. plur. of sadhusaṁvṛt. I understand this to be a Bahunâthi compound, in which saṁvṛt means 'the approaching.' In Atharva-veda VII, 60, 4 we have sakâyaḥ svâduṣaṁmudāḥ. After sâle a verb meaning 'I enter,' or something like that, has been lost.

us good insight and immortality. Ye are the rulers over wealth and blessed offspring. May Sarasvati give strength to him who praises her!—
4. And with the three (verses), 'O waters, ye are'
(Vāg. Samhitā XI, 50 seqq.).
5. Then (follows) feeding of the Brāhmaṇas.

KANDIKĀ 6.

1. Now the cure for headache.
2. Having moistened his hands, he passes them over his eye-brows with (the verse), 'From the eyes, from the ears, from the whiskers, from the chin, from the forehead, I drive away this disease of the head.'
3. If (only) one side (of the head aches, he recites the verse), 'Cleaver! Thou with the disfigured eyes! White-wing! Renowned one! And thou with the various-coloured wing! Let his head not ache.'
4. Then it will get better.

KANDIKĀ 7.

1. (Now will be declared) the making water round about a servant who is disposed to run away.
2. While (the servant) is sleeping, he should discharge his urine into the horn of a living animal, and should three times walk round him, turning his left side towards him, and sprinkle (the urine) round him, with (the verse), 'From the mountain (on which thou art born), from thy mother, from thy sister, from thy parents and thy brothers, from thy friends I sever thee.

'Run-away servant, I have made water round thee. Having been watered round, where wilt thou go?'

3. Should he run away (nevertheless, his master) should establish a fire that has been taken from a wood that is on fire, and should sacrifice (in that fire) Kusa plates (used for protecting the hands when holding a hot sacrificial pan) that have been anointed with ghee, with (the formula), 'May the stumbler stumble round thee, ... may he tie thee with Indra's fetter, loosen thee for me, and may he lead another one up (to me).'

4. Then he will quietly remain (in his master's house).

KANDIKĀ 8.

1. The spit-ox (sacrificed to Rudra).
2. It procures (to the sacrificer) heavenly rewards, cattle, sons, wealth, renown, long life.
3. Having taken the sacred domestic fire to the

In the Mantra I propose to read, pari tvā hvalano, &c. Nivrīttendrasvīrūdhahā seems to be corrupt; it seems to be a compound of nivrītta, a second member which is doubtful, and vīrūdh (the plant). The meaning may have been 'giving it up to consume the plants.'

4. One that is not gelded.

5. Or (it may be) a cow, on account of the designation.

6. Having cooked the omentum, a mess of sacrificial food, and the portions cut off (of the victim), he sacrifices the omentum to Rudra, the fat to the Air, and the cut-off portions together with the mess of cooked food to Agni, Rudra, Sarva, Pasupati, Ugra, Asani, Bhava, Mahâdeva, Ísâna.

7. (Then follows a sacrifice to) Vanaspati

8. (To Agni) Svishtakrit at the end.

9. Then (follows) the sprinkling round to the different quarters (of the horizon).

10. After the sprinkling has been performed, they sacrifice the Patni-samyâga offerings to Indrânti, Rudrânti, Sarvânti, Bhavânti, and Agni Gṛihapati.

11. The blood he offers in leaves, on (grass-) bunches, as a Bali to Rudra and to his hosts, with (the Mantras),

12. The contents of the stomach and of the entrails, besmeared with blood, he throws into the fire or buries them in the earth.

13. Having placed the animal so that the wind blows from himself to it, he approaches it with the Rudra hymns, or with the first and last Anuvâka.

14. They do not take anything of that animal to the village.

15. Thereby (also) the cow-sacrifice has been declared.

16. (It is combined) with (the offering of) milk-rice; (the rites) not corresponding (to that special occasion) are omitted.

17. The sacrificial fee at that (sacrifice) is a cow of the same age (as the victim).

KANDIKĀ 9.

1. Now the letting loose of the bull.

2. (The ceremony) has been declared in the cow-sacrifice.

24. In the doors of their houses they chew leaves of the Piśumanda (or Nimba) tree, sip water, touch water, fire, cowdung, white mustard seeds, and oil, tread upon a stone, and then they enter.

25. Through a period of three nights they should remain chaste, sleep on the ground, do no work and charge nobody (to do it for them).

26. Let them eat food which they have bought or received (from others); (they should eat it) only in the day-time, (and should eat) no meat.

27. Having offered to the deceased person the Pinda, naming his name at the washing, at the offering (of the Pinda), and at the second washing—

28. They should that night put milk and water in an earthen vessel into the open air with (the words), 'Deceased one, bathe here!'

29. The impurity caused by death lasts through three nights.

30. Through ten nights, according to some (teachers).

31. (During that period they) should not perform Śvādhyāya (or study the Vedic texts for themselves).

33. And (with the exception of those performed) with the (sacred) domestic fire, according to some (teachers).
34. Others should perform (those rites for them).
35. Those who have touched the dead body should not enter the village until the stars appear.
36. If (they have touched it) in the night-time, (they should not enter) till sunrise.
37. The entering and what follows after it is the same (for these persons) as for the others.
38. (Their) impurity lasts through one or two fortinights.
39. The same (rites should be performed) when the teacher (has died),
40. Or the maternal grandfather or grandmother,
41. Or unmarried females.
42. For those who were married, the others should do it,
43. And they for the (others).
44. If one dies while being absent on a journey, (his relations) shall sit (on the ground, as prescribed for impure persons) from the time when they have heard (of his death), performing the water libation

37. The position of this Sūtra after 35, 36 seems to me to indicate that it refers to those who have touched the dead body; comp. Yāgñavalkya III, 14 piyavanādikāmaḥ karmā pretasamasparsaṁ api. I believe that the same persons are concerned also in Sūtra 38.

48. On the eleventh day he should give to an uneven number of Brāhmanas a meal at which meat is served

49. Some also kill a cow in honour of the deceased person.

50. When the Pindas are prepared, the deceased person, if he has sons, shall be considered as the first of the (three) Fathers (to whom Pindas are offered).

51. The fourth one should be left out.

52. Some (make Pinda offerings to a deceased person) separately through one year (before admitting him to a share in the common Pitriyagña).

53. But there is a rule, ‘There can be no fourth Pinda’—for this is stated in the Sruti.

54. Every day he shall give food to him (i.e. to the deceased person), and if he was a Brāhmaṇa, a vessel with water.

Kandikā 11.

1. If an animal (is) to be sacrificed, let him wash it, if it is not a cow; let him walk round the fires and drive in front (of them) a Palāsa branch into the ground.

2. The winding (of a Kusa rope) round (that branch), the touching (of the animal with the grass-blade), the binding (of it to the branch), and the sprinkling (of the animal with water) should be performed in the way prescribed (in the Srauta-sūtra), and whatever else (is to be done).

3. After he has sacrificed the two oblations before and after the killing of the animal, (he) silently (sacrifices) five other (oblations, directed to Pragāpati).

4. And the omentum is taken out (of the killed animal). He should besprinkle it (with water) and name the deity (to whom the sacrifice is directed).

5. (He should name that deity also) at the touching (of the animal with the grass-blade), at (its) being bound (to the branch), at its being sprinkled (with water), and at (the preparation and oblation) of the mess of cooked food.

6. After he has sacrificed the omentum, he cuts off the Avadāna portions,

7. All of them, or three, or five.
8. He sacrifices the Avadâna portions together with the mess of cooked food.
9. A limb of the animal is the sacrificial fee.
10. At (a sacrifice) directed to a special deity he should sacrifice (an animal) belonging to that deity, should make a portion for that (god), and should say to him (i.e. to the messenger who is to convey that offering to a place sacred to that deity): 'Take care that this may reach that (god).'</n11. If there is a river between (the sacrificer and that sacred place), he may have a boat made, or he may dispense with this.

KANDIKÂ 12.

1. Now (follows) the penance for a student who has broken the vow of chastity.
2. On a new-moon day he shall sacrifice an ass on a cross-road (to the goddess Nirrr̥ti).
3. (And) he shall offer a mess of cooked food to Nirrr̥ti.
4. The Avadâna portions are sacrificed into water (and not into fire).

7. The complete number of the Avadânas (i.e. the portions of the killed animal which have to be cut off, such as the heart, the tongue, &c.) is eleven; see Kâtyâyana-Srauta VI, 7, 6; Ásvâlayana-Grîhya I, 11, 12.
10, 11. The way for interpreting these Sûtras is shown by Ásvâlayana-Grîhya I, 12. I do not think that they have anything to do, as Gâyarâma states, with reference to Sûtra 11, with the offering due to a relative who has died while being absent on a journey (chap. 10, 44).
12, 1. See the parallel passages quoted by Professor Buhler in his note on Ápastamba I, 26, 8 (S.B.E., II, 85), and besides, Kâtyâyana I, 1, 13 seqq.; Gautama XXIII, 17 seqq., &c.
4. This Sûtra is identical with Kâtyâyana I, 1, 16.
5. The Purodāsa (or sacrificial cake), which belongs to the animal sacrifice, is cooked on the ground (and not in the Kapālas).

6. (The guilty person) should put on the skin (of the ass),

7. With the tail turned upwards, according to some (teachers).

8. He should through one year go about for alms, proclaiming his deed.

9. After that time he sacrifices two Āgya oblations with (the formulas), ‘O Lust, I have broken my vow of chastity. I have broken my vow of chastity, O Lust. To Lust svāhā!’—‘O Lust, I have done evil. I have done evil, O Lust. To Lust svāhā!’

10. He then approaches (the fire) with (the verse), ‘May the Maruts besprinkle me, may Indra, may Brīhaspati, may this Agni besprinkle me.with offspring and with wealth.’

11. This is the penance.

KANDIKA 18.

1. Now the entering of a court of justice.

2. He approaches the court with (the words), ‘Court! Thou that belongest to the Āṅgiras! Trouble art thou by name; vehemence art thou by name. Thus be adoration to thee!’

mous daughters of Pragāpati (protect me). May one who does not know me, be below me. May (all) people be considerate in what they say.'

4. When he has arrived at the assembly, he should murmur, 'Superior (to my adversaries) I have come hither, brilliant, not to be contradicted. The lord of this assembly is a man insuperable in his power.'

5. Should he think, 'This person is angry with me,' he addresses him with (the verses), 'The destroying power of wrath and anger that dwells here on thy forehead, that the chaste, wise gods may take away.

'T Heaven am I and I am Earth; we both take away thy anger, the she-mule cannot bring forth offspring; N. N. !'

6. But if he should think, 'This person will do evil to me,' he addresses him with (the words), 'I take away the speech in thy mouth, I take away (the speech) in thy heart. Wheresoever thy speech dwells, thence I take it away. What I say, is true. Fall down, inferior to me.'

7. The same is the way to make (a person) subject (to one's self).

KANDIKĀ 14.

1. Now the mounting of a chariot (is declared).

2. After he has given the order, 'Put the horses to it,' and it has been announced, 'They are,' he goes to (the chariot, saying), 'This is the Virāg,' and touches the two wheels,

5. Perhaps we should read gṛbhenāsvataryāḥ saha: we take away thy anger together with the offspring of the she-mule (that cannot foal). Comp. Kūlavagga VII, 2, 5; S. B. E., XX, 238.

6. It is impossible to give a sure restoration of this corrupt Mantra. Perhaps we should read something like this: a te vālam āṣya a te hṝdaya ādade. Comp. Hirany.-Grhyā I, 4, 15, 6
3. The right (wheel) with (the words), 'The Rathantartha art thou'—

4. The left with (the words), 'The Brhat art thou'—

5. The pole with (the words), 'The Vamadevya art thou.'

6. He touches the interior of the chariot with his hand (saying), 'The two Ankas, the two Nyaankas which are on both sides of the chariot, which move forward with the rushing wind, the far-darting one with keen senses, the winged one, may these fires, the promoters, promote us.'

7. With (the words), 'Adoration to Manikara,' he drives on the beast on the right side.

8. (If going in his chariot) toward (images of) gods, let him descend (from the chariot) before he has reached them; if toward Brahmanas, just before (reaching them); if toward cows, when amid them; if toward fathers, when he has reached them.

9. A woman or a Vedic student shall not be charioteers.

14, 6. The meaning of ankau and nyankau cannot be determined, as far as I can see. The commentators explain the words as the two wheels and the two sides of the chariot, or as the two right wheels and the two left wheels of a four-wheeled chariot. Professor Zimmer (Altindisches Leben, pp. 251 seq.) compares anka with arugga, and says, 'Mit anka (resp. ankti) ware daher die obere Einfassung des Wagenkastens (koja, vandhura) bezeichnet, mit nyanka (resp. nyankti) ein zu grosser Befestigung etwas weiter unten (ni) herumlauender Stab.' To me it seems that anka and nyanka are to be understood both as designations of certain parts of the chariot and as names of different forms of Agni dwelling in the chariot.—Comp. Taityyia Samhitâ I, 7, 7, 2; Pañka-vimasa, Brähmanas I, 7, 5.

7. The name of the demon Manikara occurs, as far as I know, only here.
10. Having driven a moment beyond (the point to which he intends to go) he should murmur, 'Here is rest, rest here' (Vāg. Samh. VIII, 51).

11. Some add (the words), 'Here shall be no rest.'

12. If the chariot is weak, he should murmur, after he has mounted it, 'May this your chariot, O Āśvins, suffer no damage on bad ways or by being overthrown.'

13. If the horses run away with the chariot, he should touch the post (?) or the earth and should murmur, 'May this your chariot, O Āśvins, suffer no damage on bad ways or by being overthrown.

14. Thus he will suffer no harm and no damage.

15. When he has finished his way, and has un-yoked the horses, let him have grass and water given to them. 'For thus satisfaction is given to the beast that draws (the cart)—says the Śruti.

KANDIKĀ 15.

1. Now how he should mount an elephant.

2. He goes to the elephant and touches it (saying), 'The elephants' glory art thou. The elephants' honour art thou.'

3. He then mounts it with (the words), 'With Indra's thunder-bolt I bestride thee. Make me arrive safely.'

4. Thereby it has also been declared how he should mount a horse.

11. If the reading of the text is correct, the meaning would seem to be: We will rest here for a while, but then we will go further.

13. I cannot say what 'the post' (stambha) here means; it may be a part of the chariot. Gāyatrīya has dhvagastambha, i.e. the staff of a flag, which we are to suppose was carried on the chariot. This may be the right explanation.

15. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa I, 8, 2, 9.
5. When he is going to mount a camel, he addresses it: 'Thou art the son of Tvashtri; Tvashtri is thy deity. Make me arrive safely.'

6. When he is going to mount a he-ass, he addresses it: 'A Sūdra art thou, a Sūdra by birth. To Agni thou belongest, with twofold sperm. Make me arrive safely.'

7. A path he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells on the paths. Make me arrive safely.'

8. A cross-road he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells at the cross-roads. Make me arrive safely.'

9. When he intends to swim across a river, he addresses it: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells in the waters. Make me arrive safely.'

10. When going on board a ship, he addresses her: 'The good ship' (Vâg. Samh. XXI, 7).

11. When going to cross (the river), he addresses (the ship): 'The well-protecting' (Vâg. Samh. XXI, 6).

12. A forest (through which he is wandering) he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells in the forests. Make me arrive safely.'

13. A mountain (which he is going to cross) he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells on the mountains. Make me arrive safely.'

14. A burial-ground he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells among the Fathers. Make me arrive safely.'

15. A cow-stable he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells among the dung-heaps. Make me arrive safely.'

6. The he-ass has twofold sperm, because he begets both asses and mules. Taittiriya Samhitā VII, 1, 1, 2.
16. And wheresoever else it be, let him always say, 'Adoration to Rudra.' For the Sruti says, 'Rudra is this universe.'

17. If the skirt (of his garment) is blown upon him (by the wind), he addresses (that skirt). 'A skirt art thou. Thou art not a thunder-bolt. Adoration be to thee. Do no harm to me!'

18. The thunder he addresses. 'May the rains be friendly to us; may (Indra's) darts be friendly to us—may they be friendly to us which thou throwest, O killer of Vṛitra.'

19. A howling jackal he addresses. 'Friendly by name' (Vāg. Samh. III, 63).

20. A shrieking bird he addresses: 'Golden-winged bird who goest where the gods send thee! Messenger of Yama, adoration be to thee! What has the Kārkārīṇa told thee?'

21. A tree that serves as a mark (of a boundary, &c.), he addresses: 'May neither the flash of lightning (destroy thee), nor axe nor wind nor punishment which the king sends. May thy shoots grow up; may rain fall on thee, in safety from the wind. May fire not destroy thy root. Blessing on thee, O lord of the forest! Blessing on me, O lord of the forest!'

22. If he receives something (given to him), he accepts it with (the formula), 'May Heaven give thee; may the Earth accept thee.' Thus (the thing given) does not decrease to him who gives it, and what he receives increases.

19. The play on words is untranslatable; 'jackal' is sīvā, 'friendly,' sīvāḥ.

20. I do not know the meaning of kārkārīṇaḥ. Gayaṛaṇa takes it for a genitive standing instead of an accusative, and explains it by asmadbādhakam.
23. If boiled rice is given to him, he accepts it with (the formula), 'May Heaven, &c.,' and he partakes thereof twice with (the formulas), 'May Brahmān eat thee!'—'May Brahmān partake of thee!'

24. If gruel is given to him, (as above) ... three times with (the formulas), 'May Brahmān eat thee!'—'May Brahmān partake of thee!'—'May Brahmān drink thee!'

Kāndikā 16.

1. Now each time after a lesson (of the Veda) is finished, in order to prevent his forgetting (the texts he has studied, the following prayer should be recited):

'May my mouth be skilful; my tongue be honey-sweet speech. With my ears I have heard much; do not take away that which I have heard, which dwells in me.

'The Brahmān's word art thou; the Brahmān's stand art thou; the Brahmān's store-house art thou. Fulfilment art thou; peace art thou; unforgottenness art thou; enter into my store-house of the Brahmān. With the voice I cover thee! With the voice I cover thee! May I be able to form the vowels, to produce, to hold fast and to utter the guttural, pectoral, dental, and labial sounds. May my limbs grow strong, my voice, breath, eye, ear, honour, and power. What I have heard and studied, may that be fixed in my mind; may that be fixed in my mind.'

End of the Third Kāndā.

End of Pāraskara's Grihya-sūtra.

KHĀDIRA-GRĪHYA-SŪTRA.
INTRODUCTION
TO THE KHÂDIRA-GRûHYA-SûTRA.

AMONG the Grantha MSS. collected by the late Dr. Burnell and now belonging to the India Office Library, there are some MSS. (numbers CLXXII and following of the Catalogue) of a Grûhya-sûtra hitherto unpublished, which is ascribed to Khâdirâkârya. It belongs to the Drâhyâyana school of the Sâma-veda, which prevails in the south of the Indian peninsula, and it is based on the Gobhiliya-sûtra, from which it has taken the greater number of its aphorisms, just as the Drâhyâyana-Srautasûtra, as far as we can judge at present, is nothing but a slightly altered redaction of Lâryâyana. Like the Gobhila-Grûhya it very seldom gives the Mantras in their full extent, but quotes them only with their Pratikas, and it is easy to identify these quotations in the Mantrabrâhmâna (published at Calcutta, 1873), which contains the texts prescribed by Gobhila for the Grûhya ceremonies.

The Khâdira-Grûhya has evidently been composed with the intention of abridging Gobhila's very detailed and somewhat lengthy treatise on the domestic rites Digressions, such as, for instance, that introduced by the words tatraihâd 'âhu, Gobhila I, 2, 10–27, or such as Gobhila's explication of the terms paurnamâst and amâvâsyâ, I, 5, 7 seqq., or most of the regulations concerning the Sakvanyas, III, 3, or the Slokas, IV, 7, are invariably left

1 See Dr. Burnell's Catalogue, p. 56.
2 Weber, Vorlesungen über indische Literaturgeschichte (and edition), p. 87: 'Almost the entire difference between this Sûtra and that of Lâryâyana lies in the arrangement of the matter treated of, which is in itself very nearly the same in both texts, and is expressed in the same words.' Comp. Anandâkândra Vedântavâstra's Introduction to his edition of Lâryâyana (in the Bibliotheca Indica), pp. 2, 3, and his statements on Drâhyâyana in the notes of that edition.
out, and in the descriptions of the single ceremonies throughout the principal points only are given, with the omission of all words and of all matter that it seemed possible to dispense with. On the other hand, the arrangement of the Sūtras has undergone frequent changes, in which the compiler clearly shows his intention of grouping together, more carefully than was done in the original text, the Sūtras which naturally belong to each other. Of the Sūtras of the Khādira-Grīhya which cannot be identified in Gobhila, several are to be traced back to Lātyāyana, or we should perhaps rather say, to Drāhyāyana. Thus Khād. I, 1, 14 mantrāntam avyaktam parasyādigrahanena vidyāt evidently corresponds to Lātyāyana I, 1, 3, uttarādik pūrvāntalakshanam, and Khād. I, 1, 24 avyāvṛtīm yagāṅgai avyāvāyam kekhet is identical with Lāty. I, 2, 15, avyāvāyo-avyāvṛtīs ka yagāṅgaiḥ.

Upon the whole, though certainly the Khādira-Grīhya does not contain much matter which is not known to us from other sources, it notwithstanding possesses a certain interest, since it shows by a very clear example how a Sūtrakāra of the later time would remodel the work of a more ancient author, trying to surpass him by a more correct arrangement, and especially by what became more and more appreciated as the chief accomplishment of Sūtra composition, the greatest possible succinctness and economising of words. To an interpreter of Gobhila the comparison of the Khādira-Grīhya no doubt will suggest in many instances a more correct understanding of his text than he would have been likely to arrive at without that aid, and perhaps even readings of Gobhila which seemed hitherto subject to no doubt, will have to give way to readings supplied by the Grantha MSS. of the Khādira-Grīhya. Thus, Gobhila III, 8, 16, I do not hesitate to correct asamsvādam, on the authority of Khād. III, 3, 13, into asamkhādam or asamkhadan.¹

As the text of the Khâdira-Gṛhya is very short and has not yet been published, it has been printed at the foot of the page, together with references to the parallel passages of Gobhila. For further explanations of the single Sūtras, I refer to my translation of Gobhila which will form part of the second volume of the Gṛhya-sūtras, where I shall also hope to give some extracts from Rudraskanda's commentary on the Khâdira-Gṛhya.

13. (The different ceremonies are) performed with the right hand, if no special rule is given.

14. If it is not clear where a Mantra ends, one should discern it by (advertising to) the beginning of the next Mantra.

15. The Mantras have the word svāhā at their end, when offerings are made.

16. The term Pākayagā is used of every sacrifice that is performed with one fire.

17. There the Brahman is (present as) officiating priest, with the exception of the morning and evening oblations.
18. The Hotra's place is filled by (the sacrificer) himself.

19. To the south of the fire the Brahman sits facing the north, silently, until the oblation has been performed, on eastward-pointed (Darbha grass).

20. But if he likes, he may speak of what refers to the sacrifice.

21. Or if he has spoken (words) which are unworthy of the sacrifice, let him murmur the Mahāvyāhṛtis,

6. The service (at that sacred domestic fire) begins with an evening oblation.
7. After (the fire) has been set in a blaze before sunset or sunrise—
8. The sacrifice (is performed) after sunset,
9. (And) after sunrise or before sunrise.
10. He should with his hand make oblations of food which is fit for sacrifice, having washed it, if it is raw.
11. If it consists in curds or milk, with a brazen bowl,
12. Or with the pot in which the oblations of cooked rice are prepared.
13. (In the evening the first oblation with the formula), 'To Agni Svåhå!' in the middle (of the sacred fire);
14. The second (oblation) silently in the north-eastern part (of the fire).
15. In the morning the first (oblation with the formula), 'To Sûrya (Svåhå)!'
16. The wiping round the fire and the similar acts, with the exception of the sprinkling (of water) round (the fire), are omitted here.
17. Some (teachers say) that his wife may offer these oblations, for the wife is (as it were) the house, and that fire is the domestic fire.

10-19=I, 3, 6-18 (16 deest).
18. When (the meal) is ready, in the evening and in the morning, (the wife) should say, ‘It is ready!’ and (the husband) with loud voice, ‘Om!’

19. Then in a low voice: ‘May it not fail! Adoration to thee!’

20. Of food which is fit for sacrifice he should make oblations to Pragâpati and to (Agni) Svishâkrit.

21. Then he should make the Bali offerings.

22. He should put down (a Bali) at four places, inside or outside (the Agnyagâra);

23. (Another Bali) near the water-barrel;

24. (Another) at the middle door;

25. (Another) in the bed,

26. Or in the privy;

27. Another on the heap of sweepings.

28. He should sprinkle each (Bali with water) before and afterwards.

29. The remnants he should pour out together with water towards the south.

30. Of chaff, of water, and of the scum of boiled rice (he should offer a Bali) when a donation has been made.
31. The gods to whom the Bali offerings belong, are, the Earth, Vāyu, Prāgāpati, the Vīsve devās, the Waters, the Herbs and Trees, the Ether, Kāma or Manyu, the hosts of Rakshas, the Fathers, Rudra.

32. He should do so silently.
33. He should do so (i.e. offer Balis) of all food.
34. If for one meal the food gets ready at different times, he should do so only once.
35. If (food is prepared) at different places, (he should take) that which belongs to the householder.
36. Of all food he should offer (something) in the fire, and give the due portion to a Brāhmaṇa; he should do so himself.
37. From the rice(-harvest) till the barley(-harvest), or from the barley(-harvest) till the rice(-harvest) he should offer (the Balis) himself. He should offer (the Balis) himself.

End of the First Pātala.
Patala II, Khanda 1.

1. Of the sacrifices of the new and full moon, the full-moon sacrifice should be performed first.

2. If (the term for the sacrifice) of the new moon comes first, he should first celebrate the full-moon sacrifice and then perform that.

3. Some say that he should not perform it, and wait till the day of the full moon.

4. In the afternoon, husband and wife, after having bathed, should eat fast-day food.

5. Mānandantavya has said: 'He who eats fast-day food, obtains offspring better than himself; he gains favour; hunger will not attack him.'

6. Therefore one should eat (fast-day food) which he likes.

7. He should do nothing unholy (such as cohabiting with his wife).

8. After he has sacrificed the morning oblation,

9. He should pour out the sacrificial food with (the formula), 'Agreeable to such and such (a deity) I pour thee out:' (this formula) referring to the deity, or a Yagus, (is repeated) once; twice (it is done) silently.

10. He should wash (the food) thrice, (if it is destined) for gods;
11. Twice, if for men;
12. Once, if for the Fathers.
13. Stirring it up with the pot-ladle from the left to the right he should cook it.
14. When he has cooked it, he should sprinkle (Âgya) on it, should take it from the fire towards the north, and should again sprinkle (Âgya) on it.
15. Thus all kinds of Havis (are prepared).
16. Having put (the Havis) on the sacrificial grass,
17. He should sacrifice the two Âgya portions (in the following way): Having taken four portions of Âgya—five portions are taken by the Bhrigus (or at least?) by the Gâmadagnyas [see Indische Studien, 10, 95]—(he should make two oblations), to the north with (the formula), 'To Agni Svâhâ!' to the south with (the formula), 'To Soma Svâhâ!'
18. Others (do it) conversely.
19. Having 'spread under' Âgya, he should cut off with the pot-ladle (portions) of the Havis from the middle and from the eastern side;

20. One who takes five cut-off portions (see Sūtra 17), also from the western side.

21. After he has sprinkled (Āgya) on (the cut-off portions), he anoints the places from which he has cut them off, (with Āgya).

22. (This anointing) is omitted at the Svishṭakṛit oblation.

23. He should sacrifice with (the formula), ‘To N, N. Svāhā!’—according to the god to whom the oblation belongs.

24. At the Svishṭakṛit oblation he ‘spreads under’ once—twice if he is a Bhṛgu—, (cuts off) once (a portion) of the Havis, sprinkles (Āgya) on it twice, and sacrifices it in a north-eastern direction with (the formula), ‘To Agni Svishṭakṛit Svāhā!’

25. Having put a piece of wood (on the fire),

26. He should dip Darbha-blades (of the sacrificial grass strewn round the fire) three times, the points, the middle, and the roots, into the Āgya or into the Havis with (the words), ‘May the birds come, licking what has been anointed.’ Then, after having sprinkled (those Darbha-blades with water), he should throw them into the fire, with (the verse), ‘Thou who art the lord of cattle, Rudra, who walkest with the lines (of cattle), the manly one: do no harm to our cattle; let this be offered to thee. Svāhā!’
27. This (ceremony is called) Yagñavāstu.
28. He should perform it at all (sacrifices).
29. The remnants of the Havis he should take away in a northern direction, and should give them to the Brahman.
30. A full vessel constitutes the fee for the sacrifice;
31. Or as much as he can afford.

Khanda 2.

16–33=III, 3 (22, 25, 29, 33 desunt).
23. (After each section of the text) they should repeat (as a sort of index?) the beginnings of the Rikas and the Prastâvas (of the Sâmans).
24. Then the Rahasya texts are chanted,
25. Except when lightning is seen or thunder heard.
26. When they have studied four months and a half, they finish on the full-moon day of Pausha.
27. From that time studying is forbidden when clouds appear,
28. And when lightning is seen, or thunder heard, or when it is drizzling.
29. When these three things happen together, (studying is forbidden) till the twilight has thrice passed.
30. On an Ashâkâ, on a new-moon day, on the (three) festivals which come once in four months, and at (the beginning of) the northern course of the sun, (studying is forbidden) for one night with one day before and one day after it.
31. And if a fellow-pupil has died.
32. On the falling of a meteor, or after an earthquake, or an eclipse of the sun or of the moon, on these occasions one should know (that studying is forbidden) until the same time next day.
33. The Kathas and Kauthumas, however, state that (when rain has fallen, studying is forbidden) as long as the water stands in the ditches.

Khanda 3.

1. On the full-moon day of Ásvayuga milk-rice sacred to Rudra (is prepared).
2. He should offer it with (the Mantra), ‘Not to our children.’
3. Let him pour Ágya into milk; this is called a Prishátaka.
4. Therewith he should besprinkle the cows when they have come home, with (the Mantra), ‘May Mitra and Varuna’ (Sáma-veda I, 220).
5. That night he should let the calves join their mothers.
6. At the sacrifice of the first-fruits, milk-rice sacred to Indra and Agni (is prepared).
7. Let him sacrifice Ágya with the four (verses), ‘To the bearer of the hundred weapons’ (MB. II, i, 9 seqq.),
8. And afterwards with (the verse), ‘May Agni eat.’ (l. l. 15).
9. All of them who have received the initiation, should eat the remainder of that (sacrificial food).
10. Having ‘spread under’ water, he should cut off two portions of the new fruits.

8, 1-15=Gobhila III, 8 (3 deest).
11. Three (portions are cut off) by descendants of Bhrigú.

12. Over (these portions) water (is poured).

13. He should swallow (some part of that food) three times without chewing it, with (the Mantra), 'From the good' (I. I. 13);

14. Or at (the partaking of) barley with (the Mantra), 'This barley' (I. I. 16).

15. With (the Mantra), 'This art thou' (I. I. 14), let him touch the different sense-organs at his head.

16. The Ágraháyana ceremony has been explained by the Srávaka (ceremony).

17. Let him (not?) murmur (the Mantra), 'Adoration to the Earth' (see chap. 2, 6).

18. In the evening let him make an oblation of milk-rice with (the verse), 'As the first' (MB. II, 2, 1).

19. Turning downwards his two hands (so as to touch the sacrificial grass) he should murmur (the Mantra), 'In worldly strength' (I. I. 2, 3).

20. Having spread out to the west of the fire a layer of northward-pointed grass, so that it is inclined towards the north, the householder sits down on that layer,

21. (And) the other persons in due order.

22. Then, without an interval, their wives,
23. And their children.

24. The householder, turning his hands downwards (so as to touch the layer of grass), should murmur (the Mantra), 'Be soft' (l. l. 4).

25. When he has finished that (verse), they should lie down on their right sides. They should turn round three times, turning themselves towards themselves (i.e. turning round forwards, not backwards, and thus returning to their former position?).

26. Let them repeat the auspicious hymns.

27. Then let them do what they like.

28. The eighth days of the three dark fortnights after the Āgrahāyant are called the Ashtakās.

29. On (each of) these a mess of cooked food (is sacrificed),

30. And eight cakes on the first.

31. These he should bake in a dish without turning them round.

32. On the last (Ashtakā) vegetables (are offered). (So also) at the Anvāhārya (Srāddha).

33. Let him sacrifice with (the formula), 'To the Ashtakā Svāhā!'

Khandá 4.

1. On the middle (Ashtakā) a cow (is sacrificed).

2. He should place that (cow) to the east of the fire, facing the west, and should sacrifice (Âgya) with (the verse), “What, O beasts” (MB. II, 2, 5).

3. After having made that oblation he should recite over (the cow the verse), ‘May to thee’ (I. 1. 6).

4. Let him sprinkle it with water in which barley is, with (the formula), ‘Agreeable to the Aśvakâ I sprinkle thee!’

5. Having sprinkled it and carried a fire-brand round it, he should give the Prokshant water (to the cow) to drink.

6. Going in a northern direction (from the fire) he should kill (the cow), the head of which is turned to the west, the feet to the north.

7. After it has been killed, he should sacrifice (Âgya) with (the verse), ‘If the beast’ (I. 1. 8).

8. His wife should wash the apertures of its body.

9. After (the cow’s body) has been opened, so that two purifiers (i.e. grass-blades) have been put under (the knife), he should have the omentum drawn out.

10. Seizing it with one branch and with another forked branch of a sacrificially pure tree he should roast it.

11. When it has ceased to drop, he should hew (the cow) to pieces.
12. The ‘spreading under’ and sprinkling (of Āgya) on (the omentum) has been described. (It is done) as at the Svishtakṛit oblation (see II, i. 24).

13. He should sacrifice with (the formula), ‘To the Ashtakā Svāhā!’

14. The Avadānas (or portions which have to be cut off) he should have taken from all its limbs.

15. Not from the left thigh and the lungs.

16. The left thigh he keeps (for the Anvashtakya).

17. He should cook the Avadānas and a mess of sacrificial food, (stirring up the ones and the other) with two different pot-ladles.

18. The juice he lets drop into a brazen vessel.

19. The Avadānas he puts on branches of the Plaksha tree.

20. From each (Avadāna) he should cut off (the prescribed portions, and should put them) into a brazen vessel;

21. And from the mess of cooked food.

22. Let him take four portions or eight portions of Āgya (?) and let him sacrifice it with (the verses), ‘Into Agni’ (MB. II, 2, 9 seqq.).

23. Let him make oblations out of the brazen vessel, each oblation with two of the following (verses).

24. The oblation to (Agni) Svishtakrīt with the eighth (verse).
25. At a sacrifice to the Fathers the omentum is sacrificed with (the verse), 'Carry the omentum' (MB. II, 3, 16).
26. At one to the gods with (the verse), 'Gātavedas' (l. l. 17.)
27. If (the deity is) unknown, (in the formula for) assigning (the oblation, instead of the name of a deity the name of) that (ceremony is put)—
28. As (for instance), 'To the Ashākā.'
29. An animal is the sacrificial fee at (the sacrifice of) an animal;
30. A full vessel at (that of) a mess of cooked food.

KHANDA 5.

1. On the ninth or tenth (of the dark fortnight) the Anvashākṣāya (ceremony is performed).
2. To the south-east (of the house) they partition off (a place with mats or the like), and to the northern part of that (place) he should carry a fire which has been kindled by attrition.
3. Let him take one portion of rice, let him remove the husks once, and let him cook it, stirring it up from right to left.

24. sauvishākṛtam ashamyā. 25. vaha vapām iti pītrye vapā-homo. 26. Gātaveda iti daivatro. 27. tadādesam anāgāte. 28. yathāśākṣāya iti. 29. pasur eva pasor dakshinā. 30. sthālpā- kasya prānapātram.

14. (He should perform the different rites) in the eastern pit for his father,

15. In the middle for his grandfather,

16. In the last for his great-grandfather.

17. Let him pour out vessels of water, from right to left, into the pits, pronouncing the name of each one (of his ancestors), with (the formula), ‘N. N. ! Wash thyself, and they who follow thee here, and they whom thou followest. To thee Svadhâ!’

18. In the same way he should put down the Pindas for them and should murmur, ‘Here, O Fathers, enjoy yourselves; show your manly vigour each for his part’ (MB. II, 3, 6).

19. After he has spoken thus, he should turn to the north, doubling his left arm, turning round from right to left.

20. Holding his breath and fixing his thoughts on something good he should, while turning back (in the same way), murmur: ‘The Fathers have enjoyed themselves; they have shown their manly vigour each for his part’ (MB. II, 3, 7).

21. He should sprinkle collyrium on three Darbha-blades, and should put them down into the pits in the same way as the Pindas, 22. And sesamum oil and perfumes.
23. For the Pindas and the following offerings he should alter the formula (Sūtra 17) accordingly.
24. Now (follows) the deprecation.
25. On the eastern pit he lays his hands, turning the inside of the right hand upwards, with (the formula), ‘Adoration to you, O Fathers, for the sake of life! Adoration to you, O Fathers, for the sake of vital breath!’ (MB. II, 3, 8.)
26. On the middle, turning the inside of the left hand upwards, with (the formula), ‘Adoration to you, O Fathers, for the sake of terror! Adoration to you, O Fathers, for the sake of sap!’ (MB. I. 1.)
27. On the western, turning the inside of the right hand upwards, with (the formula), ‘Adoration to you, O Fathers, for the sake of comfort (svadhā)! Adoration to you, O Fathers, for the sake of wrath!’ (MB. II, 3, 9.)
28. Joining his hands—
29. (He should murmur the formula), ‘Adoration to you’ (MB. II, 3, 9).
30. He should lay down threads into the pits in the same way as the Pindas, with (the formula), ‘This (garment) to you.’
